REFUEL FLIGHT BRINGS ON SUIT AND RADIO ROW

Stockholders in Old Air Contest Firm Claim Share of Cash.

DEPUTY DRAWS LINE AT SERVICE ALOFT

Ground Crew Summoned as Fourth Week Is Entered.

BROADCASTING CLASH ADDS TO BITTERNESS

Rumors Say Fliers Quarrel Over Descent; Notes Are Kept From Public.

Chicago, Ill., July 2 (A.P.).—The City of Chicago sailed smoothly along tonight, entering its fourth week of constant flight, but at the airport below several potential storms were brewing.

The trouble began when Deputy Sheriff Matt Porten arrived late today with a summons ordering all of the Hunter brothers and backers of the endurance flight to appear in circuit court July 21.

Flight managers and assistant flight managers scurried about greatly perturbed. Walter and Albert Hunter, operators of the endurance ship's refueling plane were served, as were Bernard L. Majewski, flight secretary, and Wilson Herren, backer.

Sheriff Porten then turned his face skyward, watched the endurance plane glide over the field. Flight managers began protesting but their protests were unnecessary. The sheriff quickly announced that he had no intention of serving any papers in the air.

Not Working in Air.

"John and Kenneth can go on flying as long as they like," said the sheriff. "I do my work on the ground."

The crowd cheered this announcement, and the sheriff departed, declaring he would return in a few days.

The appearance of the sheriff was only the beginning of the discord, however. Rivalry between the National Broadcasting and the Columbia systems, both of which have broadcasting equipment at Sky Harbor, cropped out after a ship carrying Columbia equipment made a second unsuccessful attempt to broadcast from the endurance ship.

The National Broadcasting Co. promptly sent up equipment, made a contact and, officials at the field, reported, succeeded in broadcasting a few words from the flying Hunters.

The brothers Hunter, according to N. B. C. officials, broadcast as follows:

"There isn't much to say up here, and there isn't much to do. We're just sailing along."

Attorney Is Consulted.

A spokesman for Columbia then announced that his system had a contract with the Hunter brothers, and that an attorney had been consulted regarding the business of enforcing it.

"The N. B. C. used the plane we brought out here to make that contact" said this spokesman. "We don't want to hog things, but such tactics don't appear right. Our contract specifies that the Hunter brothers are to talk over Columbia system first when they land. I can't understand why we failed to make contact with the ship twice today, and the other outfit did, but we'll find out why."

The endurance ship had been in the air 509 hours at 8:40 p. m. Central standard time, or 89 hours ahead of the previous endurance record. A total of 193 successful contacts with the "Big Ben" refueling ship had been made. In addition three successful radio contacts had been established.

As a result the nerves of the field attaches were jangled; conversations were strained and at times openly ill-tempered. Rumors of all sorts were rampant. They were to the effect that John and Kenneth Hunter had quarreled in their ship; that they might descend any minute; that flight backers had broken over profits.

Notes Jealously Guarded.

Notes tossed from the endurance plane were guarded jealously. A censorship had been put into effect. The endurance flight had become "big business."

A member of the flight committee who had handled some of the notes during the day said most of them concerned "financial matters."

As John and Kenneth Hunter passed their 505th consecutive hour in the air at 4:40 p. m. (Central standard time), word came to the field that stockholders of the "Chicago We Will" Corporation had filed suit asking appointment of a receiver, an accounting of the earnings and an injunction to prevent disposition of funds received from the flight.

The Hunter brothers and their backers are named defendants in the

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Faith without works is vain. Although many millions of people are enjoying record wages, there are others who are unemployed, some of whom can live on their savings, while the rest will have to be supported directly or indirectly by those who work.

People are out of work because the things they could produce are not being bought. With all our wealth, it is difficult to suppose that our consuming power has greatly diminished. It is not being exercised. It will help somewhat to increase public and private construction. But the principal consuming power in this country is in the people who have work. Unless they buy of the other fellow he can not buy of them.

If those who are working and have the means would pay all their retail merchandise bills and in addition purchase what they need and can afford, a healthy commerce would quickly be created. Our Nation has plenty of resources to support all its people comfortably through a mutual exchange of products if everyone will do his part. Those who have employment now run the risk of losing it by refraining from buying and paying within their means. No one who has money now can afford to defer settling his accounts.

BANK CRASH BRINGS 130 THEFT CHARGES

GRIECE, BUTTS ACCUSED

Norfolk, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—One hundred and thirty-four indictments charging officers of the defunct Guaranty Title & Trust Corporation with violation of the State banking act and with grand larceny were returned by a special corporation court grand jury here early tonight.

The trust corporation, which dealt chiefly in mortgage bonds and was rated as a $17,000,000 organization, went into bankruptcy June 25, 1929.

A. P. Griece, president of the corporation, was named in 132 of the indictments, two charging violations of the State banking act, and 130 charging grand larceny. Others named in the various true bills are:

Virginius Butts, vice president; John S. Persons, secretary-treasurer; J. H. Tatum, assistant to the manager of the bond department; A. H. Callow, manager of the bond department, F. W. McKinney, North Carolina representative of the concern, and C. F. Mears, in charge of delinquent loans.

The Guaranty Title and Trust Corporation, which did an extensive business in Virginia and North Carolina, first went into the hands of receivers in the State courts, but later was forced into bankruptcy upon plea of bond holders. Thousands of persons were said to have lost, some of them heavily, on their investments in mortgage bonds. These included a number of persons of small means, who claimed to have lost most of their savings.

Officials of the bankrupt concern blamed their troubles on the real estate market depression which forced values of property in Virginia, and particularly eastern North Carolina, down to levels less than the mortgages on which the sales of bonds were based.

$25,000 Damage Suit Filed Against Autoist

Claiming to have been struck down by an automobile and seriously injured last October 16 while waiting for a street car on North Capitol near M street, Joseph Shapiro, of 4411 Sixteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court, seeking to recover $25,000 damages from E. Clarence Rice, of 1028 Connecticut avenue northwest, said to be owner of the motor vehicle.

Shapiro alleges that he was severely injured, and was forced to remain in bed for sixteen weeks. He charges the driver of the car with negligence.

FULL TREATY NAVY NOT LABOR'S PLAN

Admiralty Lord, in Commons, Holds Maximuim Is Not Aim at Present.

115,000 TONS ON WAYS

London, July 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Labor government in Great Britain does not intend to build the British navy up to the full strength permitted by the London naval treaty, Albert Victor Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, intimated in the House of Commons here this afternoon.

This information was elicited by a question from Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Laborite for Hull, who asked the first lord what would be the estimated total cost of new building and replacements to provide the maximum tonnage allowed Great Britain under the treaty in order that such tonnage would be under age at the expiration of the treaty.

Mr. Alexander replied that it would be a complete waste of time to try to give such figures "since his majesty's government has no intention of building along the lines indicated."

Mr. Alexander later refused to reply to a definite question from a Tory member of the House, Maj. R. Ross, who asked: "Don't you propose to build even up to the inadequate limits provided for in the treaty?"

To another question from Mr. Ross, the first lord said that the approximate figures of naval tonnage now under construction or projected by the British Empire and the United States are: United States, 140,000 tons; the British Commonwealth of Nations, 115,000 tons.

These British figures, he explained, referred only to vessels actually authorized and for which money has been appropriated in this year's estimate, except that they included the

Former Bishop Pleads Not Guilty to Charge

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Former Bishop Charles Mrbena, of the Czechoslovakian old Catholic Orthodox Church in the United States, and nine codefendants, including two corporations, pleaded not guilty today to charges of bootlegging sacramental liquors. The case was put on the trial calendar for July 7.

Bail was fixed for the former bishop at $5,000, and for the others at from $1,500 to $2,500. The corporate defendants are the B. R. B. Trucking Co. and the Italian American Vineyard Co.

HOOVER'S PLAN FOR PACT VOTE STRIKES DELAY

SENATORS FAVORABLE TO TREATY DEPARTING

APATHY NOTICEABLE TOWARD DOCUMENT

Many Members Have Failed to Acquaint Themselves With Its Contents.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Delay in winding up the regular session of Congress threatens to play havoc with President Hoover's plan to force ratification of the London Naval Treaty at the forthcoming special session. Chances now are conceded to be about even as to whether the Senate will vote on the pact before November. And there is no certainty of a vote even at this remote date.

The administration's program of action, assiduously formulated by Senators Allen and Vandenberg of the Young Guard and designed to correct the more passive program of Senators Watson and Borah, has suffered severely by prolongation of the regular session.

Situation Has Changed.

It was hoped to have the treaty disposed of by July 1 and more than a score of senators tentatively promised to remain within call because they were assured that the treaty battle would be over by that date and that they would be free to return to their home States or to embark on much-needed vacations.

With delayed adjournment of the regular session, the situation has changed. There were 20 absentees when the vote on the veterans' bill was taken on Tuesday. Senators favorable to the treaty are, in a number of instances, engaging passage to Europe or returning to look after their political fences in anticipation of coming elections.

Robinson Has Gone Home.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who was a delegate to the London Conference and is expected to assume his share of the burden when the battle for ratification begins, found it necessary to leave Washington and look over his political fences in view of opposition facing him in primaries next month. Mr. Robinson expects to be back for the treaty fight, but having repaired his own political fences, he will not be in a position to deny other senators the same privilege and these other senators, in a number of cases, can not remain here without very

PENSIONS BILL IS RAILROADED TO CONFEREES

SLIGHT CHANCE SEEN FOR THEM TO CARRY

CONGRESS MAY CLOSE LONG SESSION TODAY

Some Hope Held for Wind-Up; Week-End Recess Regarded Possible.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The World War veterans' pension bill rested in conference last night with the indications that the proponents of the Senate higher rate would come out on the short end of the deal.

The steam roller functioned in the House earlier in the day and the bill was sent to conference. By this strategy of the House leaders the House members were denied, with the connivance of the Republican members, of course, a vote on the Senate increases. A special rule prescribing this procedure was voted by the Republicans 194 to 116 in the face of Democratic warnings that they were indirectly voting for the lower House rates.

Immediately the House disposed of the measure, Chairman Johnson of the House veterans' committee took it in hand and with his fellow Republican conferees, Representatives Luce and Perkins and with the Democratic appendages, Representatives Rankin and Jeffers training behind, went over to the Senate side of the Capitol to meet the Senate conferees.

Hold Two-hour Session.

The ten conferees sat around for two hours or so as if in a profound effort to strike an agreement between the Senate and the House scale. Mr. Rankin announced after the session that the House minority members were standing by the Senate rates. This means nothing in the final outcome, of course, unless they can get a Republican, Mr. Perkins, for example, to come over to their side.

Similarly, the majority of the Senate conferees, Senators Watson, Reed and Shortridge, are unfriendly to the Senate rates. This is one of the peculiarities about the Senate. It passes a bill, then conferees unfriendly to it are appointed to barter with the House members.

Senate Chances Slim.

There was considerable talk by the Republicans and in the corridors, however, of this being a "free" conference with the outcome to be a sincere compromise of the Senate

Boy, 10, Fights Blaze To Save Young Sister

Edna May Brown (left), 6, and her brother William, 10, are in Casualty Hospital. Edna May in critical condition from burns suffered when her dress caught fire. William fought the flames with bare hands.

Suffers Burns on Hands in Beating Out Flames on Child's Dress.

Love of a 10-year-old boy, William Bonner, for his 6-year-old sister, Edna May, swelled into an heroic scene yesterday afternoon when the little girl's dress caught fire and the boy attempted to beat out the flames with his bare hands.

Edna had just finished taking a music lesson from Mrs. Kathryn H. Arthur at 1117 East Capitol street, and William was receiving his. Waiting on the porch, Edna found a box of matches. Striking a match, she ignited the box and dropped it on her dress. Her screams attracted the teacher and brother.

Mrs. Arthur and the little boy beat out the flames with their bare hands. Mrs. Arthur did not require hospital treatment from the burns she received, but William was taken, with his sister, to Casualty Hospital.

The little girl may die. She is burned about the chest, neck, back, arms and thigh. The boy was released from the hospital after receiving treatment. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bonner, of 913 Massachusetts avenue northeast.

New Compromise Plan Would Hold Disputed $1,000,000 Back.

HOOVER COMMISSION WOULD DECIDE NEED

Conferees Pass byThorny Federal Contribution Clause of Measure.

NO ACTION IN SENATE ON HOUSE RESOLUTION

Failure of Bingham to Seek Emergency Vote Is Taken as Hopeful Sign.

The $44,000,000 appropriation bill for the District of Columbia will be passed, in the opinion of men at the Capitol who ought to know.

There is nothing tangible on which to base such a prediction. No agreement has been reached by the Senate and House conferees on the bill, nor can it be said that any is in sight.

Nevertheless, the belief persists that the bill will pass. Should Congress let it fail, it is pointed out, it would be admitting that it is unable to legislate for its ward, the District of Columbia.

Fight Is Not Partisan.

There is nothing partisan about the fight over the bill. Therefore, its failure would be blamed on the party in power.

In the meantime, the country at large is being acquainted with the situation that exists here. News articles have gone out telling how the city is technically "broke," and how the appropriation bill is tied up by a dispute over $1,000,000.

The Senate and House conferees met yesterday and began anew the task of disposing of the 100 or more controversial amendments in the appropriation bill, and they will meet again this morning at 10 o'clock.

Thorny Amendment Passed Over.

In the conference there was no mention of the amendment that brought about the deadlock—the fiscal relations amendment.

As the bill passed the House, it provided for a Federal contribution of $9,000,000. As it passed the Senate, it provided for a contribution of $12,000,000.

In the Senate and House conference, the senators agreed to compromise, to accept a Federal contribution of $10,000,000; but the representatives refused to go a penny above $9,000,000. It was the quarrel over this that brought about the present deadlock.

New Compromise Offered.

As has been said, there was no mention of the Federal contribution at yesterday's meeting of the conferees. There was talk of it elsewhere at the Capitol, however.

The House steering committee had presented to it a compromise plan calculated to save the bill. The author of the plan, who asked that his name not be used, said that it would permit both the Senate and the House to agree without either being forced to surrender on its convictions.

Under this plan, the Federal contribution would be placed at $10,000,000, with the understanding that $1,000,000 would be set aside until a commission created by the President could decide whether or not such a contribution was justified. If the commission found that $9,000,000 was fair, the extra million would be returned to the Federal Treasury; if it found $10,000,000 to be fair, the District would keep the extra million.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, chief Senate conferee on the bill, yesterday failed to ask Senate action on the emergency resolution adopted by the House on Monday, and this was regarded as another indication that hope was held out for passage of the regular $44,000,000 appropriation bill.

The resolution would continue as much of the 1930 appropriation as is

HYDE LAUDS TARIFF AS ITALY HITS BACK

SENATOR PRAISES BILL

(Associated Press.)

An obstacle arose in the path of America's chief export commodity yesterday while a Cabinet officer was praising the new tariff law as one which reduced disparity in protection that has existed between agricultural and industrial products.

Officials refrained from comment upon the Italian decree raising the import duty or automobiles between 110 and 125 per cent pending a report from agents of the Commerce Department. No official notice of the action had been received from the Italian government.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, looked upon the action as subject to a double interpretation. He considered it might be either a method of forcing American manufacturers to establish plants abroad, or a retaliatory measure against the new tariff law.

The law itself was praised in a speech by Secretary Hyde over the radio as one which was a distinct gain for agriculture in that it provided increased protection for agricultural products.

The last communication that the State Department had received from

TREASURY ADVANCES BUILDING PROGRAM

FURTHER HOOVER IDEAS

(Associated Press.)

Speeding up President Hoover's program for expanding public building construction to relieve unemployment, the Treasury has awarded contracts for $32,480,000 of new Government construction since January 1 and expects to have another $85,735,500 of construction under way before the end of the year.

The announcement of the progress of the building program was made at the Treasury last night in a statement which said in the last six months contracts for 39 new projects had been awarded at a cost of $28,000,000 in 26 States, the District of Columbia and Hawaii. Eight of them were for buildings costing more than $1,000,000 each.

In addition to the new contracts, the Treasury has let 3,800 others for repair, remodeling, equipment and miscellaneous projects costing $4,480,000. Thirty-six projects costing $40,000,000 were under way last January 1, bringing the total of the Government's present building activities to $72,480,000.

The expanded program contemplated that $92,000,000 worth of Government construction would be

Bobby Jones Greeted Joyfully in New York

Golf Champion Hailed on Broadway With Firecrackers.

By LORENA A. HICKOK.

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—"The Atlanta of the North and the New York of the South"—the phrase is Mayor James J. Walker's—got together today and welcomed back to his homeland the British amateur and open golf champion.

Before they were half through with him, they had that promising young Georgia lawyer, Robert Tyre Jones, jr., fairly gasping for breath and looking about almost wildly as if for some avenue of escape.

On the steps of the City Hall he tried to tell his adoring home folks and those thousands of New Yorkers who had demonstrated to him how all the world loves a golfer how grateful he was, but he found it a tough job.

"All this has overwhelmed me," he said huskily. "It—it's put me off my game."

To the jubilant strains of "Dixie," young Bob, of Atlanta, came aboard the municipal tug Macom from the liner Europa at quarantine.

Up the harbor he came while sirens screamed, airplanes roared and swooped, and a fire tug played streams of water high in the air.

Alongside the Macom came the excursion steamer Mandalay, loaded with exultant Atlantans and carrying the New York Police Band.

And bobbing joyfully about in between, like a playful terrier, was the

Through paper snow and ticker tape, with firecrackers popping to the right and left of him, he rode up lower Broadway to the City Hall, to be greeted by the mayor of New York, who calls Atlanta his second home.

"Less than a week ago," said Mayor Walker, "New York welcomed a man who had brought the two poles together, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Mother Sets 'Chute Record With Drop of 15,000 Feet

Hands Numbed With Cold, She Uses Special "Rig" to Pull Cord.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 2 (A.P.). Equipped with a device to take the task of opening her parachute from her own numbed hands, Mrs. Rita Schoemaker leaped from a plane more than 15,000 feet in the air today to establish a new woman's record for altitude jumping.

In a cabin plane the young broker's secretary, who came from a Chicago home to make her way in the money marts of Manhattan, flew upward until lost to sight and until her fingers stiffened with the cold and her heart pounded in the thin air.

When between 15,000 and 16,000 feet up, she opened the door and walked out. A 10-foot rope was secured at one end to the plane and at the other to the ring of her parachute's ripcord, so the umbrella opened without any action on her part.

She floated easily downward, rubbing her chin, which had been

Portland, Me., July 2 (A.P.).—Lieut. Yantis H. Taylor landed his Army pursuit plane at the Portland Airport at 6:25 p. m., E. S. T., today, completing a one-day flight from Laredo, Tex.

Lieut. Taylor left the Texas field at 1:10 a. m. (C. S. T.) and made six stops en route.

Lieut. Taylor's flight was made in the interest of Army tactics to establish mobility possibilities in case of emergency.

needed for bare running expenses. If it should be enacted, the building project provided for in the 1931 bill would be postponed for a year, and hundreds of men would be thrown out of work.

As the resolution was passed by the House, it provided for a Federal contribution of $9,000,000. When it reached the Senate appropriations committee, that body struck out all but the enacting clause. Then it tacked on its own version of the 1931 bill, which provides for a Federal contribution of $12,000,000.

In this form, the resolution now is before the Senate with a favorable report from the appropriations committee.

Simmons at White House.

Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, was a visitor at the White House yesterday, but he explained upon his return to the Capitol that he had called on the President simply to introduce some of his constituents. The appropriation bill, he said, was not discussed.

It was Mr. Simmons who suggested that the Senate and House conferees resume consideration of the amendments in the bill other than the amendment dealing with the Federal contribution.

He had tried to get these other amendments disposed of when the Senate and House conferees first met more than a month ago, but the fight over the contribution interfered.

Scientist Not to Get Man Doomed to Die

New Mexican Volunteers to Be Subject in Research With Trachoma.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., July 2 (A.P.).—Interest in the quest of science for some person who will volunteer for trachoma experiments in New Mexico turned today from Woo Dak San, Chinese under death sentence at the state Penitentiary, to an Albuquerque man who has volunteered himself for the experiment in a letter to Gov. C. C. Dillon.

The name of the man who wrote the governor that he would submit to experiments to assist scientists in proving whether they have succeeded in isolating the germ causing trachoma, an infectious eye disease, was withheld, at least temporarily.

Abandonment of the proposal to ask Woo Dak San to volunteer was announced today after a conference between the governor and Dr. Francis I. Proctor, oculist, of Boston, who has been interested in trachoma research for more than 35 years.

Gov. Dillon said he had received many protests against the proposal to experiment with the condemned man.

Fisher Body Plant Scene of Walkout

Only 75 Actually Quit, Say Flint Officials; Parade Numbers 2,000.

Flint, Mich., July 2 (A.P.).—A street demonstration and parade today revealed that some employes of the Fisher Body Corporation had walked out yesterday in protest against a readjutsment of wages. The demonstration, in which it was estimated 2,000 persons were on the streets, passed without casualties.

Officials of the corporation said that "not more than 75 men actually walked out" yesterday, but that their absence broke the lines and prevented others from working. Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons have been employed in the plant in recent weeks.

R. J. Whiting, manager of the plant, denied that the wage readjustments affecting piece workers carried reductions. Readjustments were necessary, he said, because of "extensive model changes." He added that it is the policy of the management "to maintain the average daily earning rates." No changes had been made in the trimming department, where the walkout occurred, he said.

Man Flees Police, Then Shoots Self

Traveler Races Over Hotel Roof, Jumps and Puts Bullet in Head.

Cincinnati, July 2 (A.P.).—Earl Mullard, 28 years old, magazine solicitor, address unknown, but believed to have come here from Philadelphia, committed suicide today as a climax to his desperate attempt to escape from police.

A shot from his own revolver ended his life less than a minute after he was shot by a detective as he ran across the top of a hotel building.

Detectives from the police pawn shop squad, searching for pawners of stolen jewelry, asked Mullard to step inside the hotel where they searched him for weapons. Mullard unexpectedly started to run, with the officers at his heels. The man reached the roof, ran across the top of the building and jumped just as the detectives came into view. On landing he shot himself. At Mullard's apartment police reported finding a revolver holster and many jewels, alleged to have been stolen.

LAW INQUIRY FUNDS ARE VOTED BY HOUSE

LOESCH UNDER ATTACK

By a substantial majority the House yesterday indorsed the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission's investigations in all phases of its work and voted funds for its expenses for a second year.

Administration leaders, and drys on both sides, overwhelmed a group of wets, 272 to 41, and restored to the second deficiency bill $250,000 and a reappropriation of $88,000 in unexpended funds for continuation of the commission.

The item will be considered today by House and Senate conferees on the deficiency measure and an agreement is expected before noon so the Senate may take final action on the same day. Chairman Jones of the Senate finance committee has agreed to a demand by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, for a separate vote in the Senate on the item.

Allotment Stricken Out.

When the measure was first before the House, the allotment was stricken out on a point of order by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, on the ground that legal authority for the commission expired July 1. The Senate allowed $50,000 for the commission and only provided for inquiry into prohibition. President Hoover then said he would procure private funds for the commission's other work.

Republican leaders yesterday secured adoption by the House of a resolution to authorize continuation of the commission's unrestricted law enforcement inquiry.

A motion by Chairman Wood of the House appropriations committee to increase the allotment to $250,000 and reallot the unexpended balance then was approved.

Member of Commission Hit.

During the brief debate, Frank J. Loesch, a member of the commission, was attacked by Representatives O'Connor and Dickstein (Democrats), New York, who charged he had said the Jews and ItaMans were largely responsible for gangsters' organizations.

O'Connor said Loesch had made "remarks of an unscrupled gentleman" in saying that "the Jews furnish the brains and the Italians the brawn" for gangster rings.

Dickstein charged that Loesch had been unfair and discriminatory in his remarks against aliens, Jews and Italians.

O'Connor, a member of the rules committee, said it was difficult to supply reasonable logic for the action of Congress in supplying the fund, asserting that if it were not for prohibition there would have been no Law Enforcement Commission and "the Government would not have to spend a dollar, were prohibition not in force."

Tariff Reprisals Favored in France

Customs Group Says New U. S. Rates Will Hinder War Debt Payments.

Paris, July 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The new American tariffs will cause a serious cut in French exportations and will render it difficult for Europe to make war debt and other payments to the United States, according to a statement issued here today by the national customs committee.

This committee, which has been studying the probable effects of new tariffs, further declared that there is only one way to remedy the situation—for France in future to accord most favored nation treatment only to countries "which give corresponding treatment to France and do not raise their tariffs to a point which prohibits commercial exchange."

If any country—meaning the United States—refuses to meet France on an equal tariff policy, the customs committee urges, the government here should retaliate by withdrawing most favored nation treatment and raising corresponding tariff barriers.

PENDING LAW CASES SET NEW HIGH MARK

195 LIQUOR CONVICTIONS

Due to the large number of prohibition arrests made in the District during the past several months and inadequate jury trial conditions, the United States attorney's offices in Police Court find they have more pending cases hanging over from the last fiscal year than in any previous year. This was indicated yesterday when Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of the prohibition office, and Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray, in charge of the office handling miscellaneous cases, made their reports for the fiscal year ended June 30 to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Mr. Hart reported that at the close of business June 30 he had 376 cases on his docket compared to 160 on June 30, 1929. Mr. Murray reported only 270 cases hanging over compared with 339 left over on June 30, 1929.

During the last fiscal year 1,793 liquor cases were submitted to the office of Mr. Hart, which, with the 160 from the previous year, made a total of 1,953. Of these 1,577 were given judicial attention, the remainder being nolle prossed or ignored because of lack of evidence or due to illegal search and seizure. Of the 1,577 cases that were deemed fit for prosecution, 195 resulted in conviction, 689 in pleas of guilty and 209 were sent to the grand jury. The others are being carried over.

Liquor law violators were assessed fines totaling $155,825, but only $28,230.38 of this sum was paid, the remainder being suspended or left unpaid by defendants who decided to take an alternative jail sentence.

In the other division Mr. Murray reported handling 7,752 cases. A total of 1,333 persons were convicted, 1,663 enter pleas of guilty, while 843 were sent to the grand jury. The remaining cases are either being carried over or else have resulted in acquittals or have been ignored or nolle prossed.

Most of the cases being carried over in the two divisions are those wherein defendants have demanded jury trials.

MRS. SHEETS IS WED TO SENATOR SMOOT

STAYING AT HIS HOME

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 2 (A.P.). Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, and his bride, formerly Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets, Salt Lake City church and society leader, are honeymooning at Provo, Utah, the senator's home, for a few days before leaving for Honolulu.

They were married here today in the Latter Day Saints' Temple, the ceremony being performed by Heber J. Grant, president of that church, in the presence of a few intimate friends and church authorities.

The senator and Mrs. Smoot, after emerging from the temple, left immediately for Provo, where they will spend a few days before leaving for San Francisco the middle of July. They will sail from that port for Honolulu on July 19.

Mrs. Sheets, a widow since 1918, wore a white crepe gown and coat, with accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Smoot wore plain street clothes.

The wedding was a quiet affair and no reception was held after the ceremony. The engagement had been rumored here for several weeks, but was not formally announced until Mr. Smoot returned from Washington last Saturday. His first wife died a year ago.

Bolivian General Shuns a Presidency

Blanco, Directorate Head, Urges Economy; Civilian Advisers Named.

La Paz, Bolivia, July 2 (A.P.).—Gen. Galindo Blanco, head of the military directorate which has ruled Bolivia since the overthrow last week of the Hernando Siles government, said today he would not be a candidate for president at the forthcoming national convention. Gen. Blanco, who is attempting to bring stability to his country, warned his people to spend with care.

"We are a poor country," he continued, "and poorly must we live. We must face realities and not be deceived by the fabulous riches supposed to be inherent in our country, nor are we going to spend foolishly."

In an effort to bring other than military men into the government, the directorate today appointed several civilian advisers. Thomas Manuel Elio, former foreign minister, and David Alevistegui, one of Bolivia's delegates to the Bolivian-Paraguayan conference in Washington, have been assigned to the foreign office.

LOOP GANG AMBUSH LINKED WITH LINGLE

JURY ACTION SURPRISE

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—The attempted massacre of Jack Zuta and three other gangsters ambushed by gunmen on State street in the Loop last night developed new phases today in the inquiry into the assassination of Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter, whose reputed "unholy alliance" with the underworld brought a bullet into his head and caused police to declare hostilities with hoodlums.

As police scrutinized motives and clews of the State street assault, a grand jury indictment was returned against Frankie Foster, gunman arrested in Los Angeles, accusing him of the Lingle slaying. George Dullard, another gangster allied with Zuta in the "Bugs" Moran gang, blamed by some for killing Lingle, was released, although at the time of his arrest he was said to be the man who "put the finger on Lingle," pointing him out to the slayer.

Lieut. George Barker, former ace of the Detective Bureau, was suspended for acting as escort for Zuta and the three other hoodlums who were targets of the loop ambush. Barker alone fought off the gunmen, who escaped in their auto after dropping a smoke bomb. Two wild bullets from the gunplay killed one man, a street car motorman, and wounded another.

Were Released on Bond.

Zuta and other Moran gangsters had been arrested in connection with the Lingle case, and were en route home from the police station after their release on bond when the gunmen attacked them. Police said they thought the gunmen sought to "get" Zuta and his pals as a reprisal for Lingle's death, on the theory that the Moran-Zuta crowd "got" Lingle as revenge for the reporter's activities in using his influence to aid the rival Al Capone gang.

This theory, however, did not dovetail with the indictment of Foster as Lingle's slayer, since Foster is reputed to have switched his alliance to the Capone outfit, deserting the Moran gang. Lingle was reported to have favored the Capone interests, and the indictment of Foster was somewhat unexpected generally, police having said Foster was not the killer. The indicted gunman, however, had been named as the purchaser of the pistol dropped by the killers beside Lingle's body, and Foster also was supposed to know considerable about what was taking place.

Foster, advices from Los Angeles said, would not oppose extradition to Chicago. He said he had a good alibi, but the Chicago detectives who trailed him to the coast said "We have plenty on him."

None Appeared in Court.

Neither Zuta nor any of his pals appeared in court today for their arraignment on disorderly conduct charges on which they were released last night on bond.

They were sought as witnesses at the inquest into the motorman's death, but were not found, and the inquest was continued. Lieut. Barker said he believed Zuta would be able to identify the assailants.

Later Albert Blatz, one of the Moran hoodlums, was arrested at his home. He said he knew nothing about the gang affairs, contending he was an official of a cleaners and dyers company. He ccarried $600 in his pockets when arrested. He was held for questioning.

Leo Hart Also Held.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 2 (A.P.).—Another Chicago gangster today was added to the imprisoned companions of Frankie Foster, indicted in Chicago for the murder of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Tribune reporter. Leo Hart, brother of Marvin Apler, alias Harry Holdley, walked into police headquarters to whisper information to the arrested gangster. An alert detective grabbed him.

He was placed with his fellows, who were being moved from police headquarters to the county jail.

King said Hart had been hunted since the others were arrested. Consequent to advices from Chicago that Foster was the only one wanted there, officials said the sextet and Foster's wife would be held until tomorrow at least. All are under technical charges of suspicion of murder.

"Oh, yeah," was Foster's comment to announcement he had been indicted for Lingle's murder. "Well, somebody had to be the goat. I was handy, so they elected me." He said he would not fight extradition.

Kentuckian to Run On Wet Platform

Congressional Candidate Breaks With Party on Repeal Plank.

Newport, Ky., July 2 (A.P.).—Blaine McLaughlin, city solicitor, today termed the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act the "twin insanities of legislation" and said he will run on an independent wet platform for election to Congress in November from the Sixth Kentucky district.

McLaughlin, a lifelong Democrat, said he broke away from his party the first time in order to make prohibition and repeal of the liquor laws the paramount issue in the fall election. He is serving his third term as city solicitor and formerly was county attorney of Campbell County.

Brent Spence is unopposed for the Democratic congressional nomination at the primaries, which will be held August 2. Representative J. Lincoln Newhall is opposed by Mrs. Marie Haller, Fort Thomas, for the Republican nomination. Mrs. Haller, like McLaughlin, has based her campaign on a wet platform.

COMMERCE GROUP FOR LONDON PACT

Chamber's President Sends Letter to Senate Praising Battleship Holiday.

DEFENSE HELD GUARDED

Support of the London Naval Treaty by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was pledged yesterday by William Butterworth, president of the organization, in a letter to members of the Senate. The letter followed a meeting of the board of directors at which it was decided to support the pact, now before the Senate.

Explaining the board had reached the conclusion that the London Treaty "does not jeopardize adequate defense," the letter expressed hope that it would be "ratified and made effective at an early date."

In making the letter public, Mr. Butterworth also issued a statement which said a study of the treaty from an economic viewpoint "brings to light some material advantages and also some savings in cost through the battleship holiday" by limiting maintenance and construction costs up to 1936.

"While objections by naval experts must be given due consideration," the statement concluded, "yet it would seem, in view of the relative significance of the questions at issue, that the treaty does not jeopardize adequate military preparedness and represents an important step toward effective reduction of armament and of the continuation of the leadership which the Government of the United States has taken toward the establishment of enduring peace in the world."

INJUNCTION ACTION OVER REFUEL FUNDS

suit filed by five men who claim ownership of stock in the corporation formed last year to promote the endurance flights of the plane called "Chicago We Will."

Claim to Own Plane.

The suit charges that the "City of Chicago" is the same plane as the "Chicago We Will" and still belongs to the corporation bearing the latter name.

Wilson Herren, one of the defendants, said that neither he nor the Hunters were connected with the "We Will" Corporation.

Herren explained that he and the Hunters purchased "The City of Chicago" from the corporation after many unsuccessful attempts for an endurance record had been made with it. It was at that time named the "Chicago We Will."

Flying Brothers Tire.

Meanwhile the Hunter Brothers were growing a little tired of their long grind in the air. Early in the afternoon, just before the 191st contact with the "Big Ben" for refueling, they were cheered on by Wing Commander Kingsford-Smith of Australia, who circled Sky Harbor as he arrived in his around-the-world plane, "Southern Cross."

Their motor was functioning smoothly. Word went around the airport they intended to remain in the air until Sunday night to take advantage of the increased gate receipts during the Fourth of July and Sunday.

This was in spite of a note dropped by Kenneth early today in which he said he was getting tired and wanted to land. John followed Kenneth's complaint with a message to his sister, who is ill in Danville, N. Y., saying he wanted to stay in the air until Monday.

"Beans" Would Quit.

"Beans" (Kenneth) is fretting and wants to come down at 520 hours, he said.

The 520th hour will be reached at 7:40 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorow. At that time an offer of $100 an hour from the oil company which is furnishing fuel will expire. The offer amounts to $10,000 if the 520th hour is reached.

At 4:40 o'clock, when they were 85 hours ahead of the previous world's record, they had earned $10,005, not including the commission they are to receive from the airport gate receipts.

Two Planes, Alternating Crews, to Seek Record

New York, July 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two gaudy but tough Stinson Juniors will take the air at Roosevelt Field in about a week or ten days and do their utmost to stay there for at least two months in an attempt to break all existing refueling endurance records, including that being established by the Hunter brothers in Chicago.

This grueling task will not fall entirely on the two sets of pilots who take off in the planes, as the plan is to have alternating crews man the ships. Each crew will remain aloft about 72 hours, to be replaced then by relief pilots who will climb aboard on rope ladders dropped to another plane.

The three Stinson Juniors which will participate—one as refueling ship—arrived at Roosevelt Field today from Detroit, in charge of Capt. John S. Donaldson, Jack Charleson and Tex Anding, three of the men who will take part in the endurance flight.

Radio sets will be installed on the planes and they will be got in readiness for a take-off about July 10 or 15.

The Visalia, Calif., high school agricultural club is using a tractor built by its members from materials obtained in junk yards.

HOOVER PLAN TO HAVE PACT VOTED UPON STRIKES SNAG

serious sacrifices, according to their own statements.

As a result of circumstances, over which the President has had no control, the task of forcing a vote by wearing down the opposition has day by day become more difficult. Statements against the pact, including the minority report of the foreign relations committee, have made an impression, but there is so far nothing to show any great change in the line-up for or against the treaty. In the absence of information as to what the treaty contains there are more than enough supporters of the pact to assure ratification, if a vote could be had in the near future.

Apathy Toward Treaty.

But there is at present a marked apathy respecting the treaty. More than a majority have scarcely given it a thought and have purposely refrained from studying its terms or its effect. They are thoroughly fatigued from the long grind of their legislative labors and many of them are hoping that it will not be necessary for them to go through a determined or prolonged battle over the treaty until they have had a rest.

Thus, there is growing support for a plan to meet in special session, in response to the President's call, await the first week's developments and then vote to recess until November if a real fight over the treaty looms.

This plan has the support of several distinct groups. The group opposing the treaty favors it. The group which is inclined to favor any arms limitation treaty, but is opposed to methods employed in this particular instance, favors it. Another group, which objects to undue haste in disposing of a matter so important as the London treaty, is also ready to vote for a recess. Senators who say it is imperative for them to leave Washington early in July, but hesitate to leave before the special session has been called, are inclined to favor a recess until November.

Fall Elections Prove Factor.

Still another group, composed of senators who realize they will be targets for attack in their respective States if they vote for the treaty, now indicate a desire to see the fall elections out of the way before the treaty is voted on.

Opposed to these groups are senators who have fallen in line wholeheartedly with President Hoover's direction that the Senate vote on the pact before the summer vacations. A small group consisting of Senators Reed, Robinson, Fess, Allen, Vandenberg and Swanson are ready to take an aggressive stand for speedy action. Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, is ready to lead the fight for ratification and is ready to stay here all summer if necessary. But he is apparently not willing to resort to cloture, or to stifle debate or to break any speed records in obtaining a vote.

Had the regular session adjourned a week ago prospects for speedy ratification would have been greatly enhanced. As matters now stand the first few days of the special session will probably determine whether there is to be a brief debate with agreement to vote or whether signs of a real battle will precipitate a vote for a recess until the fall.

Hoover Urges Action On Treaty to Senators

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover has written the 24 Senators who last week requested postponement of consideration of the London Naval Treaty that the "National interest" demands that the pact be "dealt with at the earliest possible date."

The letter was writte in n replay to a petition signed by Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, and 23 of his colleagues, asking postponement. The letter said:

"I have your letter of June 24 enclosing the request of a number of Senators that the proposed extra session of the Senate be deferred until next December.

"I realize fully the great strain which has been placed upon the Senate by the long continued session. On the other hand, the national interest in having the naval treaty brought to a conclusion is so great, I feel that I must ask that it should be dealt with at the earliest possible date."

British government's recently announced program for 1930 and the 1929 submarine program, for which a supplementary estimate will shortly be introduced. Mr. Alexander estimated that the total cost of the 1930 program, plus the three submarines of the 1929 program, will be roughly $52,500,000, including cost of guns, torpedoes and ammunition. The forthcoming supplementary estimate for this year's construction, he added, will be only about $1,000,000.

Lip Reading by Television Successfully Transmitted

Silent Speech for Deaf Demonstrated Publicly for First Time in Experiment as Two Girls, Hard of Hearing, Exchange Messages.

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Silent speech for the deafened, a dream of Alexander Graham Bell, was transmitted publicly by telephone for the first time here today.

It was done by lip reading over the television circuit of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Two partly-deaf young women held conversation and talked with strangers.

Miss Evelyn Parry, who is unable to hear even ordinary conversation, sat before the televisor at the Bell Laboratories, 2 miles away, at the other end, sat Miss Marie Piess, whose hearing is 60 per cent impaired. She is a teacher of lip reading. Miss Parry is one of her pupils and winner of this year's lip-reading championship of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing.

Each could see the other's face in natural colors, the size it would appear if they sat about 10 feet apart. Newspapermen watched the little drama through the monitor's peep holes and listened with special phone attachments.

"Hello, Evelyn," said Miss Piess. "I am to start the conversation. Some reporters are waiting to talk to you." Then Miss Piess, who did not know reporters were eavesdropping, began to talk about mutual social affairs.

But only for a few words, for the voice of the almost totally deafened girl at the other end broke in:

"Oh! I can hear every word."

Today's demonstration was possibly the first practical addition to television of the personal, interpretative touch which its advocates predict it will introduce into the world of communications.

Bell, inventor of the telephone, though of normal hearing, taught lip reading. Some of the financial support that enabled him to perfect the telephone came from persons of wealth whose acquaintance he formed through teaching lip reading to members of their households. Relatives of Bell were present at a preliminary test a few days ago, held to learn whether today's public demonstration might succeed.

RAILWAY'S EMPLOYE HAS PERFECT RECORD

50 Years of Service Without Reprimand Concluded by R. C. McLane.

RETIRES AMID HONORS

Completing 50 years of continuous service without an error, mishap or reprimand of any kind, Robert C. McLane, 70, of 4328 Fifteenth street northwest, yesterday retired as conductor on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad.

Mr. McLane entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad at York, Pa., in 1880. Within four years he had been promoted to passenger conductor, and was later transferred to the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad. When the Pennsylvania and R. F. & P. merged, he entered the latter's service. At one time he was station master at the old Sixth Street Station here.

During his early days of railroading, when it was much more hazardous than it is today, Conductor McLane had as his passengers such distinguished figures as Presidents Grover Cleveland, William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, not to mention scores of internationally known dignitaries.

Mr. McLane has been a thirty-second degree Mason for many years, and was known as one of the most active members of the Order of Railway Conductors. He received numerous compliments and congratulatory messages yesterday from railway officials and friends in many parts of the country.

Senator Backs Sleman For District Court Post

The name of Paul Sleman, chairman of the Republican State central committee for Montgomery County, and prominent Washington lawyer, was presented to President Hoover yesterday by Senator Goldsborough, Republican, of Maryland, for consideration in connection with the appointment of two additional members of the Court of Appeals for the District. Mr. Sleman lives in Chevy Chase, Md.

Senator Goldsborough also discussed the appointment of a United States attorney for Baltimore to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, who has been appointed chief of prohibition enforcement. The senator said that he has received the names of ten applicants for the post, but that he had not made a selection as yet.

Four Avoid Hurts In Two Collisions

Ambulance and Auto Hit at Tenth and U; Sedan Is Turned Over.

Four persons escaped injury in two automobile wrecks yesterday morning.

Colliding at Tenth and U streets northwest, an ambulance from the Compensation Hospital and a sedan were extensively damaged. Street car traffic was blocked until passengers assisted in removing the wrecked machines. The ambulance was in charge of Julius Epps, colored, of 1524 Thirty-second street northwest. The sedan was operated by Edward Hitchens, chauffeur to William H. Mann, of 1936 Sixteenth street northwest, police reported.

A touring car crashed into a small sedan at Thirteenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. The smaller car was turned over on its top. The touring car was driven by George Brice, colored, of Tenth street between M and N streets northwest. The sedan was operated by F. E. Masi, of 4108 Legation street northwest.

The steady growth in volume of Post Classified ads bears testimony of satisfactory results.

BREWSTER RELEASE BY GLOTH IMMINENT

BARRERE STILL SOUGHT

Private Howard L. Brewster, whose alternate admissions and denials of the killing of Mary Baker resulted in issuance of a murder warrant against him, will be released from Arlington County Jail, according to Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth.

Mr. Gloth's decision followed recent developments in the case, among which was recovery of the murder weapon. The new angles have prompted Mr. Gloth to consider his release, but Sheriff Howard R. Fields, of Arlington County, in whose custody Brewster is held, had not received any instructions yesterday to free the soldier.

Sheriff Fields declared that the prisoner will remain in jail until he receives the release order. Mr. Gloth has not intimated when it will be issued. He prefers to confer with Capt. A. R. Bolling, head of the Headquarters Company and Brewster's superior officer, before taking action.

Capt. Bolling is now on leave and could not be reached yesterday by Mr. Gloth. Capt. Bolling has expressed his intention of requesting a dishonorable discharge from the Army for the prisoner because of the unpleasant notoriety he attracted to the unit.

Inspector William S. Shelby and Mr. Gloth are convinced in the light of recent events that Brewster had no connection with the crime. Two weeks ago Mr. Gloth considered Brewster a vitally important witness.

Herman H. Barrere, World War veteran and itinerant painter, who had access to the home of Herbert M. Campbell, Arlington County realtor who owned the murder gun, is still being sought by police. "The man with the wart on his nose," who queried Campbell regarding the gun before its discovery in Campbell's real estate office, is also sought.

Kensington Bridge Bid Is Submitted

Baltimore Firm Offers to Construct New Span for $20,764.

Bids for four bridges, including a span at Kensington, in Montgomery County, Md., were received by the Maryland State Roads Commission at a meeting in Baltimore yesterday. The low bid on the Kensington bridge was submitted by the Baltimore firm of Ligon & Ligon, which bid $20,764.50.

Contracts will not be awarded until recommendations of Chief Engineer Harry D. Williar, jr., are placed before the commission. Construction of a new bridge over the Monocacy River at Frederick Junction, replacing the span which recently collapsed, causing death to three persons, has been authorized at a cost of $51,000, the commission announced. Work is expected to start about July 25.

The Furnace Ford bridge on the Rockville pike, which is carrying the bulk of traffic detoured from the collapsed structure, is being strongly reinforced to meet increased traffic demands, Mr. Williar stated.

WASHINGTON TRUCKS STOPPED BY POLICE

Officers at College Park Force Firm to Secure Maryland Tags.

DRIVERS FORFEIT BONDS

Activity of Maryland State police yesterday resulted in a number of Washington trucks being withdrawn from a construction job at College Park and replaced with trucks bearing Maryland tags.

The trucks belonged to the Latimer Construction Co. and had been dispatched Tuesday to Berwyn, where they were loading sand and gravel to be used in the construction of the new Episcopal Church at College Park. State Policeman J. E. Taylor, of the Laurel substation, cast his eagle eye over the some 20 trucks on the job and discovered they bore District of Columbia tags. He ordered the drivers to suspend operations immediately and to secure Maryland tags and chauffeurs' permits before resuming work.

Sergt. G. P. Gearhart, in charge of the substation, was appealed to by the foreman of the construction company and he granted an hour's extension to unload trucks that had been loaded, but upheld the action of the policeman. The trucks went back to their temporary headquarters to wait further instructions.

Two of the truck drivers were arrested by Policeman Taylor on charges of failing to come to a halt before entering an arterial highway. The drivers, Jack R. Simms and Roland Duprny, both of Washington, protested that no stop sign had been erected at the point at which they were stopped.

The policeman and Justice of the Peace George Phillips, of Berwyn, insisted, however, that Maryland law requires a halt before entering such roads whether or not a stop sign is erected, and the two drivers were held on collateral to appear in Hyattsville branch of county police court yesterday but failed to appear and forfeited collateral.

Several weeks ago the compulsioner of motor vehicles ordered that trucks operating in Maryland must have Maryland license tags unless they were delivering merchandise from Washington or carrying merchandise from Maryland to Washington and not operating on regular schedules.

When work was resumed yesterday on the project all of the trucks engaged in hauling the gravel bore Maryland truck tags.

Prince Georges County Police Court had a busy day yesterday, the first in its new Hyattsville quarters at the Olive Street School, where court is being held in the basement during the summer season. The new location is cooler and cleaner and much less noisy. No session of the court will be held tomorow in observance of the Fourth of July.

Two women were before the court yesterday in prohibition cases. One was acquitted and the other fined. Mrs. Virginia Beatley was acquitted when her husband, Clarence Beatley, pleaded guilty to charges of transportation and possession of intoxicants. The husband elected to serve six months in the House of Correction because he could not pay a fine of $200.

Beatley told the court that he had just taken up this new profession in an effort to make money. He said he had been out of work for some time. He said this was the first load. He was arrested by County Policeman Claude Reese near Berwyn on the Baltimore boulevard. His wife was riding in the car with him.

Mrs. K. Hildreth, of Edmonston, in pleading guilty to charges of illegal possession of home brew, told the court that she had been trying to make a living for her younger sister and daughter by selling beer. She was fined $50.

Charles Redmond, of Colmar Manor, was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction when he was convicted of charges of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Mrs. Annie Redmond. The wife charged that he had beaten and kicked her until her body was black and blue all over.

The Post regrets the mistake.

FOUR CANDIDATES TALK

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Chairman W. F. P. Reid of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday appointed Supervisor Mark Turner, of Dranesville district, as Fairfax County's representative on the Washington region highway committee. This was done in response to a letter from Col. U. S. Grant, of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, requesting the board's assistance in preparing a coordinate plan of regional highway development for the Washington metropolitan area. County Engineer F. Novelle Larkin was also appointed to assist Supervisor Turner.

Another letter was received by the Board of Supervisors at yesterday's meeting from Representative R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, in regard to the board's refusal to give the Federal Government title in fee simple to a small tract of land at the entrance to the Mount Vernon estate. At a meeting of the board last spring the Federal Government was granted a perpetual easement to use this property, but the county would not give absolute title.

It was charged at yesterday's meeting that officials of the Bureau of Public Roads were dilatory and obstinate in that while allowing points of entrance to the highway to citizens they are not allowed to connect their driveways to the new Memorial highway. Another thing the board objected to was the Government's heavy trucks tearing up and ruining the River road. This road is very heavily traveled and is kept up at a great cost to the county compared to the other roads.

Claims of 49 persons against the county dog fund for sheep and other animals killed by stray dogs not their own amounted to $1,067.40. These claims include rabbits, sheep, calves, hogs, goats, turkeys and chickens that were killed during last year. They were ordered paid.

Fairfax County's share in the State gasoline tax for last month amounts to $4,545.68, which was divided among the six magisterial districts. The report of County Engineer Larkin shows expenditures made on the roads of the county last month as follows: Centerville district—Bond issue, maintenance roads, $1,327.48; district roads, $323.48. Dranesville district — Bond issue, roads, $548.41; district roads, $1,380.66. Falls Church district—Bond issue, roads, $1,241.83; district roads, $849.49; Lee district—Bond issue, roads, $1,337.37; district roads, $1,909.80. Mount Vernon district—Bond issue, roads, $976.37; district roads, $219.30. Providence district—Bond issue, $1,278; district roads, $3,017.37.

A letter was received from A. Willis Robertson, chairman of the committee of State game and inland fisheries, asking the cooperation of the county board in enforcing the game, fish and dog laws in the county. He suggests to the county that it supplement the salary of the game warden $25 a month. This would give the local board a direct claim upon his services. The new game code passed by the last Legislature eliminated the $2.50 fee paid to officers for killing stray and sheep-killing dogs. The law also relieved the county boards from necessity of paying bounties for killing predatory animals and birds, making it discretionary with the local board. This matter was laid on the table at yesterday's meeting.

Mrs. Louise S. Manghum, county welfare worker, filed a report regarding use of the Old County's Alms House just outside of Fairfax as a detention home for women and children. She stated in her report that she had conferred with representatives of neighboring counties and that most of them were favorable to establishing this home on a cooperative basis.

The county board of tax equalization and assessors appeared before yesterday's meeting explaining its work and showing what it had accomplished during the first month of its existence.

The supervisors also passed a resolution directed to the assessors which stated that when compensation of members was set by the supervisors it was predicated upon a ten-hour day and that assessors and their clerk would be paid accordingly on this bases.

The board allowed Michael Lynch, a constable of Prince William County, $25 reward for his assistance in capturing the escaped prisoners from the Fairfax County jail last month.

The petition from the Dranesville Community League asking the supervisors to improve a county road between the Leesburg pike and the Georgetown pike so that it would be open to light traffic and reduce the mileage on the roads over a mile was referred to the county engineer for a report, as was a petition for straightening the road between Burke and Clifton, at Dunavans Corner.

County Engineer Larkin recommended that the county take over Colvin street, Sweely and Roth streets in Cameron Park as a county road. Action was postponed until the next meeting. The board approved a petition for establishing a road in Dranesville District from the proposed terminus of the Great Falls Bridge to the Leesburg pike at Colvin Run, provided that the right of way must be 50 feet wide and that there be additional right of way to take care of cuts and fills. Construction of the road shall not cost the county anything. The finished surface must not be less than 18 feet of improved macadam or concrete. Plans and specifications must be approved and built according to the plans and specifications of the board of supervisors.

Many citizens of Dranesville District attended the meeting of the Herndon Chamber of Commerce held in the school auditorium at Herndon.

Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson told the chamber that he favored a centrally located vocational high school, but at the present time he considered Herndon the logical place for an agricultural high and vocational school.

A. H. Buell spoke of the undesirability of the old almshouse location. George F. Harrison explained that cooperation must be had in regard to taxation, and almost everyone present was in favor of a centrally located vocational school but felt that the Herndon School should be left as is at present planned. Supt. Woodson was questioned on the possibility of the county school board reversing its action in regard to the consolidation of the schools at Floris and Forestville at Herndon and the erection of an agricultural building at Herndon. Dr. Ernest L. Robey, president of the School and Community League at Herndon, spoke of the determination of the town and district to hold various school activities they now have.

A combined meeting of the Andrew Chapel and Dranesville School and Community League was held in the Dranesville Schoolhouse, where four of the five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress from this district addressed the gathering. Most of the talk of the candidates centered upon the prohibition question and reiteration of their platforms previously circulated among the voters of the district.

A letter was read from Judge Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, in which he stated that he was not making public speeches during his campaign.

Jobless Situation Same in District

Little Improvement Noted in Report of Federal Reserve Agent.

Richmond, Va., July 2 (A.P.).—Unemployment in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, composed of the States of Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland and the District of Columbia, is uniform throughout the district, says the monthly review of William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent.

While there is no very large number of persons out of work in any particular place, yet in all parts of the district there are some workers who can not find employment, the report says.

"Employment conditions in the Fifth Reserve District have not improved as much this spring as many people expected they would," it continues. "In some cities and at least one State in the district plans for additional road work and building are shaping up, distinctly improving prospects for additional employment in the next few months."

Capital Speaker Addresses Teachers Federation at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., July 2 (A.P.).—Any successful plan for promoting permanent and world-wide peace must include training of school children, the American Federation of Teachers was told here today by Miss Selma Borchardt, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the federation's international relations committee.

"No matter how many efforts are made by the nations, there can be no lasting peace until the children in all countries are taught to think in terms of peace," Miss Borchardt said.

The federation's convention closes tomorrow. Selection of Philadelphia, Pa., for next year's meeting is predicted in some quarters. Miss Mary Barker, Atlanta, was reelected president today.

KENTUCKY CONVICTS HALT $250,000 FIRE

Prisoners Not Fighting Blaze in Factory Make No Effort to Flee.

STRICT ORDER UPHELD

Frankfort, Ky., July 2 (A.P.).—Fire swept the Frankfort Chair Co. building in the stockade of the State reformatory here this afternoon, causing a loss estimated at approximately $250,000 to it and other buildings and equipment. The loss is largely covered by insurance.

The 254 prisoners employed by the chair factory, as well as 533 prisoners employed in two other buildings in the stockade, left in orderly fashion when the fire broke out and marched into the stone walls of the reformatory. Reformatory officials said they had no reports of any one being injured or attempting to escape. The 21 prisoners who form the reformatory fire department and scores of other prisoners aided the Frankfort Fire Department in battling the blaze.

The majority of the 2,384 prisoners who were not aiding in fighting the blaze sat around the court within the stone walls, laughing and joking. No signs of unrest were noted.

The three-story building occupied by the Frankfort Chair Co. was valued at approximately $43,000 and was owned by the State. The equipment of the factory was valued at approximately $100,000. The State carries 90 per cent insurance on its buildings. The chair factory loss is covered approximately 50 per cent by insurance.

For a time the fire threatened to spread to the building occupied by the Gordon East Coast Co., Chicago, shirt manufacturers. The shirt factory escaped, but William Bernsteen, manager, said the water damage to supplies and machinery would result in a loss of $75,000, covered by insurance.

Spreading from the chair factory, the fire burned the fence surrounding the stockade and destroyed the home, storehouse and junk yard of M. C. Sullivan. He estimated that his loss was $30,000, with $3,500 insurance.

The fire started in a shed of the chair factory where sawdust is stored. It is believed that a spark from a passing train ignited the sawdust.

Hart Given Charge Of Police Cases

Shifts Announced by U. S. Attorney Following Recent Additions.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced yesterday that effective next week Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, who, for the past several years has been in charge of the office handling liquor cases, will be in charge of prosecution of all cases in the Police Court.

At the same time it was announced that Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray would be transferred to the District Supreme Court. Mr. Murray has been for several months in charge of prosecution of cases other than prohibition. Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Murray's assistant for several months, will become chief director of the office, due to the fact that while Mr. Hart will be in general charge he is expected to devote most of his time to the prosecution of the liquor cases.

The staff of the two United States attorney's offices at the Police Court was recently increased when three newly appointed assistants were assigned there. They are Assistant United States Attorneys Michael F. Keough, Wilbert McInerney and Wilbur Baughman, the first two assigned to the miscellaneous office and the latter to the prohibition office.

Zoning Regulation Changed by Board

Height of Buildings Subject of Amendment Just Passed.

District zoning regulations were amended by the Zoning Commission yesterday at a brief executive session following an equally brief public hearing in the District Building.

The amendment would provide for erection of buildings of not more than eight stories or higher than 60 feet in areas zoned residential, 60-foot height limit, provided the allowable lot occupancy of the building was decreased 4 per cent for each 5 feet or fraction thereof of the height of the building exceeded the 60-foot limit. The increased height would be allowed only on streets 110 feet or more wide.

The revised amendment was approved by Louis Justement, representing the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and by Rufus Lusk, representing the Operative Builders Association. The DuPont Circle Citizens Association was prepared to oppose the proposal, but withdrew when it was shown that the amendment adopted yesterday was similar to that approved earlier.

Son Held, Father Called, And He's Arrested, Too

Fourth Precinct police assumed a role unlike lightning yesterday afternoon and struck twice in the same place.

Policeman J. J. Hunter took a 13-year-old boy to the station for playing ball on Four-and-Half street, between F and G, southwest, and then called his father, Morris H. Hornstein, of 618 Four-and-Half street.

The elder Hornstein came in such a hurry that he parked double and left the motor of his car running in front of the station. So Policeman Hunter released the boy and booked the father on two traffic charges.

The case will be heard in Police Court this morning. Hornstein deposited $8 collateral.

Film Firm Auditor Held as Embezzler

Edgar Jacobs, Paramount Employe Here, Freed on $10,000 Bond.

Edgar Jacobs, 39 years old, Washington auditor for the Paramount-Publix Corporation, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of embezzling $50,000 of the firm's funds and was ordered held for grand jury action under $10,000 bond by Judge John P. McMahon.

Jacobs was arrested Tuesday on a warrant sworn to by Fred A. LeRoy, of Kew Gardens, Long Island, N. Y. The alleged embezzlement is said to have been carried on over a period of two years.

Jacobs, according to police, is said to have admitted that the major portion of the money was lost in the stock market crash. Suspicion was directed toward him when small receipts were received in the main office in New York City, and auditors were sent here to make a check. Jacobs, police said, realized when the auditors came on the scene that he was caught and made no attempt to cover up the shortage.

The embezzlement, according to police, was engineered through conversion of company checks. The man, it is alleged, took checks from local concerns received in the Washington office and indorsing them as auditor deposited them to his own account.

Evidence Is Lost; Rum Count Fails

Policeman Drops Gill of Liquor on Way to Police Court.

Clarence A. White, Negro, paid a $20 fine in Police Court yesterday on a charge of breaking glass in the street, but escaped charge of possessing liquor, despite the fact that police mopped up the liquid which the broken jar had contained.

The Negro was apprehended Tuesday on N street northwest by Policemen P. O. Brass and W. D. Perry. The man, according to the police, fled, and they pursued. During the chase the Negro dropped the package. Brass continued the chase to overhaul the man, while Perry mopped up the liquid in the street.

At the station house they were able to squeeze out a gill of liquor, but while going to Police Court yesterday morning to make out information papers Brass, who was carrying the gill, fell down the steps and it, too, was broken. As a result there was no evidence to support the liquor charge and it was dropped.

NYE AID WILL DENY KLAN MEMBERSHIP

W. H. Baldwin, Field Agent in Campaign Fund Quiz, to Be Grilled Today.

SPECIAL MEETING IS SET

When Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, chairman of the Senate campaign funds committee, questions W. Hunter Baldwin, of No. 6 Blackthorn street, Chevy Chase, Md., one of the committee's crack field agents, concerning his alleged affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan, the senator will be confronted with a stanch denial of the charge on the part of the agent.

A special session of the committee was called today when Chairman Nye believed he had identified a picture of a man marching beside Dr. H. W. Evans, head of the klan, in full regalia, in the 1925 Washington parade as a photo of Mr. Baldwin.

The North Dakota senator said it would be embarrassing in investigations in the South to have a member of the klan as an investigator.

Mr. Baldwin, formerly connected with the Department of Justice, who is said to have been head of the klan's "imperial secret service," last night emphatically denied the charge to a Post reporter.

"I am not connected with the Ku Klux Klan and never have been," he said. He decalred that he knew nothing of Chairman Nye's charge or of the committee hearing.

Senator Nye is said to have obtained virtual acknowledgement of Mr. Baldwin's association with the klan over the telephone. He has also been informed that a similar report has been published in Chicago newspapers.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, successful candidate for the Illinois Republican senatorial campaign, yesterday laid the records of her primary campaign before the committee.

Chairman Nye asked for the data following his inquiry at Chicago. Charges had been made, he said, that she had spent more than the $252,000 she reported, but he added that the committee had no reason to believe her first account in error. The records will not be examined until after the Chicago hearing on July 14.

Dead Midshipman To Have Sea Burial

Parents Acceed to Wish of Youth Who Ended Life in Paris.

(Associated Press.)

Requesting that their son's wish for a burial at sea be granted, Mr. and Mrs. Franz H. Worthington, of Grover, Colo., notified the Navy yesterday they did not want his body returned to their Colorado ranch.

The son, Midshipman Francis H. Worthington, who was making a summer cruise with other Naval Academy students, died in Paris of self-inflicted gunshot wounds. The authorities, Navy officials said, had a note the youth left asking a sea burial.

No report has been received by the Navy as to the reason for the suicide of the youth, who had just completed his first year in the Naval Academy.

House Gets Report On Rail Inquiry

Measure to Stop Merger of Two Systems Will Be Submitted Soon.

(Associated Press.)

The House interstate commerce committee plans to complete investigation into railroad holding companies by December to permit Congress to determine whether it should enact legislation to bring them under government supervision.

Chairman Parker of the interstate commerce committee submitted to the House yesterday a report on the progress of the investigation begun several months ago on the recommendation of the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine the actual ownership of the railroads to ascertain what effect holding companies were having on railroad consolidation plans.

Parker said he hoped to submit to the House for action at this session the Couzens resolution to provide for suspension of railroad consolidation until March 4, 1931. The resolution has been amended by the interstate commerce committee and specifically would prevent the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems. The report was submitted in connection with a resolution appropriating an additional $25,000 to continue the inquiry during the recess of Congress. The resolution was adopted.

CONGRESS WINDING UP.

Congress is trying hard to adjourn and will probably succeed within a few hours, in spite of stubborn conference controversies. Legislators of both houses are tired out. They are badly needed at home, where rivals are tearing down their fences. Congress has been in practically continuous session since December, 1928. It has wasted much time and language, but it has also accomplished much. The tariff bill could have been enacted in one-third of the time but for individual and clique politics. As it has emerged from the scrimmage it is a good law, notwithstanding the bad name that was attached to it a year ago.

The deadlock between the two houses on the District of Columbia bill has been a reproach to the House and its conference committee. No more unjust and arbitrary stand has ever been taken by one of the houses in dealing with the other. The bad feeling engendered has not facilitated any legislation and may leave lasting animosities.

The House redeemed itself in the matter of veterans' legislation. The country has no faith in the vaunted solicitude of senators who endeavor to boost veteran pensions beyond the limitation of the revenue. The average citizen sees mere selfish politics in such maneuvers on the eve of senatorial campaigns. Hence the public stands solidly with President Hoover on this subject. His firmness has elicited great admiration and enhanced his prestige.

Weary senators are to be called back next week to consider the naval treaty. They wish they could postpone consideration of the pact until after the primaries, in cool weather. Those who are indifferent are beginning to drift away, one by one. The champions of the treaty may find it difficult to hold a quorum.

AMERICA'S ANTARCTIC CLAIMS.

Senator Tydings' resolution, which would direct the President to claim for the United States lands of the Antarctic discovered and explored by Americans, is a timely move. The claim of the United States to that part of the frozen southern continent that was discovered by Palmer, Wilkes, Byrd and other Americans can not be reasonably disputed. It has been established in the manner that is universally recognized. The time has arrived for the Government formally to assert its claim.

Admiral Byrd announced last March in a radiogram from Little America that he would claim lands he discovered in Antarctica for the United States. Byrd and his intrepid explorers penetrated far into the interior of the southern continent and explored vast stretches of ice land that had never before been seen by human eyes. With the use of an airplane he observed, charted and claimed approximately 150,000 square miles, an area comparable to the two Virginias, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and parts of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. This territory lies outside of the Ross Dependency, claimed by Great Britain, and can not by any stretch of the imagination be considered as under the British flag.

American claims in the Antarctic go far behind the explorations of Admiral Byrd. Capt. Nathaniel Palmer, of the United States Navy, discovered in 1820 the island that bears his name, and Charles Wilkes first set foot on Wilkes Land in 1840 during an expedition authorized by Congress. The American claims have been expanded and substantiated by numerous explorers, but the State Department has taken the attitude that an act of Congress is essential to extend the sovereignty of the United States over this territory.

Great Britain has asserted a blanket claim to much of the Antarctic continent, including some of the land first discovered by Americans. France, Norway and Russia also make claims to various portions of the land. Most of these claims are indefinite, and much of the territory remains still unexplored. Antarctica will no doubt be divided up among the nations having valid claims. An international agreement will be necessary to define boundaries and to settle disputes arising out of dual claims. The validity of the American claim can not be questioned, but it remains for Congress to proclaim the rights of this country to the territory its sons have conquered.

At present Antarctica is an icebound waste. The world is chiefly concerned over its value for the location of weather stations. But no one can predict the future of the frozen continent. Great statesmen of a previous day considered the western part of this continent a valueless desert. However unpromising the American claims in the Antarctic may be, the United States should assert its right. The country can not afford to lose by official delay what its indomitable explorers have won by their daring and fortitude.

TARIFF BENEFITS THE FARMER.

Secretary Arthur M. Hyde's study of the relation between the tariff and agriculture is both interesting and instructive. His radio address on the subject leaves no doubt as to the benefits to be derived from the new schedules by the American farmer.

The tariff aims to reserve the domestic market for American producers. It is applicable, Secretary Hyde estimates, to agricultural imports valued at more than $620,000,000. The duty on some crops that are produced in surplus quantities may not be effective, but the new rates as a whole will tend to diversify crops and balance production against demand.

Secretary Hyde's close analysis exposes the fallacy that benefits to the farmer will be offset by increased duties on articles he must buy. The percentage of increase on agricultural products is 54.43, while the increase on all items covered by the bill amounts to but 6.17 per cent. Few items that figure largely in farm budgets are allowed increased duty, except such products as one farmer sells to another.

"Fifty per cent of the American farmer's purchases," says Secretary Hyde, "is for commodities produced by American agriculture. About 39 per cent of his expenditures is for commodities on the free list. This leaves only 11 per cent of his expenditures for commodities which have a tariff and in which he is not interested as a producer."

Assuming that the agricultural duties are effective, the average income per farm should be increased by approximately $150 annually under the new law. Average expenditures per farm, Secretary Hyde estimates, would be increased about $48. This would leave the average farmer a net benefit of $102 per year from the tariff bill. Varying conditions in the domestic market would necessarily alter this concrete representation of the tariff law's value to the farmer. But they leave no question that the farmer is in a stronger position today than before enactment of the tariff bill. In the language of Secretary Hyde, "It now lies in the power of agriculture to take the final step toward achieving economic equality."

UNCLE SAM'S SURPLUS.

There will be general agreement with Secretary Mellon's assertion that "the finances of the Government for the fiscal year just closed made a satisfactory showing." Uncle Sam closed his books on June 30 with a surplus on hand amounting to $184,000,000. He received during the year from customs and internal revenue collections a total of $3,626,000,000, or $86,000,000 more than he received from the same sources in 1929. Income tax collections aggregated $2,411,000,000, an increase as compared with the preceding year of $80,000,000, notwithstanding the fact that Congress authorized a general 1 per cent reduction in the tax on incomes earned during the calendar year 1929. Uncle Sam's expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts came to $3,994,000,000, an increase over 1929 amounting to $146,000,000. The original estimate of the surplus was $225,000,000. The 1 per cent tax reduction reduced this figure to $145,000,000. The actual surplus of $184,000,000 includes the sum of $76,000,000 on account of payments made by foreign governments in cash rather than in securities as has generally been the custom.

The Treasury makes no attempt to forecast the new fiscal year. While a surplus of $184,000,000 looms large, it is small alongside the probable budget for next year. Appropriation bills enacted during the present session that must be paid in 1931 total at least $4,500,000,000. This sum exceeds the anticipated total revenues for the year, but by how much has not been estimated.

Even at this early date, however, it seems probable that the Treasury will be unable to extend the 1 per cent income tax reduction. In the year just completed income tax collections, despite the 1 per cent reduction, exceeded those of the year preceding, but the explanation is made that "there was a substantial aggregate increase in individual income in the calendar year 1928 due to realization on sales of capital assets in the security market," and that "the growth in corporate income more than offset the 1 per cent reduction effective on collections made during the second half of the fiscal year 1930." The collapse of the security markets and their continued sluggishness will be reflected in lowered individual income tax returns, and the business depression will reduce corporate returns. Moreover, there will be considerable "taking of losses" for tax purposes this year.

The Treasury faces a difficult year. Congress has, in order to avert widespread depression and minimize unemployment, had to put into effect an expensive public building program. Increased expenditures are a certainty, and decreased revenues are more than a possibility. Taxpayers may well be gratified that the Treasury is in the expert hands of Andrew W. Mellon.

ITALY'S MOTOR CAR TARIFF.

Italy's increased duty on automobiles is seized upon by some Americans as proof that retaliation against the Hawley-Smoot tariff has been started in Europe. The burden of Italy's new rates falls upon small cars. American automobile agents are reported to be "stupefied" and "dumfounded" by the "bombshell" that has been exploded at Rome.

The official explanation for raising duties is given by the finance minister. He states that unemployment in the automobile manufacturing industry must be eliminated and prevented.

Another plausible reason for the increase is suggested by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan. He suspects that Italy sees an opportunity to force American manufacturers to establish branch plants abroad. The increased duties in Italy "might easily be part of a campaign to force American manufacturers now engaged in expatriating capital to extend their operations there and benefit foreign labor."

The new rates in Italy apply to all foreign cars, without discrimination. If the act is one of retaliation against the American tariff, why does Italy apply the retaliatory duties to French, British and German cars? The idea is an absurdity. But Senator Vandenberg's suggestion may well be to the point. If foreign countries can compel American manufacturers to establish branch plants in which native workmen are employed, they are very apt to do so. In that case American manufacturers who wish to build up foreign countries with profits obtained from Americans can go ahead, for the time being; but the expatriation of American capital is a process that may prove to be a two-edged sword. Congress can easily put a stop to the emigration of factories financed by American money. It has already provided that the output of such factories shall not be freely admitted into the United States.

ZIONISTS GET TOGETHER.

The Zionist Organization of America is to be congratulated on the attainment of unity after nine years of dissension. The two opposing groups have agreed to divide leadership of the movement between them, and once more the Jewish people of this country will present a united front in working for a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Bitter personal feelings seem to have been smothered on both sides. In the enthusiasm of the occasion delegates at the convention in Cleveland have pledged funds almost sufficient to wipe out the $135,000 deficit of the organization.

The task which the Zionists have undertaken has never appeared more difficult than it does today. Palestine is in a state of political unrest. Reports by the British government indicate that both the Arab and Jewish populations have engaged in economic boycotts as a result of the incidents at the Wailing Wall. The bitter feelings that led to those disturbances have not subsided. Antagonistic nationalist claims are growing stronger in both peoples. The rapid increase in Jewish population—from 56,000 in 1918 to 165,000 in 1929—tends to accentuate the problem.

The building of a Jewish national home in Palestine on the basis of friendly relations with the native inhabitants will require all the ingenuity of that people's most capable leaders. No doubt the recent crisis in Palestine had much to do with bringing the discordant factions of the American organization together. Certainly this new unity will have a beneficial effect on the national home movement.

"Great army of famished rats invading China from Siberia." Why can't those Russians stay at home?

OIL AND CONSERVATION

From the Wall Street Journal.

When the petroleum industry speaks of having reached approximate balance between supply and demand, it really means equality between the flow of crude oil from the wells and refinery demand. The latter is not the same thing as consumption, else 8,500,000 barrels would not have been added to stocks of gasoline between January 1 and June 14.

To be sure, these reserves have fallen from close to 55,000,000 barrels on March 29 to little more than 50,000,000 at present. Nevertheless, a net addition of 8,500,00 barrels in less than six months raises the question whether the already excessive stock is going to be at all reduced this year. So far, the additions to storage, both crude and refined, are somewhat less than in the same months of last year, but they are vastly greater than in the corresponding portion of 1928. In 1929 as a whole, 10,000,000 barrels of gasoline were added to stocks on hand, in addition to 36,907,000 barrels of crude. The outside observer is not to be blamed if he concludes that the industry is still speculating heavily on the future, and at rising cost in interest charges and evaporation.

When he appointed the Oil Conservation Board, nearly six years ago, President Coolidge urged that the Government and the industry together attempt to restrict oil production to actual requirements. At the end of 1924 total stocks of crude and refined oil were 520,290,000 barrels; at the end of 1929 they were 689,181,000 barrels. Six years ago emphasis was upon the conservation of a limited national resource, as vital to the national defense as to all industry and to private life as we live it. Perhaps practical oil men think less of possible exhaustion of the supply than they did, but the conservation board rightly continues to insist that it is limited and irreplaceable, no matter how the known reserves underground have increased in recent years.

If the refined products continue to pile up in storage, it can not be asserted either that the national interest in conservation is being served or that the industry itself is making rapid progress toward a stable, profitable basis. Voluntary restriction has accomplished something, but it offers little promise of real stabilization as long as refinery operation is no better adjusted to consumption requirements. If the country wishes to see real conservation, to say nothing of prosperity for the oil fields, it must resort to unit operation of the individual pools. The conservation board rightly declares that this plan contains no danger of monopoly or oppressive restraint of trade.

Meanwhile, and in addition, such combinations of refining and distributing units as the proposed union of Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum Oil are desirable to check uneconomic overdevelopment in these branches of the industry. Excesses in crude production, storage, refinery operation and distributing equipment, however they may temporarily affect prices, must ultimately add a great deal to the cost of the country's liquid fuel.

THE DRED SCOTT CASE.

Removal of the records in the Dred Scott case from the old St. Louis courthouse to the new Civil Courts Building will serve to refresh our memory of the most celebrated cause in American jurisprudence, observes the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

It is important at the moment that we should know all about the Dred Scott decision, for the analogy between that time and our own is very powerful. The slave owners controlled the country then exactly as the prohibitionists control it now. They had the law on their side; they held the United States Supreme Court. When the Supreme Court held that Dred Scott was property and therefore could not be automatically freed when his master took him into free territory, it aroused the resentment of one of the most remarkable personalities in history. This was Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln had hated slavery ever since he went down the Mississippi River on a flatboat and saw human beings sold in the market at New Orleans. His humane instincts were so fired by the Dred Scott decision that he took up arms against slavery and all its works, and never stopped until it was abolished.

The tradition of freedom in St. Louis as a consequence of the Dred Scott case is one of our most powerful characteristics. No master has long held this city in bondage, nor has any tyrannical law ever enjoyed its consent. Some day the papers in the Dred Scott case will be followed into the archives by a record of the 15,000 majority which St. Louis, a Republican city, gave to former Gov. Smith, and the eight votes to one it cast against prohibition in the Literary Digest poll.

HEALTH.

It's a dreary old world and a weary old world
When a toothache you happen to get.
Beyond any question, if you've indigestion
O'er trifles you're certain to fret
And you can be happy, however so rich
If his feet are afflicted with locker-room itch.

You don't go to dinners or dances or shows
If neuritis gets into your frame.
A boil on your neck, all life's pleasure can wreck
And a touch of the grip does the same.
To get the full joy from a rose which you smell
There isn't a doubt that you've got to be well.

It doesn't take much of an ache to destroy
The pleasure a fortune can bring.
If you've no appetite and you can't sleep at night
You are deaf to the song birds that sing.

If the Stranger Seems Distant and Cold, It's Because He Is Afraid.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SOME boys are perverts; some have slight physical imperfections that make them morbidly sensitive; some are cowards; some have been made snobbish by silly parents. All of these develop a protective shell to keep out the world. As men they are unapproachable.

But the normal boy, who has developed in contact with his kind and has no reason to be afraid or feel ashamed, has a natural capacity for fellowship. He enjoys people.

Then why is it that the average man resents the advances of strangers?

If you travel much, you divide men into two classes: Shallow, stupid, boastful, talkative men who tell strangers about their private affairs, and men with cold eyes who discourage conversation.

But these men with cold eyes who wish to be let alone are not cold-hearted men. They have families, friends, hobbies, charities. Intimates call them "Bill."

How, then, do you explain them?

Well, consider the pup. The pup is eager to make friends. He approaches strangers with tail a-wag and eyes alight with good-fellowship. He wishes to be petted; he wishes to lick hands.

But his very eagerness is his undoing. He gets kicked in the ribs. He is a pest. And because he is repulsed and abused, he loses confidence in mankind. He becomes a sneak, or he learns to growl when a hand is extended to pat him. He is suspicious, and the root of his suspicion is fear.

Precisely the same thing happens to the normal young man who has a capacity for fellowship. He gets hurt because he trusts too much, and then he becomes cynical and fears too much.

The cold and distant man who repulses your advances is afraid of you. He has learned that people who make advances are nuisances or oily men who have designs on him.

His cynicism is a pose—a protective mechanism. He doesn't resent a hand on his knee because he is an aristocrat, but because strangers who place a hand on one's knee are asses.

His aloofness is a confession that he has blisters. Cynicism is merely the outward evidence of concealed scars.

Making friends of men is like making friends of wild creatures. Sit quietly and the birds learn not to be afraid of you; reveal your eagerness and they fly away.

THE ONCE OVER

HAIL TO THE FOODLESS DRUG STORE!

A New York druggist is to open a drug store, which will be operated exclusively as a drug store. There will be no food sold. This should make him an easy winner of the 1931 Xerxes P. Doopleberry Prize for the American showing the most originality.

This path-blazer insists that no salad will cross the threshold of his apothecary shop and that any customers desiring sandwiches and coffee will have to bring their own.

It is the most daring experiment the drug business has seen in a decade and should settle the question whether a drug store, which doesn't handle bologna, tongue, liverwurst, hot soups and assorted pies, can endure.

The help will all be licensed druggists and not registered pantrymen. Inability to make a chicken salad will not be the mark of a poor prescription clerk, and the holder of a diploma from a druggists' college will have a chance of success in life even though he has no idea how to make a salami sandwich.

This pioneer in the drug business believes the public will appreciate a drug store where it can get pills, ointments and plasters without waiting for the proprietor to fry an order of ham and eggs or refill the coffee urn.

There is a feeling, he thinks, that a druggist can't have his mind on his prescriptions if he is preoccupied with the problem of putting out the best lunch in town for 40 cents.

An apothecary should be untroubled by grocery cares and never be put in a position where he regards watering the soup of greater importance than reading a prescription carefully.

Every one will admit that life in the modern drug store has been complex. You all know how often you have gone in for a bottle of Ipecac and come out with an order of roast lamb with green peas.

Or walked in for a tuna fish salad and a glass of milk and emerged with a bottle of mange cure, a dozen razor blades and a bar of soap.

Good luck to the foodless drug shop! It will simplify matters and make existence less of a cross-word puzzle.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Give Bandits Cold Lead, Says Old-Time Plainsman—No Romance in Thieves.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: More power to the policeman who promptly shot the thief who attacked a woman and robbed her yesterday! If all thieves and hold-up men would get the extreme penalty as summarily as that one yesterday, we soon would have a city free of that type of thief and gangster. Then if we apply the same medicine to some of the crooks who sell you bonds which they do not own and to the real estate crook who sells you a house whose walls are ready to fall down, we might not make our beautiful city safe for democracy, but safe for the stranger who comes here and his money.

I rode the range in Idaho and Montana forty years ago and notice that the reason why we had very little crime there then and hardly ever a real second attempt at it by the same criminal, was because we never gave those birds a chance to hire a lawyer to get them free. A .45 Colt bullet between the eyes or a rope around the neck is quite a deterrent to a criminal, if he knows determined officers are after him.

Let's have no maudlin sentiment. Stand by our Police Department and not behind the bailee lawyer. Criminals are absolute cowards. Making youth believe that there is anything romantic about a thief is one of the greatest curses of our modern age. A thief of any kind has only the courage of the rattlesnake. He fights only when cornered. Investing a thief and crook with a halo of romance is one of the greatest injustices we can do to our American youth, especially to those who are growing up now in the environment of our modern apartment houses, and who have never known the pioneer spirit which dominated the youth raised on our western plains.

Residents Should Not Pay Lion's Share of Cost of Beautifying the Nation's City.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Within the last ten years or more there has been a great increase in the number of patriotic citizens in all parts of the country who take special pride in the National Capital and favor the proposal to make it the most beautiful city in the world. It is reasonable to suppose that most of them realize how unfair it is to expect the local taxpayer to stand the expense of the proposed extra beautification. Few of them deny that the $6,000,000 proposed by the House of Representatives as the Government's share in the city's upkeep is miserly and the $12,000,000 of the Senate far from generous.

As the idea that this is, indeed, their city continues to spread among the people, it is likely that members of Congress will themselves become less provincial in their views of Washington. And it will not be long until a commission will finally settle the fiscal relationship of the National Government with the District.

In regard to the general expenses of the local government, the commission can figure on some such basis as that of the Senate and House in making their recent estimates.

The difficult question will be as to how much rebate the District should be allowed in respect to the national scope of the city planning. There may be a trace of guesswork in the settlement of that question, but by careful study it should be possible to arrive at a fair approximation. In which case the National Government's beautification surtax should be at least sufficient to restore the old 50-50 ratio.

"Lucky Bag" of Graduating Class at Annapolis Outlines Ideals of Naval Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the United States Naval Academy each year, the members of the graduating class prepare and publish a history of their four years' training, called "The Lucky Bag."

As a Navy wife of thirty-seven years' knowledge of naval officers' lives, it seemed to me desirable that the general public should learn from the foreword and dedication of the 1930 Lucky Bag what a naval officer stands for. The foreword reads: "For God, Country and the Sea," and the dedication says: "To those men of our Navy who are silhouetted against the colorful background of our history; to those scientists and diplomats, explorers and discoverers, whose lives of unquestioning service have wrought a peaceful though forceful revolution in the affairs of the world; whose courage, tact and unfailing devotion to duty have given us a legacy of world achievement; to those men who visualized the march of progress, whose accomplishments are beacon lights along the airways of the world, this Lucky Bag of 1930 is reverently dedicated."

Veteran Says This Fourth of July Will Be the Last Celebration of Independence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me suggest that you advise all your readers to be sure and celebrate the Fourth of July this year. It is probably the last year we can celebrate any real independence, because it is patent that the so-called naval treaty is to be jammed through the Senate in the next few days. After that, the Fourth of July may stand for our declaration of dependence to Europe, instead of our declaration of independence from Europe, as heretofore.

Oh, for the days of Reed, of Missouri, and Lodge, in the U. S. Senate, to give strong support to the few men in that body who still value that independence, and who are men enough to ignore the vaporings of the pacifists and internationalists, whose least concern is the interests of the United States of America. War will come through the deadly propaganda of such groups much more quickly than from any stand taken by patriots. SAMUEL C. THOMPSON

GOVERNORS RAP ACT ON PRISON PRODUCTS

Measure Limiting Handling in Interstate Commerce Held Unconstitutional.

POLLARD LEADS SESSION

Salt Lake City, July 2 (A.P.).—Resistance by the States to operation of the Hawes-Cooper act to limit the handling of prison-made goods in interstate commerce was demanded by several governors at their national conference here today. The act was termed a usurpation by Federal authority of the rights of the States to meet their prison problems.

Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut suggested a general conference of States to work out a solution of the problem. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, in terming the act an infringement upon State authority, also expressed the belief that it is unconstitutional, and said a court test probably would have to be made.

Probable effect of the act, which after 1934 would subject prison-made goods shipped into a State to the laws of that State governing sale of such products, was described by various speakers as threatening disruption of their prison systems.

Emmerson Is Dissenter.

Gov. Trumbull estimated that it would cost his State $800,000 annually in reorganization of prison industries. And Gov. John Hammill of Iowa placed the cost to his State at $1,000,000.

Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri predicted that a complete readjustment of prison industries would be necessary.

"It would seem evident," he said, "that each State as a protective measure, must bar from its market the prison-made goods of other States, and to avoid an unconstitutional discrimination, must withdraw its own prison-made goods from its own open markets. This will inevitably bring about the destruction of the prison labor contract system and the public account system."

An opposing view to that of other speakers was taken by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, of Illinois. He said that efforts to dispose of prison-made goods in his State had met with the opposition of industry and organized labor, and expressed the opinion that the Hawes-Cooper law will have little effect.

Pollard Gets Novel Gavel.

Gov. William G. Conley of West Virginia presented a report on the work of a conference of Eastern and Southern States on institutional labor and their plans for making a survey of the situation arising from enactment of the Hawes-Cooper act.

Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia presided at the session.

Gavels made from the wood of a tree planted by Brigham Young, first Territorial Governor of Utah, and from silver and copper mined in this State, were presented to five governors who acted as chairmen. Gov. George H. Dern made the presentation on behalf of the Utah Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

The recipients were Govs. Hammill of Iowa, Harry G. Leslie of Indiana, Trumbull of Connecticut, Norman S. Case of Rhode Island and Pollard of Virginia.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

It is too bad that the House was kept here as long as it was. For months it had been propagandised as a highly orderly, efficient body, given to sound legislation, in contrast with a ruckus raising Senate that felt no responsibility at all.

The House members were going around with their chests stuck out. They were beginning to demand places at the dinner table ahead of the senators. They were teaching disrespect for the senators not only to their children but to their constituents as well.

But the strain told on the House. The propaganda went to its head and a few days ago it went all to pieces on the veterans' legislation and showed in a very brief while what it really was.

* * * *

Its amazing performance in passing a bill costing $180,000,000 or so is known too well to relate again. And then when the Senate reduced the bill by half it executed an amazing flip-flop under a presidential denunciation and passed a pension bill not more than 25 members had any idea about.

Yesterday this pension bill was back from the Senate with increased rates. The leaders took matters in their own hands and brought out a rule designed to keep the House from voting on them.

As a result the measure was sent to conference in the hands of conferees who could be trusted not to agree to the increased Senate rates.

* * * *

There is the matter of $250,000 which Mr. Hoover wanted for his Law Enforcement Commission. When the second deficiency bill carrying this appropriation was first before the House the entire item went out on a point of order that no substantive law authorizing the appropriation existed. That such authority must exist has been a long-standing House rule.

The Senate has no such rule, but it did not want to give the commission $250,000. It reduced the amount to $50,000.

The President let go another blast and the House immediately ran to get under the wing. When the bill came back from the Senate the House assured him that notwithstanding that it had appropriated nothing for the commission before it would now boost the Senate appropriation to $250,000.

* * * *

Just how the House could do this observers could not see, because it is a rule that conferees can not go beyond the provisions of the House and Senate bills. Their compromising range in this instance was from zero to $50,000.

But the House leaders evolved another rule, just snatched it out of the air, in fact.

It provided that House rules to the contrary notwithstanding and the lack of substantive law for the appropriation notwithstanding, the House in this instance was authorised not only to concur in the Senate $50,000 appropriation, but to boost it to $250,000.

* * * *

Now this is not a complaint against bossism in the House. The members showed indisputably in the matter of the first veterans' legislation that they were incapable of voting. There is no telling what would happen to the country if the leaders were to permit them any freedom.

It is, however, silly to continue with the propaganda about the House efficiency and orderliness in view of what has taken place in these closing days of the session.

It is idle, too, to talk about Treasury deficits as long as the salaries of 430 of the 435 House members are paid month after month. If expenditures must be curtailed there is the place to do it—430 members times $10,000 a year—an annual saving of $4,300,000.

And as to the comparative place of the House members at the dinner table, they rate the kitchen.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 6:35 p. m. to noon today.

Passed a House bill modifying the Jones law to provide lighter penalties for petty offenders of the prohibition law. It goes back to the House for concurrence in amendments.

Passed a House bill authorizing $15,051,880 for construction at Army posts, and sent it back to the House for concurrence in amendments.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick (Republican), of Illinois, submitted to the campaign funds committee an account of her expenditures in her race for the Senate.

Chairman Nye of the campaign funds committee announced that hearings would be held next week to complete the inquiry into the cost of the Republican senatorial campaign in Pennsylvania.

Chairman Nye also announced that the committee is seeking to determine whether one of its investigators is a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, charged that the "power trust" had spent $400,000 to "control the Senate" and block Muscle Shoals legislation.

Chairman Jones, of the appropriations committee, announced that he would call a meeting of the Senate and House conferees today to consider the action of the House in voting $250,000 for the expenses of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 5:20 p. m. to 11 a. m. today.

Voted 194 to 116 to send the veterans relief bill to conference.

Restored an item of $250,000 in the deficiency bill for the expenses of the Law Enforcement Commission.

Appropriated $25,000 from its contingent fund to permit the interstate commerce committee to continue its investigation into railroad holdings and investment trust companies.

WORLD WAR PENSIONS BILL RAILROADED TO CONFERENCE

and House rates instead of an out-and-out acceptance of the latter. If this should prove to be the case, the millenium will have been reached at the Capitol.

The President is understood to be against any hoisting of the House rates, $12 to $40, against the misconduct clause of the Senate bill and to want the retention of the clause disqualifying any veteran from receiving a pension who pays an income tax.

If the Senate gets any compromise out of the rates at all the belief is that it will be no more than the provision making the minimum disability entitling a veteran to a pension 10 per cent instead of the 25 per cent House minimum.

The idea that it was to be a free conference, that the final rate scale would be somewhere between the two extremes, must have been sold to the House Republican members, though, because they voted for the gag rule without a murmur of disapproval.

Pou Fails to Get Rise.

The leaders gave the Democrats 30 minutes to yelp about this rule, and six of them did so, Representatives Almon, Pou, Rankin, Connor, of New York; Connery and Cannon, of Missouri.

Mr. Pou asserted that everywhere one goes these days he hears expressions of "contempt" for the House because it permits itself to be a rubber stamp.

The Republicans just looked at him in their well-fed contentment, looked at him blankly, expressionless. Apparently they had gratified their suppressed desires several days ago when they overrode the President on the Spanish War veterans' bill and again when they passed the original World War veterans' bill. They were spanked for both.

They did not even deign to make reply, although Mr. Johnson and Mr. Luce made brief statements.

May Wind Up Today.

"We want to go into conference by 3:30 o'clock with this bill and come back here and pass it, so the veterans will have coal in the coal bin and flour in the flour bin," he said, exemplifying the Republicans' aptitude for catch phrases.

Maybe Congress will be able to get away today. Some hope is entertained that it will, but in addition to this veterans' bill they have the so-called Wickersham matter and the District appropriations controversy to settle.

There was some talk that both houses might come back Monday after a week-end recess to finish up. This is not at all unlikely.

ITALY BOOSTS AUTO DUTIES AS REPRISAL

PROTECTION NEED CITED

Rome, July 2 (A.P.).—Italy's reaction to the new American tariff rates today took the form of a reprisal when, without notice, the Italian import duties on automobiles were raised between 110 and 120 per cent by royal decree.

The sudden blow at automobile imports which went into effect on Monday but escaped notice for 36 hours applied particularly to small cars. The decree raising the tariff was drawn up June 27. The council of ministers had met the day before without announcing any such step. King Victor Emmanuel, Premier Mussolini and other government officials immediately signed the decree. Parliament later will convert it into statutory law, but today it stands as an effective barrier to commerce in foreign motor cars.

Protection of home industries, including the vast Fiat enterprises at Turin, was responsible for the action, according to Minister of Corporations Bottai, who is mainly responsible for the radical tariff. He urged its enactment in the interest of home labor. Small automobiles, such as the American Ford, are affected most. On this class of cars the increase was from 7,000 lire to 16,000. On higher-priced cars the percentage was somewhat less. One high-priced car was covered with a tariff increase of 8,000 lire. The lira is worth about 5 cents, American.

Agents of American manufacturers discounted explanations of domestic necessity and saw in the move retaliation against the recently inaugurated tariff laws of the United States.

Among the differences between the old and new tariff was the separation of classes. The new schedule treats pleasure cars, truck and tractors apart and puts pleasure cars into three groups, with trucks in four. Duties on automobile parts henceforth will be at 35 and 45 lire per hundredweight.

the Italian government dealt with agricultural rates in the measure. At that time Italy protested against rates on olive oil, canned tomatoes, tomato sauce and lemons.

The Italian market has been growing in importance as a recipient of American light cars in recent years, although the full import is not disclosed in comparative figures. The total American exports of automobiles for 1929 was $510,000,000, and of these Commerce Department figures showed that only $2,000,000 went to Italy.

The Italian figures, however, were almost treble those of this country in that they counted as imports machines which were assembled by American plants in that country from parts sent from this country.

Both Henry Ford and the General Motors Co. have established branch plants at Trieste.

started during the present year as the Government's contribution to relieve business depression and unemployment. At the present rate at which Treasury plans are being carried forward, that figure will be exceeded by about $26,000,000 and a total of $158,000,000 of Government construction will be under way or completed when the year closes.

In addition to contracts already let, the Treasury said contracts have been or will be made within 30 days with private architects for complete plans for a limited number of monumental buildings, the total limits of cost of which amount to $70,000,000. Of this amount it was expected $30,000,000 worth of construction would be started in this group before the end of the calendar year.

Other projects, 71 in number, with authorized limits of cost totaling $55,735,500 are expected to be under contract before the end of the year. These contracts will be distributed over 39 States.

Teachers Taken Up in Airplanes

Educators, at Meeting, Are Told of Four-Hour Working Day.

Columbus, Ohio, July 2 (A.P.).—The modern American school teacher revealed today that she is an ardent enthusiast of aviation and that the school children within the next year are going to hear a lot about the conquest of the air.

The sessions of the National Education Association virtually were moved this afternoon to Port Columbus where hundreds of the teacher delegates took their first rides in airplanes and spent the day looking over some of the newest creations in ships.

While the teacher delegates were learning about the progress of aviation, those attending the sessions of the department of adult education heard a prediction by Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the N. E. A. Journal that by 1960 the working day will be reduced to four hours. The replacement of human labor with machines will bring about this change, he said. It is reasonable to assume that by 1960 the working week will be reduced to 20 hours, or the equivalent of five 4-hour days, he said.

New York Agents Raid Speakeasy; Seize Truck

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Continuing the raids which marked the first day in office of Andrew McCampbell, new prohibition administrator in New York, agents today seized a beer truck from New Jersey and raided a speakeasy on East Forty-sixth street.

The truck was trailed from a West street ferry to the speakeasy. Twelve half-barrels of beer were seized on the truck and five half-barrels of beer and several bottles of hard liquor in the speakeasy.

The driver and helper on the truck and the speakeasy bartenders were arrested. All gave New York addresses.

WORLD WHEAT PRICE FORECAST FOR DROP

Department of Agriculture Says Scale to Be Lower in Next Seven Years.

CUT IN ACREAGE URGED

(Associated Press.)

Warning the American farmer to think in terms of a domestic market, the Department of Agriculture yesterday predicted that world wheat prices during the next seven years will average appreciably lower than those of the last seven.

The warning was made in connection with the 1930 world wheat outlook report, prepared a month earlier than usual, so that Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge might use it as a basis of argument in the new acreage reduction campaign to be instituted at Hastings, Nebr., on July 7.

Extensive adjustment in wheat acreage, including substantial reduction in cost per bushel, must be made if wheat production is to be profitable to growers generally in the next six to ten years, the report said.

"This is necessary," it explained, "too much intensified competition in world markets, due to increasing production in this and other countries without a corresponding increase in effective demand."

Showing that the trend of wheat acreage and production is toward expansion, the report recalled that the area sown in the Southwestern winter wheat States increased approximately 4,000,000 acres from 1924 to 1926. During the same period the area in Canada, Argentina and Australia combined increased more than 10,000,000 acres.

In this country the increase chiefly has been in a broad belt of the Western plains from Canada to the Mexican border where no plow ever had turned a furrow before. Considered of more seriousness to the acreage reduction campaign is the report that farmers in one Kansas county alone, insisting that with large scale machinery they can raise wheat for 40 cents a bushel, contemplate seeding 100,000 acres more than last year.

Russia continues to be the threatening factor abroad. The report said that with the Soviet government making strenuous efforts to introduce machinery and improve crop methods, Russia is likely to reenter the export fields as an important factor within the next decade. Prior to the war Russian exports averaged 184,000,000 bushels a year.

Fokker Assessed $500 For Lacking License

(Associated Press.)

Anthony Fokker was tentatively assessed $500 by the Commerce Department yesterday for flying a plane without a pilot's license. The assessment, fixed under law, is subject to revision by the Department after a study of the seriousness of the offense.

Fokker took a plane into the air after departure of the Southern Cross from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., yesterday, and was examined by Commerce Department inspectors after he landed. They found that he had not had a pilot's license since 1926, but he immediately took the necessary tests and was told a renewal license would be sent him at once.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Capital Group Will Sojourn In Murray Bay

Canadian Resort Claims Many Visitors From Washington.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ALTHOUGH the passing of former President Taft loosed the chief tie which bound Washington to Murray Bay, that quaint and charming little village in the Province of Quebec, which has become so popular as a summer resort, there will be a considerable Washington colony there this season.

Miss Mabel Boardman, who is now abroad, will open her summer home at Murray Bay on her return and expects to stay in Canada until well into the autumn. Miss Laura Harlan and her sister, Miss Ruth Harlan, expect to go to Canada the middle of July and will occupy their own little house. They have spent their summers at Murray Bay for many years, their acquaintance with the old town dating from the days when their father, the late Justice Harlan, was among its discoverers.

Mrs. Robert Shaw Oliver and Miss Marion Oliver are others to be found at Murray Bay, where they have a charming cottage every summer. Although long-time residents of Washington, they have deserted the Capital of late, spending their winters at Paget, Bermuda, and their summers at Murray Bay.

Mrs. Ezra McCagg will be at Murray Bay for the summer months and so will Mr. and Mrs. Copley Amory, who have taken a cottage there. Mrs. Frank Weeden and Miss Alida Henriques will share a cottage, and others from Washington who will join the summer colony on the St. Lawrence are Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson Furness and Dr. and Mrs. George Lockwood.

Then there are Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, jr., who find the life at Murray Bay especially delightful and who are going back this summer, Mrs. Fish having been identified with the place since her girlhood days as Grace Chapin.

Genial Chief Justice Taft will be greatly missed at Murray Bay, for he was beloved not only by the summer colony, but by the Canadian residents. Mrs. Taft is traveling abroad this summer with her sister, Miss Maria Herron, of Cincinnati.

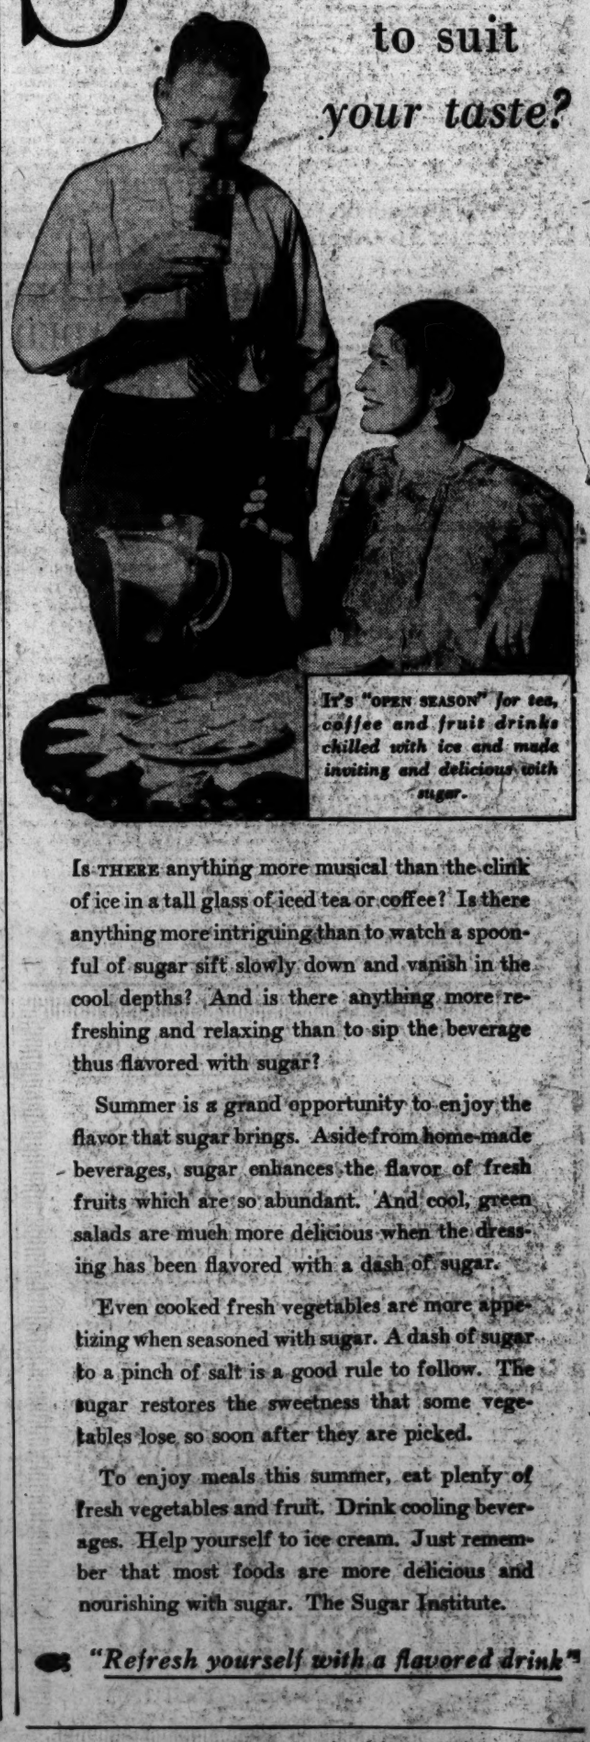
What's more Refreshing than an Iced drink Sweetened to suit your taste?



IT'S "OPEN SEASON" for tea, coffee and fruit drinks chilled with ice and made inviting and delicious with sugar.

IS THERE anything more musical than the clink of ice in a tall glass of iced tea or coffee? Is there anything more intriguing than to watch a spoonful of sugar sift slowly down and vanish in the cool depths? And is there anything more refreshing and relaxing than to sip the beverage thus flavored with sugar?

Summer is a grand opportunity to enjoy the flavor that sugar brings. Aside from home-made beverages, sugar enhances the flavor of fresh fruits which are so abundant. And cool, green salads are much more delicious when the dressing has been flavored with a dash of sugar.

Even cooked fresh vegetables are more appetizing when seasoned with sugar. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a good rule to follow. The sugar restores the sweetness that some vegetables lose so soon after they are picked.

To enjoy meals this summer, eat plenty of fresh vegetables and fruit. Drink cooling beverages. Help yourself to ice cream. Just remember that most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

But—never until now have all these advantages been combined in any one single lubricant. That motor oil is ready for you today. It is the new Texaco—longer-lasting and crack-proof. Road tests—laboratory tests have proved it.

Available in all our 48 States

Fill your crankcase with this new crack-proof motor oil today. It will more than pay you, not only in greater value for your lubrication dollar but for your car dollar as well. AUSTRALIAN FLIERS HAILED IN CHICAGO

Kingsford-Smith Notified of Promotion to Rank of Wing Commander.

GREET HOOVER BY RADIO

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and the three men with whom he recently flew across the Atlantic, arrived in Chicago late today for a quiet reception, a brief radio broadcast and a good night's sleep.

Their plane, The Southern Cross, was met east of Chicago by an escort of Army planes and guided to Sky Harbor, where Kingsford-Smith paid an aviator's respects to the Hunter brothers in their endurance plane, which has broken all records for sustained flight. Then it swung back a couple of miles south to Curtiss Field, where it was landed and placed in a hangar for the night. Mechanics at once began inspecting and refueling it for the flight to the Pacific Coast tomorrow.

The fliers were escorted to their hotel by a committee in charge of the national air race which hopes to bring the Southern Cross crew here for the tourney next fall. At a buffet luncheon at the hotel the flier was informed that the Australian government had brevetted him wing commander as a result of the transatlantic flight of a week ago. His rank had been squardon leader in the Australian air forces.

He immediately cabled the prime minister of Australia his deep appreciation of the honor and recognition accorded him by his government. The rank of wing commander is the equivalent of the army rank of lieutenant colonel.

(Associated Press.)

Flying across the Alleghany Mountains toward Chicago, members of the crew of the Southern Cross yesterday took time out from other duties to radio their appreciation to President Hoover and the British Ambassador for their Washington reception.

Similar messages were sent by J. P. Saul, a native of Ireland, to the Irish charge d'affaires at Washington and by Evart Van Dyke to the Dutch Minister.

The message to President Hoover said:

"As we fly over the Alleghanies toward your own California, Mr. President, in our gallant old Fokker Southern Cross, may we take advantage of the radio which saved us in the fogs of the Grand Banks to express to you the deep appreciation we all feel of the honor you conferred upon us in receiving us at Washington. May we, British, Irish and Dutch, take this means of conveying to you our high regard and respect?"

Ortiz Rubio to Mark Fourth.

Mexico City, July 2 (A.P.).—President Ortiz Rubio and his family have been invited to attend the American colony's Fourth of July program. This includes a patriotic athletic program in the morning and a dance in the evening.

TO COMMUTE IN AIR FLIVVER

Edwin H. White (right) couldn't be bothered with riding the train from Baltimore to Washington every day, so he plans to commute in his "air flivver," which averages 35 miles to a gallon of gas. Mr. White is an aviation engineer connected with the Department of Commerce. Thomas Legge (left), of Baltimore, bought the plane with Mr. White.

Thom Again Head Of Chest Budget

Banker Accepts Post as Committee Chairman, Poole Announces.

Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co., has again accepted the chairmanship of the Community Chest's budget committee, John Poole, president of the organization, announced yesterday.

Work of the budget committee will be divided into three parts, as it was last year. The three subchairmen are Dr. Charles P. Neill, character building committee; Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, dependency committee, and Simon Lyon, health committee. Mrs. O'Connor and Mr. Lyon held similar positions last year.

Because of the unemployment situation, and the fact that the chest failed to reach its goal last year, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Co. has agreed to increase its annual gift from $500 to $800, it was announced.

Coste Making Ready For Flight to U. S.

Le Bourget Field, France, July 2 (A.P.).—Dieudonne Coste, famous French aviator, is expected to make a trial flight tomorrow morning preliminary to a hop-off for New York in case his plane behaves properly and weather permits.

The airman is credited with a desire to land in the United States July 4. Capt. Coste left Le Bourget tonight after housing his airplane and motored to Paris, as is his custom, before taking off for a long flight.

Stricken at Feast, Bridegroom Better

Howard Lee, Husband of Former Miss Bankhead, Colic Victim.

Reed, Nev., July 2 (A.P.).—Howard Lee, Dallas aviator and former polo player, was recovering today from an illness that seized him a few minutes after he married Mrs. Eugenia Bankhead Hoyt Lee, daughter of Representative Bankhead, of Alabama.

The ailment was diagnosed as appendicular colic. Lee collapsed last night, ending the wedding festivities, attended by twenty guests. Physicians said today his condition was not serious and the honeymoon trip of the couple may not be delayed more than a day or two.

The bride last Monday obtained an annulment of her marriage to Wilfred Lawson Butt, former University of Nevada student, to whom she was married here last December after a second divorce from her first husband.

DATA SHOW CAPITAL SALARIES ADEQUATE

COMPARE CITIES' WAGES

Washington is the only city among eight located nearby or comparable in size where the salary of one industrial wage earner is sufficient to maintain the average family, according to statistics compiled by Rufus Lusk for the Washington Board of Trade.

Average yearly expenditures for a family of 4.9 persons in the District are computed at $1,503, whereas the average earnings of the 2,200 industrial workers in Washington are $1,640, showing a surplus of $143 a year. Inasmuch as there is more than one wage earner in the average industrial family, the actual gross surplus income for each family probably is substantially higher, Mr. Lusk points out.

In addition to the industrial workers, there are in Washington 79,137 Government employes, whose average earnings are in excess of $2,200 a year, or more than $700 above the $1,503 given as the average yearly expenditures of all families in the District.

Baltimore families spend an average of $1,263 per family yearly, while the average income of an industrial worker there is but $1,112, Mr. Lusk reports, thus leaving a deficit of $151 a year in families which have not at least two wage earners to swell the receipts.

The greatest deficit in the eight cities represented is in Richmond, where it costs the average family $1,346 a year to live but industrial salaries average only $986. Next in line is New Orleans, where expenditures are $1,318 and incomes but $971, leaving an annual deficit of $347.

Among the seven cities which show expenditures greater than earnings Buffalo comes nearest to breaking even, with a loss of $17 a year on expenditures of $1,512 offset by earnings of $1,495. Industrial incomes in Minneapolis are $1,264 while expenditures are $1,372. In Philadelphia, industrial workers earn an average of $1,374 while living expenses per family are $1,543, the highest of any of the eight cities studied by Mr. Lusk. While the average industrial wage in San Francisco is $1,455, it costs the average family there $1,507 a year to live.

Auto Group Warns Of Brake Dangers

10 Per Cent of Capital Cars More Than Year Old Are Unsafe.

At least 10 per cent of the automobiles in Washington which have been on the streets for one year or more have brakes so badly worn as to be totally worthless in an emergency, the Washington Automotive Trade Association declares in a warning issued to the motoring public yesterday.

More than 75 per cent of the automobiles in the same mileage class have brakes which are unsafe, but which could be corrected with minor adjustments, the association adds.

These estimates are based upon the conditions found in automobiles brought in to members of the association for trade, at least 10 per cent of which are found to have their brake linings almost if not completely worn away.

CHAPTER XIX.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Janet Decker—Eighteen, with closely cropped head of burnt gold and a pair of very large and quizzical eyes. The flying secretary for

Robert C. Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern Air Transportation Co., and the father of

Dick Tolbert, a young man, who is an official of Great Eastern, and who has told Janet he loves her and intends to marry her, even though he is at present engaged to

Helen Morgan, a society girl, who has recently sailed for Europe with her mother, but who has cabled that she is returning immediately.

Hugh Temple, an official and pilot for Great Eastern and the man who hired Janet. He is strangely missing along with a huge shipment of money he was transporting by plane to a New York bank.

Henry Frenda, a clerk in the office of Great Eastern, and a friend of Janet's, who has lent Janet a book on aviation which had been given him by Belter, the office manager, for delivery to a Mr. Crell, wealthy boarder at the Frenda home, near the airport. Belter, finding the book had not been delivered, had upbraided Henry, and Henry made threatening remarks to Janet about what he would do if Belter tried hard-boiled tactics.

Fred Turner, an automobile mechanic, who was sweet on Janet.

Belter, office manager for Great Eastern, and Henry's boss.

Miss Sears, Dick Tolbert's secretary.

Janet has received an anonymous note asking her to be at a certain spot at 11 o'clock, Wednesday night. Janet finds the aviation book Henry had lent her, and while glancing through its pages comes upon a series of strange symbols scribbled on the last page. She suspects Belter is in some way connected with them, but while puzzling over their meaning, Dick Tolbert arrives to tell her something has happened at the airport. She accompanies him. Upon their arrival they find Belter slumped in his chair, dead. It apparently is murder. Henry Frenda was one of the last persons known to have been with Belter, and is suspected. Janet remembers the threatening remarks Henry had made. He can not give a satisfactory explanation of his whereabouts that night. Dick, thinking to save Janet the unpleasantness of an interview with the police about night, suggests that she go home and go to bed, saying the police can question her the next day. She consents. She had asked Dick if he could supply her with a revolver so she could learn to shoot. Before she leaves, Dick gives her one, telling her it hadn't been loaded since he bought it.

She remembers the anonymous note, and decides to comply with its request. She takes the gun along as a means of self-protection. Arriving at the spot, she suddenly sees a man coming toward her, his long arms outstretched toward her. Nearly frightened, she whips out the revolver, and points it at the oncoming man, ordering him to stop. There is a flash of fire, and the figure drops to the ground. A bass voice calls, "Janet——" She realizes she has shot Hugh Temple—and faints.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Janet . . . Janet, darling . . ."

A car roared by on the Thomaston road, its bright headlights sweeping the edge of the field. The rumble of a trolley car twisting itself into the barn on West Main street sounded like distant thunder.

"Janet, child . . . Can't you answer me? . . . Oh, my God . . ."

Janet breathed a deep sigh and opened her eyes. All was darkness. Very, very slowly it came to her where she was, what had brought her there, who it was that held her close in strong arms, pleading, frightened. She put a hand up and touched his face lightly. Thrilling little messages of assurance ran down her arm to her heart.

"Oh, Hugh! . . . I—I might have—killed you . . ."

Hugh Temple laughted like a little boy, relieved, amused. "If I never do another thing as long as I live," he whispered, "I mean to teach you to shoot a revolver. You didn't even graze me."

"But—but you fell, Hugh. I saw you . . . No, I didn't see you, but when you called my name, you—you were on the ground."

"Where I belonged," he laughed, quietly. "I hadn't expected the six-shooter, and when you threatened to shoot—— But that's all irrelevant, Janet. You didn't hit me . . . Will you ever forgive me for bringing you out to this forsaken hole?"

"Hmm!!" Janet grunted contentedly, feeling delightfully secure in his arms. "Don't get sentimental, Hugh," she answered. "I don't mind telling you I was scared cold. But now—I'm quite comfortable, thank you. Only weak, and blind."

"It is dark, isn't it? Do you know, Janet, I hadn't an idea you'd meet me here. I wanted you to understand, and when I sent the note, I could think of no other means of getting you. But——"

"You decided I was yellow and wouldn't show up. Am I right?"

"No, you aren't. I decided that you had too much sense."

"Complimentary, tonight, aren't you, Hugh? I'm not yellow; I'm just off my nut. You men are hard to please . . . Are you going to tell me things . . . what happened to you the night you disappeared, where you've been, what you were doing in that cut-throat's car in New York, how you escaped, why you're hiding out here, what——"

"If you don't mind," Hugh interrupted, smiling, "I'd much rather answer one question at a time. I've a one-track mind, you know."

They were silent for a time, Janet's head tilted back, her eyes on the one little star that seemed to defy the black clouds that hid its million of fellows.

"Mr. Tolbert and I left you standing by Susie," Janet said, softly, at last. "After that, Hugh——"

"I can tell you but little about it, Janet," Hugh answered slowly. "I remember you two leaving, and then I didn't know anything. They slipped up behind me, I suppose. If you'll put your hand on the back of my head, you'll know what they did to me, at any rate. They must have used a crowbar."

Janet promptly sat up and laid her fingers on the peculiar knot under Hugh's thick hair. "Hugh!" she cried, "have you been to a doctor?"

"I haven't been anyw re of my own volition—at least until I came here. I haven't even had a hair cut. That I'm shaven is nothing but an accident. There was an old safety razor in the shack, and I used it, at the risk of blood poison. You never saw such a rusty relic."

"What shack, Hugh?"

"I'll come to that," Hugh replied gently. "You want the whole story and I'll have to begin at the beginning. After you and Tolbert left they must have knocked me out and loaded me into the amphibian. When I came to, I was stretched out on the ground before what looked like an old barn. It took me a little time to realize what had happened, and then I saw a big fellow standing a few feet from me, brandishing an automatic.

" 'One peep out of you,' he said firmly, 'and I'll fill you full of lead.' I didn't have a peep in me, Janet, so I just sat up and took in my surroundings. The first thing I saw then was half a dozen men—shadows they were—bustling around with flashlights. I couldn't imagine what they were doing until I happened to make out a vague form against the barn. It was Susie, and they were trying to get her inside, through a pair of double doors."

"The idiots," Janet exclaimed. "Didn't they know Susie was too wide to put through any ordinary pair of doors?"

"They were a little excited, I think, Janet. Later, when I learned that the barn was just a short distance from the field, I understood. They were in a hurry, afraid some one would come along. . . . They saw at last that the ship couldn't be put in the barn unless her wings were clipped, and I heard some one in the group call for an ax.

" 'Friend,' I said to the guard they'd posted over me, 'there's no sense in chopping that plane up. If you'll let me go over there, I'll have her wings off in three minutes by the watch.' You can imagine how I felt over the prospect of seeing Susie dissected with an ax."

" 'What's your game?' the fellow demanded. I told him I hadn't any; that I didn't want the amphibian cut up for nothing; that I could take off her wings quicker than they could cut them off. So he told me to get up and stay in front of him. Then he marched me over to the ship and told the other men what I'd said. 'Well, tell him to git at it and make it snappy,' one answered.

"They all gathered round while I jerked out cotter pins and one by one removed the king pins. You'd have thought I was boss of the gang, Janet. I told them where to get hold, to lift, to lower, to pull away, and they followed directions like a bunch of schoolboys. They even did as I suggested about shoving her inside and storing her wings."

Janet said suddenly: "But didn't you have a chance to slip out? They couldn't have found you in the dark once you got away."

"I wasn't thinking about escaping then, Janet. All I wanted was to get Susie properly put to bed. After that—well, if I'd had a chance, I'd have run for it, but the bruiser with the automatic was too attentive by that time. And what a pleasant young fellow he was. 'We don't know yet whether to bump you off or not,' he told me, 'but for the present you're going to spend some time in here with your precious airplane.'

"So they tied me up. You've no idea how many ropes they used . . . feet, hands legs, arms. I imagined I looked very much like an Egyption mummy by the time they were through. Then they fastened a gag in my mouth."

"You were rather securely tied and gagged when I saw you in that car," Janet told him.

"I'd never been untied," he replied quickly. "I'd forgotten you'd seen me. . . . I don't know how long I stayed in that barn, stretched out on a pile of gunny sacks. It must have been days. Then our friend with the car came in one night, took off the gag and gave me a couple of sandwiches. 'We're going for a ride, young man,' he said to me. 'If your boss uses his head, you'll be a free man in a couple of hours. If he doesn't——' I gathered that if Tolbert didn't follow instructions, I'd be taken for a ride of the Chicago type."

"Then," said Janet, "he carried you into New York, called Tolbert at the hotel to hold him up for your release, and I bawled things up in my own sweet way."

"So that was his game, was it? I wondered. . . . But what do you mean, you bawled things up?"

"Mr. Tolbert wasn't in," Janet explained, "and I got the call. Your friend gave me a line of his toughest talk, enough for me to figure things out. So I told him to hold the wire while I sent for Tolbert. Then I had the call traced, found out where he was, and lit out." She told him about the three men in the booths, of the big man with the missing fingers, and of his attempt to put her in the car.

"Lord, Janet! You've more nerve than a Bowery cop. Didn't you know you'd get yourself in trouble running out alone like that?"

"What difference did it make?" Janet demanded. . . . "But do you know why he didn't put me in the car? He saw Dick coming. I didn't recognize you, Hugh, until he was pulling me out. If I had, I'd have let him put me in, I think. But then he jerked me back and lit out."

"Who was the kid?" Hugh asked after a moment. "I could have kissed him the way he fought for you."

Janet told him about the bell boy. "But we're off the story," she said abruptly. "After——"

"After we'd left you? . . . Well, he evidently had everything figured out. He didn't stop for hours, it seemed to me. When he did, day was breaking and we were pulled up close to the door of a dilapidated little shack. This boy was good and mad. He pulled me out of the machine as if I'd been a sack of grain, dragged me into the shack, dropped me on the floor, and walked out, bolting the door from the outside.

"Then I discovered something interesting. All that moving about after he'd taken me out of the barn on Long Island had loosened one of the ropes around my arms. I lay dead still until I heard him go off in his car; then I got busy. Little by little, I worked my arms free until I could bend over and pull at the ropes about my legs and feet. . . . Thirty minutes after he'd gone, I was up and walking about without a rope on me."

"Gee, Hugh!" Janet cried, "this is as good as a movie. The hero's free, now to save the beautiful heroine."

"That," said Hugh, "is about the program I followed. But the beautiful heroine came very near to blowing me out of the picture."

"Hmm!" said Janet. "That's not part of the story. How'd you get out of the cabin"

"Nothng could have been simpler," Hugh assured her. Three-Fingers had bolted the door on principle only. To leave, I had only to raise one of three windows and step out. But I wasn't in any hurry. The first thing I did was look around until I found an old sashweight. Next I uncovered the antique razor and took off some of the beard. Then I sat down to wait."

"To wait? For what, Hugh?"

"Oh, I didn't know exactly; there was one chance in a hundred that Three-Fingers would come back; or perhaps one of his lieutenants."

"But, Hugh—if they had."

"One never knows," Hugh smiled, "but it would have been a world of fun to try out that sashweight on some thick head . . . But no one came and the day wore on. Then I began to figure things out. Three-Fingers, I decided, had chosen the least troublesome form of murder. With two sandwiches in several days, and with little or no liklihood of either food or water for several more, I'd very soon be out of the way . . . Another thing——" Hugh hesitated.

"Yes," said Janet; "another thing . . .?"

"I had an idea," Hugh resumed slowly, "that Three-Fingers had gone to square accounts with you."

"With me? You're joking, Hugh."

"I'm very, very serious, Janet. Why do you think he tried to take you in the car?"

"I've no idea," Janet admited. "I thought perhaps he was making a hobby of abductions."

"I'm glad you think it's funny," Hugh said patiently; "but has it occurred to you that Three-Fingers recognized you the moment he stepped out of the telephone booth and saw you sitting in the lobby?"

"But he couldn't have recognized me, Hugh. He'd never seen me before."

"I think you're mistaken there, Janet. Of course I may be wrong, but I've an idea Three-Fingers has known all of us at the field for a long, long time. I think he knows our histories, when we were born, how many lumps we take in our coffee . . ."

"But how?"

"That's guess, too, of course; but the logical assumption is that he has an agent in our midst. Now don't ask who it is, I don't know, though I've a strong suspicion."

"Why shouldn't I ask? I want to know, don't I?"

Hugh laughed. "When I'm sure I'm right, I'll tell you. Not before . . . Where was I when we started this argument?"

"You were loose in the cabin and in a fever to murder somebody."

"Oh, yes . . . Well, I left the cabin in the middle of the afternoon, found a highway and followed it. In less than an hour, I was in Stamford. I wired the detective firm Tolbert deals with in New York and they sent a man down. When he arrived, he admitted he had instructions to have me arrested."

"Can you beat it!" Janet exclaimed. "For what?"

"Stealing Tolbert's money, I suppose. The money, Susie and I disappeared at the same time. They found Susie, but the money and I were missing; what more natural than that they should take it for granted that we were together!"

"But he didn't have you arrested, did he?"

"Hardly. He wasn't a bad sort. He had brains enough to know I wasn't pulling any theatricals to cover up a theft, and after we'd mapped out a plan of action, he told me good-by and went to see the Stamford police alone."

"I suppose I'll be scolded if I ask what the plan of action is," Janet suggested.

"Oh, it's nothing exciting. He was to have the Stamford police post a guard near the shack, and I was to stay under cover. Not even Tolbert can know I'm here. You see, we don't know where the spy is, and if I'm missing long enough, some one may go up to the shack one of these days to make sure the corpse is there still. In which case we will be getting somewhere. . . . Meanwhile, Janet, you've got to be on your guard constantly. I mean that. And don't make any friends at the office. Keep your eyes and ears open, stay home nights and don't travel between the field and the city alone."

"Ye gods! Is it that bad, Hugh? You'd think I was some millionaire's only child . . . Can't you give me some idea in what quarter I'm to look for trouble?"

Hugh hesitated. "You're determined to worm it out of me, aren't you? All right, Janet, for your own protection I'll tell you whom I suspect. It's Belter."

"Oh, Hugh. Didn't you know——" But the memory of it was like a sharp pain, the recurrence of a horrible nightmare, and she shut her eyes and leaned heavily against the man sitting close beside her.

"Janet, what's wrong? Didn't I know what?"

"Belter, Hugh," she whispered . . . "Belter's been murdered . . . tonight."

For several minutes Hugh Temple was silent. Then he stood up and helped Janet to her feet. "That changes the program, Janet," he said at last. "Three-Fingers has started cleaning up, and the best place for me is back at the field. I can't protect you if I'm supposed to be dead."

MAN STATES SOCONY TRIED TO FIX PRICES

BILLION SUM INVOLVED

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Ernest O. Howe, who operates a gas filling station near Leominster, Mass., on the State road between Worcester and Fitchburg, testified today that officials of the Standard Oil Co. of New York brought pressure to bear on him to make him stop selling at a lower rate than that fixed by the company.

He was a witness in the Government's suit to prevent the proposed billion-dollar merger of Standard Oil of New York and the Vacuum Oil Co. He said a Mr. McKenzie, Socony branch manager at Marlboro, spent a week trying to persuade him not to sell Redcap gasoline as well as Standard Oil, and another three weeks trying to persuade him not to sell Socony below the prevailing price. He said Mr. McKenzie threatened to take out his Socony pump unless he complied, but that the threat had not been carried out.

"Are you still selling Socony?" Standard Oil counsel asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Howe, "and they call me up every day to see if they can't sell me more."

William C. O'Meara, vice president of the Quincy Oil Co., of Quincy, Mass., said his company sells the gasoline of Cities Service, the Shell Co. and the Beacon Oil Co.

Cities Service is the old division of Henry L. Doherty & Co. Mr. O'Meara testified that he recently received a proposal which he refused, from the Cities Service Co. for a contract for gasoline at five and one-half cents less than the price currently posted by Socony. This was the first testimony that any of the big companies had offered gasoline at less than the prevailing contract price.

In examining 13 operators of filling stations today John H. Amen, special assistant attorney general, tried to draw testimony that Socony fixes the retail price of gasoline to consumers in New York State and in New England and that it thus dominates the petroleum industry in that area. The witnesses all testified that the retail price of the brands of the major companies never varies for more than a day or two. They were less positive as to whether the lead in making price changes is always taken by Socony.

Director Turner Sails for Europe.

Scott Turner, director of the Bureau of Mines of the Department of Commerce, has sailed on the S. S. Bremen for England, where he will represent the American Institute of Metallurgical Engineers at the annual meeting of the Institution of Mining Engineers, to be held at Birmingham July 9-12.

CHINESE NATIONALS BEAT REBEL FORCES

TAKE QUANTITY OF ARMS

Shanghai, July 2 (A.P.).—Defeated along a 40-mile front in Honan Province, Northern Alliance rebels fought back fiercely today as government armies hammered them slowly toward the Yellow River banks.

Smashing through rebel lines extending from east of Lanfeng to west of Kaifeng, the Nationalists seized important positions in the battle that may decide the rebellion's fate. A surprise attack cut Northern defense near Lanfeng and sent rebels in wild flight. Government troops pursued to the Chihli Province border.

Five thousand rebels were captured west of Lanfeng, said Nationalist dispatches. Charging against heavy fire, government troops took 30 field guns, thousands of rifles and numerous machine guns.

Nationalists gained the advantage after ten days' hard fighting in the campaign to prevent rebels reaching Nanking and ousting Chaing Kai-Shek's government.

Undismayed by today's battering, Yen Hsi-Shan, Northern Alliance leader, announced his intention of ending dissension within his ranks by establishing an independent government at Peiping.

52 Buildings Bought By U. S. Government

Sale by Mrs. Margaret Smyth and the estate of Patrick Smyth of 52 lots, each containing a dwelling, in the neighborhood south of Bontanic Gardens, to the Federal Government for its future building activities in that section, was announced yesterday by the office of Boss & Phelps, which conducted the negotiations. The purchase price was not made public.

The property involved is all of square north 580 and parts of squares 580, 582 and 638. The houses front on Canal, C, D, First and Second streets southwest.

Rat Plague Imperils Mexican States.

Mexico City, July 2 (A.P.).—The department of agriculture today was asked by a delegation from Michoacan and Jalisco for aid in combating a rat plague in those states. The delegates declared millions of rats are overrunning 200,000 hectares of land, ruining crops, killing stock and threatening human lives.

Reichstag Adopts Amnesty Law.

Berlin, July 2 (A.P.).—The Reichstag today adopted, 290 to 135, an amnesty law by which all political offenders imprisoned for acts committed before September 1, 1924, will be pardoned excepting for personal attacks upon members of the government.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

If painstaking preparation has anything to do with the final merit of a screen performance, Lillian Gish's assumption of the role of Alexandra in "One Romantic Night," opening at the Palace on Saturday, should be well-nigh flawless.

"One Romantic Night" is the title applied to the camera and microphone version of Ferenc Molnar's play of "The Swan," and was pored-conned almost out of the studio while Miss Gish interviewed the author, consulted with Max Reinhardt, guessed she wouldn't essay the talkies and then decided that she would.

It has been generally conceded, I think, that "One Romantic Night," by reason of the odd processes of adaptation sometimes pursued in Hollywood, is not the play "The Swan" was, although its mood is almost unfailingly charming and stately.

As to Miss Gish's personal activities, the mikes are said to have been kinder than the lenses—but that is something upon which authorities might understandably differ.

The supporting cast is certainly one of seemingly judicious selection, being led by such stellar luminaries as Conrad Nagel, Rod La Rocque, Marie Dressler and O. P. Heggie.

If the indecision that attended "One Romantic Night" during the period of its inception as a phonodrama was calculated to arouse speculation as to precisely what Miss Gish might do with the Molnar play, that, at least, has been a huge success.

As long as we are prattling about the Palace, you might be interested in knowing that Dave Schooler, itinerant master of ceremonies—and a good one—and the cast of the "Steel Blues" stage unit, premiering Saturday, will arrive at the Washington airport at 12 noon Saturday in the sister ship of the plane in which Rear Admiral Byrd made his flight over the South Pole. The flight to Washington was arranged by Mr. Schooler, who is said to be as ardent a flying enthusiast as he is an indefatigable entertainer.

Note to Mr. Rubin: Since this is run as written, Dave better not come in on a train!

It just goes to show how easy it is to be talked out of a sure thing.

When it was first announced that Dick Leibert was returning to the organ console at the Palace for a brief engagement as guest organist, I spelled his name L-e-i-bert, as it should be. Then I observed that all of the official pronouncements from the theater spelled it L-i-e-bert, even to the screen trailers and newspaper ads. Sure that I was right, I still deferred to the apparently prevailing mode, punctuating my acquiescence, however, with several reasonably hot arguments about what the lad's name really is.

His name, if you care to know, is Leibert—L-E-I-bert—and it will so appear in this daily journal now, henceforth and forever. That is for the next fortnight, at least, since Dick's engagement at the Palace has been restored to its original month's duration, instead of being lopped off at the end of two weeks.

Yes, by popular demand—you can ask the man.

It slips what we playfully term our mind so often that we possibly had better let you know now that next week will bring these: Palace, Lillian Gish, Conrad Nagel and Rod La Rocque in "One Romantic Night;" Metropolitan, Walter Woolf and Vivienne Segal in "Golden Dawn;" Fox, George O'Brien and Helen Chandler in "Rough Romance;" RKO-Keith's, Richard Dix and Mary Lawlor in "Shootin' Straight;" Earle, Richard Arlen, Fay Wray and Jack Holt in "The Border Legion;" Columbia, Chester Morris, Robert Montgomery and Wallace Beery in "The Big House," second week.

It might be well to bear in mind that the new bills begin tomorrow, the glorious Fourth, at the Fox, Metropolitan and Earle Theaters. The others open Saturday.

Leon Brusiloff, maestro of the symphony at the Fox Theater, was host at a levee last evening at his home in Sixteenth street, at which a merry time was had by all and sundry. In fact, so delightful a time was had that the occasion scattered itself rather thoroughly over into today. Armida certainly established a tough precedent!

Congratulations to my erudite and esteemed contemporary who has just discovered the talkies after having aimed many vituperative blasts at them in the past. They've been that way a long time now.

Well, I hope you have a pleasant time with your sparklers!

Woman Lecturer Talks On Conditions in India

Conditions in India and problems confronting the British administration there were discussed yesterday by Mrs. George P. Becker at a luncheon meeting of the Business and Professional Women of Washington in the Raleigh Hotel. Mrs. Becker is a member of the India foreign committee who has recently completed an exhaustive study of the Eastern country.

Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, chairman of the India foreign committee, spoke on neglected tubercular children, and the dangers that result from the failure to provide early and adequate medical treatment.

Woman Gets Jail Term In Charge Account Case

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marie Leslie, found guilty of grand larceny in that she made jewelry purchases at stores here and in Philadelphia and charged them to the account of Mrs. Isaac Emerson, of Baltimore, without the latter's permission, today was sentenced to from three to six years in prison.

Mrs. Leslie, former housekeeper for the Emersons, pleaded that she had been authorized to make purchases for Mrs. Emerson, but the latter denied that such permission had been given. The purchases were made while the Emersons were abroad. Most of the jewelry was recovered from pawnshops and jewelry stores.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

CONTRARY to the general belief that the District of Columbia has been especially favored with broadcasting facilities by the Federal Radio Commission, the tabulation just made by the commission's own engineering division shows that it is 23 units under quota, on the basis of the new "yardstick" survey.

On more than one occasion the radio commissioners have told how they leaned over backwards to give Washington more than it was entitled to under the Davis amendment.

The inference was that they were dispensing this benevolence because Washington was the Capital and for that reason should be generously dealt with, law or no law.

Yet the unit count, which is based on the frequencies, power and time of operation, according to figures which The Post obtained at the commission, gives the District 1.3 units, whereas it is entitled to 1.53 units. While due .90 units in cleared channels, it has none; it is overquota in regional channels, having 1.1, while entitled to only .50; and in local channels it is underquota, having .2, while due 1.3 units.

Since each of Irving Berlin's songs are supposed to be written around some incident in his life, several relating to the courtship of his wife, his friends are looking forward to the one to be sung for the first time tonight.

The title will be announced during the concert. (RCA Hour—WRC—9 p. m.).

THE noble experiment at Station WBT, Charlotte, N. C., where supposedly a station, in an effort to better serve the community, was to be allowed its pick of the best features of both chains, has been shortlived. Following scarcely a fortnight of operation with the National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia programs, the NBC has gotten out from under, taking "Amos 'n' Andy" with them.

Thus Columbia, by acquiring a substantial interest in the station from its owner, M. K. Gilliam, a former Washingtonian, has secured its first full-time channel in the South. Columbia, to celebrate the acquisition, will soon apply for permission to install a 50,000 watt transmitter at Charlotte.

The sports announcers of the national networks become as tanned by the sun as the athletes they must so often describe.

Who, in the old days, would ever hav dreamed of a Fourth of July celebration in Old Gadsby's Tavern, in Alexanderia, being heard miles away in Virginia, the District of Columbia, Maryland, and goodness knows where. Yet that will be the case tomorrow night (WJSV, 8:30 p.m.).

Miss Katherine Seymour, one of the first persons to write exclusively for radio, produced the first dramatic radio continuity for Station WEAF in 1925.

THE Senate is evidently getting wise to the fact that if any one makes a speech over the radio with which any senator does not agree, on a controversial subject, such as the London naval treaty, if he lets out a yowl, an opoprtunity will always be given him to be heard defending the other side.

Cesare Sodero, grand opera maestro, is to inaugurate a series of summer "pop" concerts on Saturday night (WRC, 7 o'clock).

A benefit concert at the Reformed Church in Neshanic, N. J., will feature Anna Case, soprano, so well known to fans. Twenty years ago Miss Case was employed there as soloist for $12 a month.

Harry Reser, the chief Eskimo, claims to be a direct descendant of Davy Crockett, the Tennessee rifleman.

FROM Station WPG, Atlantic City: Fair Patron (to boardwalk shopkeeper)—Why, Mr. Snookums, you grow dearer and dearer!

Mr. Snookums—Shh, madam. Here comes my wife!

Dare Interprets the Mode

Tulle and velvet trim a black georgette dress printed in small red, yellow and green flowers. Note the elbow-length sleeve. (Courtesy of Poiret, Paris.)

Paris, July 2.

AND as to approaching the subject of the dinner dress from a different angle. So much has been said, by ourselves and others, about the adorable sleeveless frocks and their matching jacquettes that are worn for very elegant afternoon wear and dinner, jacquette on, and after dinner dancing finds Miladi formally gowned simply by the removal of the jacquette.

Well, haven't you an evening dress or two that you could make into the dinner gown by acquiring either a matching or a harmonizing jacquette? There are capes and bolero-coats and frilly scarf-things in all sorts of shapes and sizes that can be made to go over a formal dress already in your wardrobe. It wouldn't be a bad idea to look into this seriously.

For instance, if you have a crepe georgette frock in a plain color, the gayest touch you might add would be a printed chiffon jacquette to turn it into informal wear. Or, perhaps, a jacquette of a deeper shade of the same color as the dress. There are any number of perfectly adorable styles in these dinner coats, and it will practically add a new costume to your wardrobe, and possibly give that evening dress more wear, so that it won't hang in the closet until it goes out of style!

Printed chiffon handkerchiefs that are cut fan-wise! That's a new idea and a dainty one here in Paris this summer—so I have illustrated a couple for you on the right-hand corner.

I had my days of weeping over the futility of brassieres ever really giving the figure a natural contour and at the same time a good support. 'N' then I discovered the most be-e-e-autiful brassiere you can imagine — not so be-e-e-autiful to look at but what it accomplishes, I mean. And what would you say if I told you you can make it yourself, and one for evening wear, or one combined with a garter belt? Yes, you can, if you first send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet that tells you how to proceed. After you've read the leaflet, if you still think you can't do it yourself, you can give the directions to a corsetiere to make for you.

* * * *

For Him.

The next time he picks up the paper and reads about the races, he may get so enthusiastic on the subject he'll want to take you. And who knows, it might be his turn at last to wail, "I haven't got a thing to wear," or "What in name of a flower does a man, I mean a gentleman, wear to the races?"

Wouldn't it be a grand and glorious feeling to speak right up and say—"Why, dear, a gray or beige coat, waistcoat and trousers to match; a pleated white linen shirt with rounded cloth cuffs, a fancy light navy tie, or maybe a dark red one and a gray top hat." And, by the way, this is correct for such lightsome affairs as garden parties, too.

There are certain moments for certain dresses—I like to call these "mood" dresses, and Poiret has a flair for making just such.

I might say that today's black georgette dress, very sparsely and only occasionally printed with red, yellow and green small flowers, was that kind of a dress—a pretty temperamental one at that, that gave you tulle insertions in the skirt for lightness, black velvet ribbon at the edges of the skirt, ruffles and sleeves for somberness, and a beige tulle guimpe that tied in a jabot-collar effect at the neck, for, well, to make the dress prove that it was a "mood" dress after all.

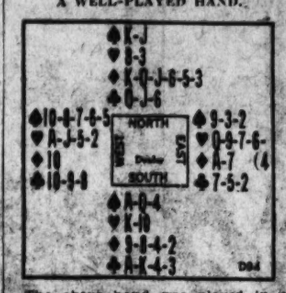
Au revoir!

Capital Man to Wed in New York.

Gervais F. Reed, 29 years old, a salesman, of the Ambassador Hotel, and Miss Leda M. Frye, 30 years old, of New York City, obtained a marriage license to wed yesterday in New York. They said they would be married in New York during July.

WORK ON BRIDGE

A WELL-PLAYED HAND.



The above hand was played in a Duplicate Contract tournament. As some tables South bid one No Trump, North three Diamonds, and South three No Trumps; at others North bid three No Trumps over South's one; at still others South began with one Club, North bid two Diamonds, and South followed with three No Trumps. So that at every table South was the Declarer, playing a three No Trump contract.

At Auction the bidding would have been simpler; South probably would have obtained the contract at one No Trump.

The outcome of the hand depended at many tables upon the way Declarer handled his Spades. West led the Six of Spades, and Declarer could see as assured three Spades and four Clubs. Declarer could also establish five Diamonds which would produce a total of twelve tricks if the Spades were continued when the adverse Ace of Diamonds won. Declarer's great danger was that East held the Ace of Hearts; with that distribution of the adverse Aces, it would be fatal if East shifted from Spades to Hearts after winning with the Diamond Ace.

Summer bridgers, get this valuable free new, twelve-page booklet, "Correct Bridge Play," a vacation time Guide Book of Auction and Contract laws clearly explained in nontechnical language and illumined with graphic examples by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Bridge and chairman of the rules committee of the American Bridge League. This booklet will decide all the moot points and many important conventions so frequently discussed at Bridge parties. It is yours with the compliments of The Washington Post upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope. Address Milton C. Work in care of The Washington Post.

In order to encourage their adversaries to continue Spades, most Declarers resorted to camouflage by playing South's Spade Ace on the first trick, overtaking North's Jack, or South's Queen under North's King. This could not decrease the number of Spade tricks taken; and it might make East think that one more lead would clear the suit for West.

In every instance in which the ruse was tried, it worked and East led a Spade after winning trick 2 with the Diamond Ace; and so Declarer made twelve tricks. At the tables where Declarer failed to think of this little scheme and won with the Jack of Spades, East (when he won with the Ace of Diamonds) led a Heart. West finessed and the adversaries took five Heart tricks, holding the Declarer to one-odd—quite a difference.

OYSTER SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE.

1 quart oysters.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 tablespoon flour.
1½ cups milk.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
Buttered bread crumbs.

Parboil the spaghetti for nine minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water into which one tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Scald the oysters in their own liquor, reserving the liquor. Make a white sauce by melting the butter and blending in the flour and the milk. Add the salt and pepper and cook until the mixture thickens, then add the liquor. Into a well-buttered casserole put alternate layers of spaghetti and oysters, finishing with the spaghetti and garnishing with a few oysters. Pour the white sauce over this, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a quick oven fifteen minutes. Scallops or clams may be substituted for the oysters.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Please tell me how to get rid of worms which infest the pots in which my house plants are growing.

A. E. B.

Lime water poured over the soil will cause the worms to come to the surface, where they may be collected and destroyed.

Please tell me how to treat my hollyhocks; the foliage turns rusty and then withers and dies.

A DAILY READER.

Hollyhocks, when grown for a number of years in the same place, are apt to be troubled with rust. This causes little trouble, however, among young, vigorous plants. A mixture of lime and sulphur blown under the leaves will prevent any serious outbreaks. Bordeaux mixture is also an effective remedy for hollyhock rust.

My husband and I are both amateur gardeners and feel we have a lot to learn. As yet we have no garden of our own, so we plant our friends' gardens, and have derived so much pleasure in knowing that so far we are meeting with success, due largely to your daily column, which we never fail to read. My husband planted some Japanese lilies and also some calla bulbs in pots before Easter. So far they have not bloomed. Please tell me the name of a plant of which I am inclosing some leaves. Is this plant hardy?

MARGARET H.

Not knowing the variety of Japanese lily you planted, I can not suggest its culture, but I can say that if you only planted the bulbs a month before Easter they have not had sufficient time to produce blooms. The calla rarely sets a bud until it is two years old. The plant of which you inclosed some leaves is a coleus, an annual which is not hardy. Am so glad you are enjoying your garden ventures and meeting with so much success.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed flowers. ANN P. G.

Viola (Jersey gem).

Please tell me the best way to grow a slip of ivy. I have planted one in sand which, while it has not died, has not developed roots.

MRS. GEORGE S. C.

You can root an ivy in sand or in water. Personally, I think it is easier to place a terminal branch, about a foot long, in a clear glass container of water. I suggest clear glass so the roots can have the benefit of light. Keep in a north window and replace the water as it evaporates or, better still, renew the water whenever the glass becomes blurred. Spray the foliage whenever you change the water with cold soapy water.

Please tell me how to prevent the lower leaves of my phlox from turning brown. Each year I have this trouble and I feel that you may be able to suggest a remedy. Is there any danger from transplanting Chinese lanterns at this time? Is there any advantage to be gained from using a mulch of peat moss around the roots of these plants? Is it wise to cut phlox back while they are making growth? In mid-summer my chrysanthemums always show a tendency to turn brown and become dry. Do they require any special spraying? When is the season to transplant lily-of-the-valley? When dividing Oriental poppies is it necessary to have a piece of root in each section?

MISS HELEN E. H.

The foliage of phloxes turns brown because the plants are too crowded or because they are mildewed. Whatever the cause, a few dustings of powdered sulphur, blown from a blower gun up through the foliage, will soon remedy the trouble. It is best to transplant Chinese lanterns in the early spring or late fall. A mulch of peat moss will prove beneficial. Better wait until after your phloxes have bloomed before cutting them back. Keep your chrysanthemums well watered and you will find that the foliage stays green. Healthy plants require no spraying except with water. You can transplant lily-of-the-valley any time after it has finished flowering. Be sure to add some bonemeal to the soil before planting the bulbs. Each piece of Oriental poppy must have a portion of root if it is to grow. One method of propagating these plants is to cut the roots into pieces two inches long and plant each piece in sandy soil.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Grandfather Says Budget.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Grandfather desires to say a word on family finance and the eternal battle waged about it in the home. "Addie," whose letter has started this wholesome and timely discussion, is wise to consider the subject before rather than after marriage. Now then, "Addie," let us consider:

Suppose we assume that our family is a young couple just married, the man earning $2,400 a year—somewhat above the earnings of the average young married man. First, this income must provide for shelter, rental or taxes; water, gas and light charges are fixed or "overhead" expenses; second, the family food and cost of supplies for the home which in the nature of things will fluctuate a little, but should not be allowed to pass an agreed-upon maximum. Then come clothing and the personal dodads of the modern man and woman; many of which ought to be relegated to oblivion in the interests of comfort, health and happiness. Next comes the family amusements, recreations or dissipations, according to their nature and their necessity. Last I place the family savings, which, in the order of actual importance, ought to be placed first.

I believe that, in all fairness, this financing of the family ought to be a matter of prenuptial and serious consideration. I believe it is well to make it a subject of frequent discussion as the years go on. Family life is a real business and needs careful financial management; for it is the source of most of the unhppiness which comes to married folk.

The point of greatest friction in this financial machine comes from the strain put upon it in the items "clothes and recreations." It is here the greatest temptation lies to spend more than the family income will stand. The grave fault of placing mere things before the great life-values has wrecked many a happy marriage. What is required is firm and rigid adherence to the family budget. Yes, Addie, a budget.

I believe the best course is for wife and husband to divide 50-50 on the matter of clothes and personal expenses, and stand or fall on such division. For a wife to ask her husband for money should never be humiliting if she needs it and has a good reason for needing it, and, take it from me, the husband will not refuse it, if the need is real and logical. But it is always better for the wife to have her personal share of the income to finance as she chooses. So 50-50 on personal expenses and the rest divided into the various headings under necessities.

Let me cite a case. A young man who sought to save his wife from all the financial responsibility, and at the same time tried to meet her desires for money to spend, found himself several hundred dollars in debt, and was called to the carpet by his employer, when he sought a loan from a fellow-employe. The young man disclosed to his employer the "fix" he was in. The latter suggested a family council, a show-down, and the appointment of a fiscal agent to disburse the family income, until the debts were discharged, the ship righted and seaworthy! This was done. The young wife was at first amazed, then convinced, and she cooperated for necessary economy as a true wife should. She readily agreed to the small personal income she could be given and proved so good a manger that when affairs were straightened out she became treasurer of the family budget, and the husband was ever more relieved from racking family care, and was content with his carfare and cigar money, which proves women need only to be given the facts and they respond most capably!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU.

"CANCER."

IF July 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and 8 p. m. to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m.

Influences on this date will be overstimulating, and there may be a tendency to overdo things. Special health warnings. Play for safety in all things. Do not change, or start new affairs. Listen to a friend's advice.

The child born on this July 3 will have a clever brain, but will lack stability to achieve marked success. It will never stay "put," and will long for travel and adventure. It would be best for it not to strike out for itself too young in life.

Your directness is startling to most people. You do not only call a spade a spade, but you double spades. Your sincerity is appreciated, but a little more tact and diplomacy would also be appreciated. You do not want to be disillusioned, you want life in the raw, unadorned by any veneers of any kind. It would be difficult to shock you, but your feelings are often harrowed by the unpleasant things about which you insist upon knowing or seeing.

There are few people who are more kindly disposed, or who have kinder motives than you have. You may scold when scolding is due, but your bark is worse than your bite. Because of your abruptness and gruffness you are sadly misunderstood and needlessly grieved. You approach people with gifts in the wrong manner, and for this reason they are not always accepted. You are a genuine "democrat," but you lead others to believe that you are a snobbish aristocrat.

You are so conscientious about your work that you make drudgery about it and for this reason others far less deserving stride ahead of you. You do not know how to conceal any of your faults or weaknesses. You shove them in the limelight and keep your good points behind the scenes. You have a strong attraction to home life, marriage, friendships, social and domestic matters, and to the emotional side of your nature generally, and you will prosper in such matters.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

MOSQUITO REPELLENT.

FROM Indiana there comes a new recipe for a mosqito repellent. It is one-half ounce of oil of citronella, one-quarter ounce of spirits of camphor, one-quarter ounce of cedarwood oil and two ounces of white petrolatum. The petrolatum is melted by means of heat. When it is just above the melting point the oils and camphor should be added and the mixture stirred thoroughly. If the temperature is too high the camphor and oils will be vaporized and driven off. If too low, the petrolatum will not mix well. The mixture should be poured into clean, large-mouth bottles or jars, stopped and quickly set in the refrigerator or on ice or in cold water. This cream should be rubbed in the skin of the face and hands or the hair should be greased with it.

The use of camphor, cedar oil and citronella as a repellent is not new. The advantage of this mixture is that the grease base holds the volatile oils and makes it possible for one application to serve for several hours and, perhaps, for a night. The advantage of petrolatum as a base over Bob Becker's fish oil is that the user can mingle in polite society without it being suspected that he worked in a fertilizer factory.

The same repellent can be tried against biting flies, chiggers, ticks, fleas, lice and bedbugs. Scientists have devoted a great deal of study to mosquitoes. They know their habits, their likes and dislikes, their tastes and their ways of thinking and, based on this knowledge, they have done much to bring them under control. But not much is known about the psychology of bedbugs or the other insects mentioned. Scientists have noted that lice did not like kerosene and napthalene.

Probably a petroleum ointment containing one or both of these would be better as a louse preventive. Some have noticed that chiggers do not like sulphur. Probably, when they are to be protected against these, a petrolatum cream containing sulphur would be better. Fleas do not like napthalene. A napthalene cream might be used as a flea repellant.

I know of no repellants which have proved useful against biting flies, ticks and bedbugs. Perhaps some of our correspondents have had favorable experiences.

Nutmeg or cinnamon.
Whites of 2 eggs.
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Wash the rice and cook it with the sugar, the salt, and the milk until soft and thick, stirring it frequently. Soak the gelatin in the cold water, stir it into the hot rice mixture, add the spice, and let the mixture cool. When nearly set, fold in the whites of eggs beaten stiff, stir in the vanilla, and turn the mixture into molds. Serve with whipped cream or with a custard sauce, dotted with tart jelly. This will make eight or ten servings.

1,231,000-SHARE DAY MARKS LOW RECORD

SMALL GAINS RECORDED

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Professionals had the stock market all to themselves today, but found it hard to keep busy. Trading slumped to the smallest volume in two years, totalling only 1,231,000 shares, representing more or less routine short covering and profit-taking.

The apathy was laid at the door of the impending holiday. In fact, many operators had already left town for an extended celebration, and the floor traders furnished a large percentage of the day's business.

After opening a little higher, the market ran into selling which centered on U. S. Steel. When the stock refused to break below yesterday's close, traders were satisfied to take a conservative position and a covering movement began throughout the list. Under this influence prices rose consistently until late in the last hour when profit-taking reduced the improvement, leaving net gains of 1 to 2 points in many active shares.

A comprehensive view of the liquidation during June was made available in the monthly figures of New York Stock Exchange member borrowings. This tabulation, which is broader in scope than the Federal Reserve loan compilation, disclosed a reduction of $1,020,120,623 in collateral borrowings last month, bringing the total down to $3,727,711,269, or nearly half of the aggregate a year ago.

Steel Review More Optimistic.

The weekly reviews of the iron and steel industry seemed somewhat more optimistic. Iron Age reasoned that the holiday shutdowns of many plants would "promote the liquidation of manufactured goods in stock and clear the way for fresh purchases of materials." The periodical also reported that resistance to price pressure was becoming more determined and noted "a growing relief that the market is scraping bottom." American Metal Markets said that with the general rate of ingot production down to an average of about 60 per cent for the first half of July "the bad news in steel is probably all out." It added the qualification that there probably remained a decline in the open market on bars, shapes and plates, "but should that occur it would be by way of stabilization and would leave the market in better shape than of late."

Commodity prices were irregular, but wheat closed nearly a cent higher and corn was up ⅞ to 1⅛. Cotton sagged during the early trading but recovered on short covering and made small net changes. July sugar broke to new low ground for all time at 2.12 cents a pound and the general market was 3 to 6 points off at the close.

Further indications of unsettlement in copper were seen in the offerings of a few custom smelters at 11½ cents a pound, a cut of a half cent. Other custom smelters and all producers, however, continued to quote the recent price, and the reduction by the minority was generally regarded as insignificant.

Call Money Rates Firm.

Call money held firm at 2½ per cent, for loan calling by banks moderated substantially. The Boston and Philadelphia Federal Reserve banks cut their rediscount rates half a 1 per cent to 3 and 3½, respectively.

Only a few stocks got out of the day's narrow price range. Industrial Devon closed 4 points higher, Eastman Kodak 3, J. I. Case 3, and Allied Chemical 4. Simmons was heavy, touching a new low in the forenoon and closing off 2 points.

Net gains of 1 to 2 points were made by American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Atchison, Consolidated Gas, North American, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Sears Roebuck and Southern Pacific.

Foreign currencies were stronger. Reports that the Spanish government was contemplating a return to the gold basis rallied the peseta sharply. Sterling Cables advanced 3-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago July 2 (A.P.).—Disturbed by reports of tremendous shortage in this season' French wheat crops as compared to last year, the wheat market here burst suddenly upgrade today. Cables were received indicating a yield of only 257,000,000 bushels for 1930, showing 84,000,000 bushels reduction from the 1929 total. Old standing out sharply against a five-year average of 280,000,000 bushels. Active purchasing of wheat future deliveries here was also stimulated by relative scantiness of primary receipts today in the United States and by persistent advices that farmers were refusing to sell as freely as in general has been the rule of harvest. More than overcoming early setbacks, the Chicago wheat market closed nervous, almost the day's top level, 1 to 1½ cents net higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 to 1¼ cents advanced, oats a shade to ⅛ up, and provisions varying from 15c decline to 7c rise or so.

Late bulges in wheat values today were a decided contrast with a sagging tendency displayed earlier. Aside from anxiety aroused over the crop outlook in France, a possibility of further unexpected developments during the triple holiday period which starts on Friday was also a factor in bringing about the late quick reversal of the course of the market. Meanwhile, the arrivals of domestic wheat at primary points today amounted to but 1,049,000 bushels compared with 1,696,000 bushels a year ago, and advices from the Southwest, where harvest operations are in progress indicated relatively little selling pressure on the markets there.

Contributing impetus to the late upward swing of wheat values was unlooked-for strength displayed by the corn market as a result of prospective meager receipts of corn hereafter until the wheat harvest is ended. On the other hand, monthly unofficial crop estimates issued here today made a notable bearish exhibit, and were largely responsible for depressing the wheat market during the first part of the day. The estimates indicated about 1,000,000 bushels more wheat for the United States than was unofficially forecast a month ago, and pointed to likelihood of 77,000,000 bushels more wheat in Canada than last year.

In the corn market, free selling failed to break prices early when wheat values were on the downgrade. Besides, offerings of corn proved scarce when sellers failed to change sides and Government advices current today were to the effect that the corn crop as a whole is backward, although at present making good progress. Oats touched new low price records for the season, but afterward advanced with corn and wheat.

Provisions were neglected and irregular, closing indemnities. Wheat—July, 90¾; September, 94¼; 97¾, December 1.03⅝. Corn—July, 75¼; 77¼, September 74½; 76⅝@76¾, December 68⅝@70¼.

INVESTMENT BONDS HEAD GENERAL RISE

Convertibles, Several Rails and Latin American Issues Advance.

VOLUME DROPS HEAVILY

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—A higher price level was reached by a wide list of investment bonds in a firm market today. Trading however, was dull, and the volume dropped more than $1,000,000 from yesterday.

In some instances impressive improvement was effected by bonds in both the domestic and foreign lists as reinvestment demand was felt. Latin American issues were especially strong among foreign bonds, and carrier issues, both prime and secondary liens, and convertibles found favor in the domestic group.

Only a few first grade rails were very active and higher. Improvement was more marked among less active issues. Gains of from ⅛ to ¾ were frequent and in a few instances the improvement exceeded a point. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s scared 4 points, Soo Line 5s nearly 4 and Hocking Valley 4½s 1¼. Atchison General 4s, a leading savings bank issue, duplicated their high of the year, and then sagged ½ point lower than yesterday.

Baltimore & Ohio Active.

Several other popular prime liens eased fractionally, in thin trading. The Baltimore & Ohio 4½ was the most active convertible bond and high prices were the rule.

Utility issues were little changed, but maintained a firm trend. American Telephone 5s of '65, equaled its high price of the year. Chicago Railway 5s advanced 1½ points to a new high as a merger of traction lines was approved. High-grade bonds of Western Union, Consolidated Gas and Postal Telegraph advanced.

Wide changes occurred among the less stable class of industrials. Some of the sugar issues were further depressed. Manati Sugar 7½s, which has suffered wide fluctuations, dropped 9½ points, and was again close to the year's low price. Pan American Petroleum 6s lost 3 points to find a new year's bottom.

Foreign Section Mixed.

Various issues of Bolivian, Chilean, Colombian and Argentine governments rallied sharply to lead the advance of the foreign group. Peruvian issues sagged. Trondhjem 5½s gained 1½ points to reach a new high. Sao Paulo 7s, and Kreuger & Toll 5s made good gains. Australia 4½s were specially active and dropped 1⅛ to a new year's low.

The turnover in United States Government issues was small, but the upward trend was maintained and Liberty fourth 4¼s and Treasury 3½s of 1940-1943, sold at the highest prices of the year.

New offerings tomorrow will include $15,000,000 Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois 4½ per cent refunding mortgage bonds.

June Call Reveals Figures Totaling $262,061,700; Many New Accounts.

28 FIRMS SHOW GAINS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The growth of the saving habit locally was reflected yesterday in the response of Washington's banks to the third call of Comptroller of the Currency Pole for the year, revealing total deposits June 30 of $262,061,700.35, an increase of $5,790,779.42 over the preceding call date, March 27.

Local bankers generally had predicted the latest call would show an increase in deposits because of greater savings and the opening of many accounts in savings banks and savings departments of national banks and trust companies. They said this factor would offset vacation withdrawals, those due to application of the new tax on intangible property and unemployment.

Their forecast was substantiated by yesterday's returns showing increases in all three types of institutions. The 12 national banks presented an aggregate of $141,505,483.67, a gain of $3,286,558.50 over those of the last call date; the 6 trust companies gave a total of $79,371,574.79, an advance of $1,043,271.94, while deposits of the 22 savings banks showed an increase of $1,460,948.98 in a total of $41,184,641.89.

12 Banks Show Declines.

Twenty-eight of the 40 banks of the city listed gains over the preceding call dates. Six national banks showed increases and six declines. Riggs National and National Metropolitan revealed gains of more than $2,000,000 and $1,000,000, respectively. Four of the trust companies listed larger deposits, American Security & Trust Co.'s increase amounting to more than $1,000,000. Eighteen of the savings banks had a greater amount of deposits than those shown by the March call.

A complete tabulated report of the returns to the latest call is published in this issue.

Election of Louis Denton Bliss, president of Bliss Electrical School, to the directorate of the National Metropolitan Bank was announced yesterday following a meeting of that body. Mr. Bliss was born in Newburgh, N. Y., in 1871, and completed his education in Columbian, now George Washington University, in this city. He founded Bliss Electrical School in 1893, and has directed its educational work for 36 years.

He was a member of the town council of Takoma Park, Md., 1920-1921, is a life member of the National Association of Stationary Engineers, a fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, an associate member of the Edison Pioneers, a member of the Cosmos Club and Takoma Park Citizens Association, and a past president of the Federated School Men's Club. Mr. Bliss is the author of "Theoretical and Practical Electrical Engineering," a two-volume work in its third edition.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Washington Real Estate Board yesterday, it was recommended that offices of members of the board remain closed from Thursday evening, July 3, to Monday morning, July 7, in observance of the national holiday. The Washington Stock Exchange will also close during that period.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Early declines in cotton today under selling, inspired by reports of more favorable weather in the South and relatively easy cables were followed by rallies on covering, which found comparatively few contracts for sale after early offerings had been absorbed.

July contracts sold up from 13.35 to 13.52 and closed at 13.50, compared with 13.53 at the close of the previous day, while the new October advanced from 12.96 to 13.14 and closed at 13.11.

The general market closed firm at a decline of 3 points on July, but generally 1 to 3 points higher on new-crop months.

The opening was steady at a decline of 6 to 18 points. Some July liquidation, attributed to the circulation of notices representing about 5,200 bales in the market here, was accompanied by scattered selling of new-crop months on reports of lower temperatures and showers or rains in the South and the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. The old October contract sold off to 13.26 and the new December to 13.12 during the middle of the morning, when some additional selling was promoted by favorable features in weekly reports of the Weather Bureau.

Offerings tapered off soon after its publication, however, as if a favorable report had been discounted, and the market steadied up during the afternoon on covering. Old October sold at 13.39 in the late trading and the new December at 13.29, and the close was within a point or two of the best on most of the active positions.

Another private crop report was published placing the condition at 70.5, compared with 71 at this time last year, which appeared to be without and particular effect on the market. The weekly report of the Weather Bureau was commented upon by local traders as generally favorable, except for its references to dry weather in some western and central belt sections, the effects of which seemed to be minimized by the showers shown in today's detailed reports. Reports of a firmer tone in the wheat market were probably a contributing factor on the late rally.

Liverpool reported general selling there on the weather news from the South. Exports today, 11,166, making 6,672,041 so far this season. Port receipts, 4,655. United States port stocks, 1,651,525.

Curb Review

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Professional activity in a few pool favorites barely kept trading alive in today's Curb Market. Most traders were disinclined to undertake anything marketwise until after the triple holiday starting Friday. Total sales were 442,600 shares, the lowest for a full session in two years.

Prices were generally steady to firm. Electric Bond & Share was again an active feature. It was bid up 3 points, again crossing 80, but lost about half its gain before the close. United Gas new rose fractionally in active trading. Missouri, Kansas Pipe Line, a natural gas issue which was a strong feature in May, gave the best account of itself in weeks, rising about 3 points to 26½, then slipping back a point. It reached 36¼ in its rise of a few weeks ago.

A strong spot in the industrials was Hezeltine, which shot up 5 points, getting above 30. The floating supply of this issue is comparatively small. The radio group generally was dull. Among the foreign issues, Marconi Wireless dropped more than 2 points to the low of the year on declaration of a smaller dividend, and Cables and Wireless sagged on omission of class A and B dividends. The insurance and specialty group was generally quiescent. Deere rallied a point and Technicolor again eased. Knott Corporation dropped 3 points to a new 1930 low.

The investment trust and investment and holding company group was generally steady to firm. Such issues as Transamerica, Prince & Whitely Trading, United Founders and Goldman Sachs gained fractionally, and Overseas Securities mounted 2 points. Blue Ridge common sagged.

A gain in crude production in Texas last week, and gasoline price cutting in California, kept the oil group dull. Cities Service sagged ⅝, then reduced its loss to ⅛. Standard of Indiana closed up ¼, and Gulf mounted 1½.

NATS DEFEAT BROWNS, 5-4 AND 5-3, TO GAIN IN RACE; AMERICA ASSURED BOTH MEN'S AND WOMEN'S NET TITLES

Tilden Beats Borotra in England

Allison Stops Doeg; Mrs. Moody, Miss Ryan Survive.

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2 (A.P.).—America today made sure of winning the British Tennis championships in both men's and women's singles by placing big Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan in the final round.

Thus the final for Wimbledon's two most coveted crowns on Saturday will be all American affairs. No foreign nation ever before has been able to monopolize both singles finals in the history of this tournament which goes back to 1877.

For the last six years the famous "musketeers" of France won the Wimbledon crown in the men's division and five of these six times two Frenchmen battled for the honors in the final. But today the American champion, Tilden, disposed of his old rival, Jean Borotra, by scores of 0—6, 6—4, 4—6, 6—0, 7—5, to complete the elimination of the French stars begun on Monday when his young countryman, Wilmer Allison, upset the defending title holder Henri Cochet.

Allison Qualifies For Final.

Allison himself qualified to meet Tilden in the final by stopping his young Davis Cup team mate, Brawny John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., 6—3, 4—6, 8—6, 3—6, 7—5, in another thrilling semifinal this afternoon.

The day's sensational developments included the collapse of plucky little Cecilie Aussem, of Germany, who suffered a badly sprained ankle in the third set of her match with Miss Ryan and was forced to withdraw, the American winning by default after having taken the first set, 6—3, losing the second, 0—6, and fighting on even terms at 4-all in the third.

Mrs. Moody, the defending champion, became the other finalist, beating Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 6—3, 6—2. She is heavily favored to defeat her fellow Californian, a veteran who has lived in this country so long that she is regarded almost as an English player.

German Miss on Even Terms.

The unfortunate mishap that cost Fraulein Aussem a chance to reach the final came at a most dramatic moment when she had battled to even terms by winning the second set, and was waging a hard battle for the third. In trying for one of Miss Ryan's chopstrokes she fell headlong, spraining her ankle severely.

The score was 40-love against her, but she hobbled to her service position and was trying to continue play when she crumpled to the ground. Her collapse was attributed to a combination of the pain from the injured ankle and the heat of the day. Ambulance attendants carried her off the court on a stretcher.

Return Match For Sharkey Called Off

Schmeling's Manager Balks on Buelow's Agreement.

Sailor Is Discouraged by News; Already Had Signed.

NEW YORK, July 2 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—There will be no fight between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship of the world here this year. All negotiations were mutually callde off by Frank Bruen, representing Madison Square Garden, and Joe Jacobs, representing Schmeling, at a conference tonight, after Jack Sharkey had signed articles for the fight earlier in the day.

The impasse came when Jacobs demanded that Madison Square Garden obtain a "general" release of all claims held by Arthur Bulow, deposed manager of Schmeling, against the German who is now recognized as heavyweight champion of the world by virtue of a "foul" victory over Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium last June 12.

Sharkey had agreed to pay Buelow the latter's 20 per cent of Schmeling's purse out of his own end, which was 12½ per cent of the gate. Buelow had agreed to this, and said he would release all future claims against Schmeling. But Jacobs demanded more. He wanted Buelow to waive all claims or possible suits he might be contemplating for past sums due him, from theatrical or other work. This the Garden couldn't get Buelow to do.

Bruen, Jacobs Agree To Disagree.

And so, after they had argued for a couple of hours tonight, Bruen and Jacobs agreed to disagree, and Madison Square Garden announced that so far as it was concerned, the fight was off definitely.

Sharkey's manager, Johnny Buckley, and his legal advisor, Jack Conway, after spending a couple of days here, signed articles for the fight today and left for Boston, confident that everything was settled and the fight would take place on September 28 in the Yankee Stadium.

Schmeling sailed for Germany last Friday. He, too, left apparently convinced that he would be matched to fight Sharkey in September. His plans called for a visit to his mother in Germany, and a return here late in August to go into training at Endicott, N. Y.

The plan of having Sharkey pay off Buelow's claim had been discussed and approved by Schmeling. If the fight had gone through as scheduled, it would have been the first time in the history of the heavyweight title that a world's champion defended his title within 90 days after having won it.

Sharkey Discouraged By News.

Sharkey was the most discouraged man in Boston when he heard that negotiations had been called off and the fight abandoned.

"Say, are you trying to kid me?" he asked over the long-distance telephone. "Why, Buckley and Conway only signed articles today in New York and everything is all set."

When he learned that Jacob's demands had been too much for the Garden people to grant, Sharkey waxed angry and exclaimed that Jacobs knew in his hear all along that he had no intention of giving him a chance to redeem himself against the German fighter.

"He knows I can lick his man," said Jack, "and he only kept poling on conditions until he forced the Garden to cancel the match. That ought to prove to the public that I can beat Schmeling."

Notre Dame Man Succeeds McAuliffe as C. U. Coach

ARTHUR J. BERGMAN.

WITHOUT explanation, Catholic University last night, through its administrative office, announced the resignation of John B. (Jack) McAuliffe as director of athletics and head football coach, and the appointment of Arthur J. Bergman, former Notre Dame quarter back, as his successor.

The announcement, it was learned, was authorized one week ago by Dr. James H. Ryan, rector of the university, after he had personally accepted McAuliffe's resignation and hired the new coach. Dr. Ryan departed last Thursday for Europe, disclosing few details of the matter pertaining to McAuliffe and leaving instructions that the announcement be given out this week.

McAuliffe, who now is believed to be at his home in Worcester, Mass., had still one more year to serve under his contract with the Brookland institution. In the opinion of well informed C. U. officials interviewed by The Post last night, he resigned voluntarily.

McAuliffe's Reason Not Known.

What reason McAuliffe may have had for resigning could not be learned from those interviewed. The announcement, which had been prepared and dated for release today, failed to give a reason and only said that McAuliffe's plans were not known.

When he left the university at the close of the academic term last month, McAuliff did not even intimate that he contemplated quitting. Rather, he seemed enthusiastic about returning

Cubs Defeated, 6 to 5; Grimes Chased by Umpire.

ST. LOUIS, July 2 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins returned to first place in the National League by a small fraction of a percentage point today by defeating the Cardinals, 6 to 5, in the second and final game of the series while the Chicago Cubs were losing to New York.

Burleigh Grimes started on the mound for St. Louis but was put out of the game after the second inning for protesting Umpire Rigler's decisions on balls and strikes.

DOUBLE BILL DIVIDED BY MACKS

Earnshaw Wins, 7-2, After Tigers Take Opener, 4-3.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics and Detroit Tigers divided a doubleheader here this afternoon, Detroit winning the first game 4 to 3 to break the champions' winning streak of five in a row. The Mackmen came back in the closer to win out behind George Earnshaw, 7-2.

Earl Whitehill, though relieved in the ninth inning, had all the Mackmen stopped in the first game except Al Simmons, whose three hits figured in all three of the losers' tallies. Three runs the Tigers scored off Mahaffey in the third inning gave them a lead the Athletics never overcame.

In the second fray, the Athletics clubbed Waite Hoyt, for 10 hits and five runs in six innings. Al Simmons kept up his hard hitting by whaling his seventeenth home run of the season with one aboard in the first inning.

Ruth Injured As Yankees Split Bill

Tears Off Nail Trying for One of Reynolds' 3 Home Runs.

N. Y. Wins First, 5-1; White Sox Annex Second, 15-4.

NEW YORK, July 2 (A.P.).—Carl Reynolds brought the Chicago White Sox back into the limelight today after they had lost the first game of a double-header to the Yankees, 5 to 1, and led them to a 15-to-4 triumph in the second. He also equaled two records by his own batting feats.

Reynolds started the second game by hitting two homers off Charley Ruffing, then added a third off Holloway in his third consecutive time at bat and the third consecutive inning. Only other player to do this was George Kelly, of the Giants, who performed the feat in 1923. Although several have hit three successive homers, and Bobby Lowe, of the old Boston Nationals, once hit four in a row, Reynolds also tied the American League record of eight runs batted in.

Ruth Loses Nail Chasing Reynolds' Homer.

Roy Sherod was in fine form in the opener and held the Sox to three hits, while Babe Ruth capped their two big innings by hitting his thirty-first home run of the season, putting him 22 games and 22 days ahead of his 1927 record. Ruth tore the nail off a finger trying to get Reynolds' second homer and had to leave the game.

Ruth attempted to catch the ball as it sailed into the right field bleachers just above the screen and crashed into the netting. The second finger of his left hand was caught in the wire.

Barring the possibility of infection, the Babe probably will be kept out of action for several days xand his ability to swing his mighty bat may be hampered for an even longer time.

Ruth can endure a small setback, however, for he hit his 31st homer of the year in the opening game.

CROWDER WINS 4-HIT NIGHTCAP AFTER DOUBLE BY WEST DECIDES OPENER IN 12-INNING THRILLER

Johnson Orders Batting Practice for Nats Today.

Marberry and Jones to Face Yankees Tomorrow.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TODAY is an open one on the schedule, but Manager Walter Johnson has decreed that it will not be one of rest, for a short batting drill has been listed for this morning. The Nat leader is particularly anxious to have his men at the very top of their form in readiness for tomorrow's double-header with the New York Yankees.

At first, morning and afternoon games were considered for this holiday bill, but it now has been decided to play two games in the afternoon for one admission, with the first getting under way at 1:30 o'clock.

Second place and a chance to gain on the Macks will be at stake in this set with the Yankees, four games being listed, as single ones are booked for Saturday and Sunday, this latter contest ending the Nats' home stay. In the seven games which the Nationals have played with "Ruth and company" this season, the Johnsons have won five, but the Yankees have shown terrific hitting power since and the Capital Cityans will have to be at their very best if they hope to get the better of the "Big Towners" in the coming set.

Marberry and Jones To Hurl.

Fred Marberry, who showed dazzling form in downing the Browns Monday and who has been winning with the minimum of rest of late, will draw the Washington mound assignment in one of tomorrow's games, with the veteran "Sad Sam" Jones getting the call in the other. Whether or not the latter, usually quite effective against the Yankees, will be effective remains to be seen, as he has been out because of illness for more than a month. He declares he is ready, however, and has shown all of his usual stuff in practice.

Sam Rice, who has been out of the line-up for several days, got back in action yesterday, while Muddy Ruel, who has been troubled with a bruised finger, also is back on the job. This means that Johnson will have all of his regulars available to toss in against the Yankee horde.

An X-ray examination report yesterday from the Washington club physician showed that the injured knee of First Baseman Harley Boss, returned to the Nats by Jersey City, is not in bad shape. No bones were clipped, as the "Skeeters" reported when they returned the infielder and neither is an operation necessary for a floating cartlidge, as was reported. In view of this information, President Clark Griffith plans to try to place the youngster on option with some team which will use him regularly. If the Nat owner cannot find a spot for Boss, he will keep him here, as he is considered too good a prospect to be turned loose.

Babe Has no Homers Off Nat Hurlers.

Despite the fact that Babe Ruth, the Yankee slugging king, is now

EARL McNEELY, former Nat flychaser, is proving to be quite a handy man for the Browns. With Lu Blue injured and sent back to St. Louis with a sore arm, the "Earl of Sacramento" has drawn the first-base assignment. He opened the double-header yesterday with a Texas League single to left.

Due to the fact that Hadley fanned five in the first two innings and another fouled to Ruel, the Nat catcher was credited with the first six Nat putouts.

O'Rourke made quite a nifty stop of Bluege's bad-bounding grasser in the third.

Ending the third round, Hadley sent Schulte far over toward right-center for a hard-hit liner.

In the fourth, Cronin went to short left-center to turn in a nice over-the-shoulder catch of Ferrell's near Texas Leaguer.

Cronin, Manush Are Chief Hitting Heroes of Double Bill.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ABOUT 12,000 fans turned out at the Clark Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon to see the Nationals and Browns in their doubleheader, which ends the second Washington invasion of Western clubs, and all went home feeling that they got their money's worth. Not only did the home gang take both games, thus gaining on both the leading Athletics and the Yankees, who were tied with them for second place, these two teams splitting a double-header, but the manner in which the Nats did so was what particularly pleased the cash customers.

In the first game the Nationals three times came from behind, twice in extra innings, to earn the verdict.

SNOWFLAKE WINS IN ARLINGTON PARK'S FEATURE

Salmon Filly Takes Race In Drive

Manta Wins Latonia Feature; Erin Victor at Aqueduct.

CHICAGO, July 2 (A.P.).—Snowflake, 3-year-old filly from Walter J. Salmon's Stable, captured the Geneva Handicap, the feature attraction at the Arlington Park Race Track today. Lady Broadcast, from R. Cardwell's string, was a close-up second, and Valenciennes, from Mrs. J. D. Hertz's Stable, was third. Only five horses started.

The race was for fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward, over the mile distance out of the chute and was run in the fast time of 1 37 3-5, just one-fifth of a second slower than the track record. It was worth $1,400 to the winner, which rewarded her backers at $5.02 for a $2 ticket.

Snowflake was away fast, but was taken in restraint and reserved to the stretch, where responding gamely when let down, gradually wore down the leaders and was up to win by a head in a hard drive. Lady Broadcast, considerably used up in chasing the leaders, raced Supreme Sweet into submission and went into a momentary lead near the end, but then weakened lasting to take the place by one length.

Valenciennes Runs Good Race.

Valenciennes, always close up, ran a good race to take third money by half a length from Supreme Sweet. The latter was taken into the lead right after the start and held on until the last furlong when she weakened. Ben Machree, the only other starter, was never better than last.

Eskimo won the third race, this being the third time it and Snowflake have earned purses on the same card. The two previously had scored at Bowie and at Washington Park.

Beautiful Doll graduated by winning the opening race and established a new track record for the distance. Her time was 0:59 3-5, two-fifths of a second faster than the record of 1:00.

Manta First in Latonia Feature.

Latonia, Ky., July 2 (A.P.).—Brownell Combs' Manta, a 3-year-old daughter of Cudgel, won the fourth and feature event of this afternoon's card, styled the Hanlin Hotel Handicap. It was over the 6-furlong route, the winner covering the distance in 1:13 3-5, and paid 16.62 for $2. Easter Stockings was second and Tantivy third.

Manta beat the gate and led the entire route, but was tiring at the end, outstaying Easter Stockings, to win by a length.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., July 2 (A.P.).—Erin, bay daughter of Transmute and Rose O'Grady, made a show of her field in winning the Gazelle Stakes, feature race at a mile and a sixteenth here today. The filly carried 118 pounds and ran the distance in 1:46. Erin was coupled with Flying Gal and paid 12 to 5. The Spare, in the Sagamore silks, was second, and H. P. Whitney's Flimsy third. The start was good, Flimsy and the Spare going away on even terms and they quickly drew away from the rest of the field. Erin was kept in third position. The fast early pace told on Flimsy and the Spare with the result that when Erin challenged in the final quarter mile they had nothing left and Erin went on to win in a romp by four lengths.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Latonia Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Glencoe Purse for 2-year-olds is the best race at Latonia today. ISSAQUENA is selected to win, having the best past performance of any of the field, and has run with some of the stars at Chicago. LIBERTY ACE will offer the strongest opposition and may be the sleeper in the race. He generally puts up a contest in all his races, but the filly probably will outfoot him. ELYSIAN is well bred and may get in the money. The race is at 5½ furlongs.

FIRST RACE — LADY FINGERS seems best, and wil have CHATTER BLACK to beat in the 6-furlong dash for fillies and mares. RUEFUL is dangerous and should be third. She was believed to be of stake quality when a 2-year-old, but failed to measure up to that standard, and hence is now found in claiming races.

SECOND RACE is for 2-year-old maidens, and one guess is as good as another. GOLDEN THRUSH, is quick from the barrier, seems best, but as she is number one on the post, she may be shut off at the start. GULLIVER is probably the contender, with DONALD a show possibility. BOB'S PLAY will have backing if he gets in, but is far down on the eligible list.

THIRD RACE—HIDDEN THOUGHTS is probably the outstanding horse on the card, and should easily win the third race, a claiming event. WESTERN PRINCESS and SUNSTROKE may get the place and show in the order named. WESTERN PRINCESS is the real contender in this ordinary field.

FIFTH RACE—JAMES M. heads the list of probabilities in the fifth race, and should have little trouble taking care of WOOD AXTON, the strongest contender. LORD CONCORD is likely to wake up soon, and this might be the occasion.

SIXTH RACE—BRUNO will have BLIND HILLS to beat in the sixth race. The two are well matched, but at the distance BRUNO should win. GRANDAD has the call on the others. GENERAL CLINTON might be the surprise horse, but his form has been bad this season.

SEVENTH RACE—BORDER CHIEF has been well placed in the seventh race, and has only one horse to fear—NANI HAWAII. YOUR PLAY occasionally turns in a race that would be dangerous in this company. CELEDON, once a star when the master trainer Samuel Hildreth had charge of him, has become so ordinary that he can not win a claiming race.

GALLANT FOX is leaving New York for Chicago this afternoon in a special car, to be prepared for his engagement in the classic, worth $70,000 to the winner. It is probable the William Woodward champion will continue his money winning in the West. Unbeaten this year, he has piled up more than $200,000, and if he continues in form will probably pass the high mark of Zev in winnings.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUBOLA, $29.42, $10.96, $8.66; THISTLE BILLIE, $12.28, $8.18; LAUGHING GIRL, $21.34.

BUBOLA away fast and steadied along while saving ground, got on even terms with THISTLE BILLIE in latter in hard drive. THISTLE BILLIE raced on outside of leaders to head of stretch, raced LAUGHING GIRL into defeat and, continuing strongly, only faltered in final strides. LAUGHING GIRL went into a brief lead at head of stretch when OVERLAY quit and held on well under hard pressure, but was not good enough. SUGAR LAND closed stoutly after suffering early interference. ELIZABETH LESTER was pinched back soon after start. OVERLAY stopped suddenly after setting pace to final turn.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Winton Place. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 2:46½. Winner, Mrs. C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GO TO IT, $4.30, $2.64, $2.24; GEORGE WEBRE, $4.00, $2.80; BUSTLING, $2.44.

GO TO IT, much the best, held GLYCINE safe for speed and, responding gamely when called upon at the stretch turn, began drawing out. GEORGE WEBRE, in close quarters first five furlongs, improved position steadily when clear and, closing strongly got up in last 50 yards to overhaul BUSTLING. BUSTLING suffered from lack of racing room in first turn, but when clear, this filly faltered slightly in the final drive. GLYCINE, used up forcing the early pace, tired when the final test came.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48½. Winner, F. P. Letellier's ch. c. (4), by Ballot—Royal Dainty. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG SANDY, $5.08, $3.04, $2.48; GOTHAM, $6.92, $4.12; DOLTAIR, $4.22.

BIG SANDY, away fast, but reserved to the far turn, moved up steadily when shaken up, gradually disposed of GOTHAM in final furlong. GOTHAM was forced back on the back stretch and, taken to outside, improved position steadily and, finding an opening on inside at head of the stretch, went into a slight lead, but weakened when challenged by the winner. DOLTAIR saved ground while setting the pace, held on gamely when called upon in stretch run, but tired as if short in final three-sixteenths. CONGO II moved up with a rush on outside after reaching far turn, raced strongly to the final furlong where he appeared to hang when hard urged. BOMBAY had no mishaps.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:17½. Off at 5:18. Winner, Dubbs and Runells' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH STORM, $5.56, $3.28, $2.82; DAN BURNHAM, $3.64, $3.74; SHARK, $4.04.

HIGH STORM, forced back when in close racing quarters nearing the stretch turn, was taken to outside and, easily disposing of leaders when straightened out, began drawing clear. DAN BURNHAM moved around SHARK with a rush on the final turn, saved ground thereafter, but weakened when put to a drive. SHARK saved ground on the first two turns, gave way when challenged on the turn, but came again near the end and easily held CHIZ safe. Latter was taken on inside through stretch where he could not find an opening.

ARMY SINGLES TENNIS TITLE IS WON BY STRAHAN

Hedekin Bows In Five-Set Final

Breaks Help Strahan to Win, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6 and 8-6.

Van Vliet-Finley to Defend Doubles Title Today.

AGE and experience and Lady Luck marched with Lieut. John W. Strahan, of Newark, N. J., yesterday through the final match to the singles tennis championship of the annual Army tournament at Columbia Country Club.

It was a two-man parade and Lieut. David D. Hedekin, of Washington and Fort Benning, Ga., accompanied by youth and energy, but by the imp of Bad Luck as well, finished a step in the rear at the conclusion of five hard sets spread out over a two-day period. The scores were 3—6, 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 8—6.

To the winner went the Sheridan Cup, emblematic of the championship, which was presented by Abner Y. Leech, one of the fathers of local tennis. And to the runner-up went that spiritual prize of a satisfied feeling, born of the fact that he had twice reached the final round of the tournament in two years of competition.

Hedekin Went to Final in 1928.

In 1928, the only other time he competed, Lieut. Hedekin went to the final to bow to the then supreme Army netman, Maj. Robert C. Van Vliet, jr., whom he eliminated two days ago in the biggest upset of the current tournament.

After dividing the first four sets, Lieut. Hedekin twice stood on the threshhold of victory in the fifth set, but on each occasion his shot, intended for a placement, went outside the line by a matter of a couple of inches. It was here that Lady Luck played her part for Lieut. Strahan, for the latter was able to deuce the game and summon experience to his side.

Lieut. Strahan was the steadier and smarter player throughout the match which opened on Tuesday when the first set and most of the second were recorded before rain halted play. The Newark representative displayed keen powers of anticipation and nullified Hedekin's well-aimed shots to the corners by getting to those spots in time to make returns.

In the decisive fifth set Lieut. Hedekin was leading 5—4 in games and 40—30 when his shot hit the dirt barely an inch beyond the back line. Saved from defeat by this, Lieut. Strahan gained the advantage and then put over a passing shot to take the game, bringing the score to 5—5.

Strahan Breaks Service to Tie.

Lieut Strahan found new life and broke his opponent's service to tie the set, but again Hedekin went ahead by smashing the veteran's delivery in the eleventh game. Then Lady Luck stepped up in the twelfth game once more beside Strahan, Hedekin losing the one point necessary to win the match when he stroked the ball just about two inches past the chalk mark.

Taking full advantage of his opening, Lieut. Strahan won this game, the thirteenth and fourteenth to capture the decision. He broke Hedekin's service in the thirteenth and allowed him but one point in the final.

Hedekin and Lieut. S. K. Robinson will play for the doubles championship today, meeting the defending champions, Majs. Van Vliet and Finley, at 2:30 o'clock. In the semi-finals yesterday, Hedekin and Robinson defeated Lieuts. Millard Lewis and E. S. Mathews, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2, while Van Vliet and Finley vanquished Majs. J. H. Hills and W. M. Robertson, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

Giants Stop Rally To Defeat Cubs, 9-8

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—The New York Giants ended their tour of the West today by taking an exciting game from the Cubs, 9 to 8. The victory gave them the series, two games to one.

The Giants bunched three hits, an error and Lynn Nelson's wild pitch to score three runs in the ninth, breaking a 6-to-6 tie, then barely stood off a Cub rally that brought two counters. Hubbell departed in the first inning and Malone followed him in the fourth as the Giants equalled the rally.

Nats Beat Browns, 5-4, 5-3, And Gain Ground in Race

5 to 4, in twelve frames, while, after seeing the Browns knot the count at 3-all in the eighth canto of the second engagement, they again came back with a winning rally, taking this one, 5 to 3.

Brown Forces Home Run In Twelfth.

Irving Hadley and Sam Gray were the starters in the opening engagement and they staged a battle royal until the tenth, when they gave way to George Blaeholder and Lloyd Brown, respectively. After each team had scored two runs in the thrilling first extra session, and Brown had forced a Brownie over the plate in the twelfth with two successive bases on balls, the home team again refused to give up, Sammy West doubling the winning run over the plate with two dead.

"General" Alvin Crowder, late of the Browns, had a great time winning the second contest, in which he was pitted against Dick Coffman and Chad Kimsey. After the Nats had forged into a three-run early lead, some wierd playing by Buddie Myer, coupled with Kimsey's double and a single by Goslin, enabled the visitors to knot the string in the eighth. This time it was Joe Cronin who was the hitting hero, he singling two runs home in the home half to give the Johnsons the verdict. Crowder held the Browns to but four hits.

Of the several heroes of the two games, Joe Cronin deserves the palm for being the most outstanding. He cracked out five hits during the 5¾ hours of play, while it was his single which scored the two runs which knotted the count in the tenth of the first game, his sacrifice fly which again knotted the string in the twelfth, and his single which propelled home the winning runs of the nightcap engagement.

Manush Has Better of Feud With Goslin.

In the Goslin-Manush feud, Manush had a little the better of yesterday's battles. His double in the tenth and his triple in the twelfth played big parts in the Nats' scoring in the first game, in which he counted two runs, while it was the high esteem in which his former mates hold him that forced them to purposely walk him in the eighth of the nightcap, filling the bases and setting the stage for Cronin to come through.

Goslin fanned three times during the afternoon, but came through with singles in each game, one starting the St. Louis rally in the twelfth and the other driving over the final of the three runs molded by the Browns in their lone scoring frame of the second session.

In the second game the Nationals hopped on Coffman's slants for a three-run lead in the first four innings, forcing Killefer to get the former Washington rookie out of the box in favor of Kimsey. The home gang scored one run in the second from Spencer's opening triple over Goslin's head and Myer's infield out to McNeely.

Two more runs were added in the fourth, but only one of these was earned. With one down, Cronin singled and Judge doubled him to third, West then looping a sacrifice fly to Badgro. This scored Cronin and Judge followed him past the check-in station when Badgro's return throw went all the way to the St. Louis dugout.

Crowder Grants but One Hit In Seven Frames.

Meanwhile, Crowder was just easing along and having no troubles whatsoever, a single by Melillo with two gone in the second being the only alien hit in the first half of the game, while the two passes he issued were put to no good use by the Browns.

Opening the eighth, however, Gullic knicked Crowder for another hit and then, taking advantage of some poor headwork by Myer, the Browns tied the string. Hale, up for Manion, rolled to Myer, who, instead of throwing immediately, with a double play in sight, ran Gullic back toward first, then threw too late to get Hale, while Judge's peg to second was too late to flag the runner there. Kimsey scored both on his double to left and brought home the tying run himself on Goslin's single to right. The Goose tried to stretch this blow, but Judge intercepted the return throw and nailed him at second.

Following the scheme which had worked so successfully in the opening game, the Nats again decided to follow the example set by the visitors, and they came back in their half with a splurge which netted two runs. Spencer and Crowder opened this home half with successive singles, the first-named being forced at third on Myer's intended sacrifice. After Rice had rolled to Kimsey, Manush was purposely passed, filling the bases. This put it up to Cronin and he came through with a single, which gave the Nats the verdict as things turned out.

Fast Work Catches Manush At the Plate.

Seeing Catcher Ferrell shoot the ball to second to nip Cronin, trying to advance on the return peg, Manush also tried to register, but Melillo got the ball back home in time to head him off. Crowder made these two runs stand up by setting his former mates down in one-two-three order in their ninth.

The opening encounter was the most thrilling seen here in many moons, with much of the excitement packed in the three extra innings. Previously, Gray and Hadley had staged a brilliant mound duel, with the string tied at 1-all at the end of the regulation game. Both of the starting hurlers disappeared in the tenth, Gray because the going got too rough for him, and Hadley to make way for a pinch-hitter.

St. Louis had broken the ice in the seventh by molding a marker from a hit batsman, Ferrell being knicked by a fast one, a useful out, and O'Rourke's one-baser to center, with the Nationals equalizing in their half on Judge's opening triple and Bluege's single past Kress.

After a great leaping catch by Judge had robbed Ferrell of a hit and the Browns of a run in the ninth, which Kress opened with a double, the visitors apparently packed away the game by scoring twice in the tenth. With one dead, Gray coaxed a pass, McNeely doubled him to third, and O'Rourke cleaned the bases with a hump-back bounder over Hadley's head. O'Rourke later stole and Goslin walked, but these two were left stranded.

Nats Tie String in Tenth With Two Out.

Two were out when the Nationals staged their rally which knotted the count. Then Kress fumbled Rice's hot grasser, Manush doubled Rice to third, and Cronin duplicated O'Rourke's stunt, driving both over with a looper-single to center. When Judge followed with a single, Blaeholder relieved Gray.

Brown was doing the home flinging when the eleventh started, and he got by this round at the cost of only a hit, as did Blaeholder in the lower half, but the Washington southpaw had plenty of trouble in the next session. He easily disposed of the first two to face him, but Goslin singled, took third on Kress' blow of like proportions, and then remained at the hot corner watching Kress take second on a short passed ball and Ferrell fill the bases by coaxing a walk. Brown then forced the Goose over by also passing Melillo.

Again it looked as though the Nats were beaten, but they were "everything else but," as they quickly proved. With one out, Manush lashed out a triple to right center, and Cronin let him bring in the tying run by lofting a long air sacrifice to Badgro. Fans were just settling down for more extra innings when Blaeholder walked Judge, the latter pilferred second, and West broke up the game by doubling off the right-field wall.

Seibold Scatters Hits; Braves Down Pirates

Pittsburgh, July 2 (A.P.).—Harry Seibold kept the Pittsburgh hits scattered and Boston won today's fray, 6-to-4. A three-run rally off Erwin Brame in the fifth gave the Braves their win. Brame allowed only two hits after the fifth and did not issue a base on balls during the entire game. Pittsburgh had twelve men stranded on the sacks.

Another small crowd saw the second division clubs in action.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

tempts had failed, Myer finally came through in the sixth, shooting a single between first and second and advancing Hadley, who had been given life on Kress' fumble.

With Hadley on third in the sixth, Manush got such a long lead off first that he stole second with no effort made to try to stop him.

Hadley jumped high to pick McNeely's bounder out of the air opening round eight.

After getting two balls on Manush in the eighth, with Hadley on second and two dead, Gray purposedly tossed over two more wild ones.

Judge certainly pulled a "Jesse James" catch at Ferrell's expense in the ninth, jumping a mile to drag down a liner with his gloved hand. Kress, on second at the time, would have been doubled up had not the Nat captain fallen in a heap when he came down to earth. This prevented a run from scoring then and there.

Bluege shot a mile-a-minute grasser down the third-base line in the ninth, with West on second, which had all the earmarks of being a safety, but O'Rourke came up with it and trapped West between second and third. Had this gotten by, the game would have ended then and there and extra innings would not have been needed.

After fanning Pinch-hitter Chad Kimsey starting the tenth, Hadley walked Pitcher Sam Gray on four wide ones in a row.

Shires got in the game opening the tenth, when he represented Hadley at the tee, but the best he could do was to strike out, following the example set by Kimsey in the upper half.

Myer raced over toward first to make a great gloved-hand stop of Schulte's bounder with Melillo on second in the eleventh.

Brown walked Ferrell on four successive balls to pack the bases in the twelfth with two out.

Coach Jimmy Austin was chased off the field by Umpire Campbell in the Nats' twelfth for having too much to say regarding the arbiter's calling of balls and strikes on Judge, who coaxed a pass with two gone.

SECOND GAME.

Kress went to short left to make a nice catch of West's near Texas leaguer in the second round.

Manush met one of Coffman's fast ones in the fourth and shot it a mile away to the extreme corner of the top of the right-field stands. As it was foul, all it proved to be was a beautiful strike.

O'Rourke came up with a fine catch of Bluege's bad bounder ending the home fourth.

Myer went into short right for Melillo's pop fly opening round five.

Kimsey fanned as a pinch hitter for a second time during the day when he pinch-hit for Coffman ending the fifth. He then took up Coffman's burden in the box. His strikeout was particularly well received by the fans, as it was the out which made the game legal in case of rain, which was just in the offing, halted hostilities. In fact, it was sprinkling slightly at the time.

Manush went over toward center to make a nice overhead catch of Melillo's liner ending the alien seventh. This was Heinie's fourth out of the game, while Goslin, his rival, did not have a single chance until both West and Bluege hoisted to him in the lower portion of this inning.

Gullic's single opening the eighth was only the second safety credited to the Browns.

JOHNSON ORDERS BATTING PRACTICE

ahead of his home-run pace of his record 1928 season, he has yet to get a round-tripper this season off the slants of any of the Washington fingers. He may not get a chance to do any shooting at the right-field wall Friday, Saturday or Sunday, as he injured himself in yesterday's second game of the Yanks twin-bill with the Chisox.

A delegation from Tampa visited President Clark Griffith yesterday, trying to coax him to return to the Smoker City for training next spring. Not only have the Nats already signed to go back to Biloxi, Miss., but the Nat owner also did not hesitate in telling his visitors that he would not consider the proposition otherwise, as he does not feel that he or his players were treated any too well in 1929, their last spring there.

Philadelphia, July 2 (A.P.).—Tony Rensa, young catcher with Detroit, was awarded to the Phillies today for the waiver price, confirmation of the deal being announced by the Phils' office here.

Rensa was with Toronto, of the International League, before joining Detroit. He will remain in Philadelphia when Detroit leaves, and move his possessions to the Phillies' clubhouse to be prepared to work with the club when it meets Boston Friday.

Three Texans Survive In Western Net Play

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Tennis stars from Austin, Tex.; Des Moines, Iowa, and Chicago swept into the quarter finals of the Western men's singles championship at the River Forest Club today.

Austin placed three of its stars in the bracket—Karl Kamrath, Bruce Barnes and Joe Bill Bralley. Chicago was represented by George Jennings, national public parks champion, and Charles Lejeck, while Harris Cokkeshall still carried the tennis hopes of Des Moines and the Missouri Valley district. Two other places in the quarter-final bracket will be decided tomorrow.

All the quarter-finalists except Coggeshall had fairly easy sailing today. Coggeshall had the fight of the tournament before he disposed of Earl Bossong, Cincinnati's junior star, 6—2, 2——6, 6—3. He meets Bralley in the quarter-final. Bralley downed Rolley, the hard-driving Chicago veteran, today, 6——1, 11—9.

Hockey Body Grants Franchise in Chicago

St. Paul, Minn., July 2 (A.P.).—The American Hockey Association was enlarged to a seven-team circuit last night when a franchise was granted Thomas J. Shaughnessy for operation in Chicago at a special secret meeting of the association's executive committee.

Granting of the Chicago franchise means that the association club will be rivals of the Chicago Blackhawks of the National League. Although the association officials do not believe the permit will mean war with the National League, it is a violation of the agreement between major and minor leagues which extends until September 24, 1930.

Shaughnessy recently purchased the Minneapolis Hockey club, member of the American Association loop. Other members of the loop besides Chicago and Minneapolis are St. Paul, Duluth, Tulsa, Kansas City and St. Louis.

Second Class Middies' Team Wins in Ninth

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 2—In a thrilling contest marked by nigh perfect pitching and snappy fielding, the Naval Academy second class baseball team this afternoon gained a 2 to 1 decision over the Baltimore Athletic Club. The winning run did not come until two of the Midshipmen had been retired in the ninth inning.

Runt Keen opened the Middies' final by doubling to deep right center, fast fielding by Katzenberger in center keeping the blow from being good for the circuit. Bunce attempting to bunt popped to Smith behind the plate. Charlie Keene, pinch hitting for Quarts, took the third strike, but Tom Hurley, Middy receiver drove a hot grounder between third and short to score Keen with the deciding tally. The game was a mound duel throughout between Lefty Ernest Coombs, of Middies, and Bob Owings, of the visitors, who for three consecutive years has pitched the B. A. C. to wins over the Midshipmen stationed here during the summer.

Risko Has Weight Edge On "Tuffy" Griffith

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—Johnny Risko, Cleveland Baker Boy, outweighed "Tuffy" Griffith 8¾ pounds for their heavyweight match in the Chicago Stadium tonight. Risko scaled 193¾ pounds when they weighed in at 2 p. m., today, with the Sioux City, Iowa, boxer scaling 185 pounds.

King of Spain Pilots Own Yacht in Race

Bembridge, Isle of Wight, July 2 (A.P.).—King Alfonso of Spain was at the helm of his own yacht, the 8-meter Hispania, when the race in that class of the Bembridge Sailing Club got away today. Six yachts are competing.

The Hispania was the last to get away.

BOBBY JONES GETS ROYAL WELCOME

The world's worst golfer greets the world's best golfer."

And the youngest bank director in Atlanta, Ga., got very red under his tan and grinned like a bashful kid.

The Europa was late, and for more than two hours the Macom, the Mandalay and the Eugene F. Moran cruised about in the lower bay today.

Aboard the Macom were the champion's father—known as "Big Bob" down in Atlanta—his Mother, Mayor and Mrs. I. N. Ragsdale, of Atlanta, Maj. John S. Cohen, publisher of the Atlanta Journal and head of the Atlanta Bobby Jones welcome committee; John Malone, Bobby's father-in-law, who formerly was tax assessor in Atlanta, and Jess W. Sweetser, himself a former British amateur champion.

As the Europa hove in sight everybody rushed to the rails. The Macom and the Mandalay pulled up alongside. Mrs. Bobby Jones appeared at a porthole, and the crowd on the Mandalay yelled wildly. Soon there was young Bob himself—seating himself on the arm of a chair, holding his mother tight in his arms, grinning with pleasure as "Big Bob" leaned over and whispered something.

Off the Europa with Bobby and Mrs. Jones came, among others, Sherwood Hurt, of Atlanta, a close friend of the Joneses; John Dawson, Chicago golf fan, and Cyril Tolley, last year's British amateur champion.

The Joneses scatter tomorrow. Bobby and his parents leave for Minneapolis, where the champion is to play in the national open tournament. Mrs. Bobby is going right straight back to Atlanta.

And tucked away in her purse she will cary a faded rosebud, which was delivered to her aboard the Macom today by Bobby's mother. It was sent her by her little daughter, Clara, aged 5.

NOTRE DAME MAN GETS C. U. JOB

Bergman to Succeed McAuliffe, Who Resigns Post.

in the fall with prospects of turning out a strong football team.

For several months it has been rumored on the C. U. campus and among close observers of local college sport that the Cardinal athletic department would be reorganized. Partial substantiation of these rumors came with the unexplained resignation of Ted Mitchell, boxing coach, following the resignation of Fred Rice, basket ball coach, who, however, stated that outside business interests claimed his full time.

It was frankly admitted by one coach that there was discord in the Cardinal athletic department, but this was firmly denied by McAuliffe. McAuliffe came to Catholic University as head football coach in 1925, and in 1927 was promoted to the position of director of athletics to succeed Charles Moran. Previously, McAuliffe had coached at Dartmouth, Colby and Marquette. He captained the Dartmouth Football Team in 1915 and received mention in all-American selections as a guard.

Bergman Experienced Coach.

Bergman, whose contract extends for three years, comes to the Brookland school with a reputation as a successful football coach, employing the tactics of Knute Rockne, under whom he played at Notre Dame from 1914 to 1917. During the past several years he has been assistant football coach and head baseball coach at Minnesota University. He has had full charge of the backfield of the powerful elevens turned out by the famous Dr. Spears, wha has recently accepted the position of head coach at Oregon University.

Shortly after graduating in 1917, Bergman enlisted in the Army and served 26 months in the Artillery and Air Service, attaining the rank of first lieutenant and spending one year overseas.

After the war he joined the coaching staff of Knute Rockne and assisted in football and track during the period 1919-20. From Notre Dame he went to New Mexico A. and M. College as athletic director and head football mentor. He also coached basket ball, baseball and track at that school.

Bergman remained at New Mexico until 1923, when he signed to coach football and track at the University of Dayton, where he stayed until 1926.

The new Catholic University director will be assisted by the same staff of coaches used by McAuliffe. He is expected to report here to take charge of preseason football training on September 1.

Brewers' President Will Fight Landis

Chicago, July 2 (A.P.).—A woman, whose business world is baseball, today was determined to fight alone, if necessary, even against an old warrior like Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

She was Miss Florence Killilea, president of the Milwaukee Club of the American Association, who has defied the high commissioner of baseball by filing suit in Federal Court against his transfer order on one of her players, Outfielder Fred Bennett.

When the American Association of Professional Baseball Clubs voted at its special meeting yesterday to adhere to Landis' decisions in all disputes, the conclusion was drawn that Miss Killilea would withdraw her suit to restrain the commissioner's order. But the conclusion was wrong. Miss Killilea said she would contest the case.

"The vote of confidence was very nice," she said. "But we can't win ball games that way. The judge can have the votes. We want Bennett."

Kid Chocolate Stops Petrone in 6 Rounds

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Kid Chocolate, slugging Cuban bantamweight, defeated Dominick Petrone, of New York, by a technical knockout in the sixth round of their scheduled ten-round bout at Ebbets Field tonight.

Chocolate went out in front from the start of the first round, knocking the Harlem fighter about the ring with a two-fisted attack. Petrone was groggy when at the start of the sixth round Chocolate backed his opponent up against the ropes and then began the punishment which resulted in Referee Eddie Forbes stopping the fight.

Hamm, U. S., Beaten In German Track Meet

Cologne, Germany, July 2 (A.P.).—America's invading track team made an impressive showing in its first European appearance today, winning five of the seven events in which it competed.

The unexpected failure of Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech's star broad jumper, to win his specialty, prevented the Americans from making a clean sweep. Hamm failed by one-half inch to defeat Dobermann, of Germany, who leaped 7.22 meters, or 23 feet 8 11-64 inches. The Georgian cleared 7.21 meters, or 23 feet 7 25-32 inches.

First places went to George Bullwinkle, crack half-miler of the College of the City of New York; Tom Warne, Northwestern's premier pole vaulter; Steve Anderson, Washington's great hurdler; Pete Bowen, Pittsburgh's star quarter-miler, and the 400-meter relay team.

Doubling in the 100-meter sprint, Bowen ran second and Hamm third, the event going to the German Olympic athlete, Lammers, in 10.7 seconds.

Shires' No. 13 Lucky For Shortstop Cronin

Joe Cronin is not superstitious—not much. Just before going to bat in the eighth inning of yesterday's second game, the Nat shortstop ran up to Art Shires and rubbed his hand all over the number 13 on "The Great One's" back. Then he stepped up to the plate and singled home the runs which won the game. From now on Shires is likely to have a sore back from the rubbing it will get every time the Nats need a hit.

PAIR FILES ANSWER IN CONTEMPT CASE

Disclaiming any intended disrespect, Frank Owings, former vice president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, and Fred W. Jones, of 3811 Beecher street northwest, yesterday filed answers in District Supreme Court to the recent rule issued against them by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in which they are cited to show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court. The citation followed affidavits made to the court that Owings, who was interetsed in a law case, and Jones, a juror sitting on the case, had been seen talking together before the jury had disagreed because of Jones' dissenting vote.

Immediately after the filing of the answers Justice Jennings Bailey continued the hearing of the matter, scheduled for yesterday, until next Wednesday. Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw appeared as the prosecutor, while Owings was represented by Attorney William B. Wolfe and Jones by Attorneys Hawken & Havell.

Suit Led to Charge.

The trial from which the contempt charges grew involved the Bank of Commerce and Savings as defendant, and Charles D. Kenney, trading as the Washington Electric Co., as plaintiff, the latter seeking to recover $1,400 from the bank for checks of customers which had been cashed by the institution by the indorsement of an employe of Kenney, said to have been empowered to make such indorsements.

Owings, in his answer, admits that he was cashier and vice president of the bank at the time complained of in Kenney's suit and that he still is a director. He states that he attended the trial and was returning to the courtroom when a man whom he did not know accosted him and asked if the bank were protected by insurance in matters such as involved in the trial. Owings said that without hesitating in his walk into the courtroom he answered that in some instances they are, but not in others. He declares he did not know the man was a member of the jury, and asserts that he has the highest respect for the court and had no intention of speaking to a member of the jury. He asserts that his answer to the man was not intended to influence the jury verdict and expresses the belief that it did not.

Said Vote Was Sincere.

Jones, who states he is a mechanic and not conversant with banking methods, asserts that the vote he cast in the jury room which caused the deadlock was given "conscientiously and according to my best judgment." He admits that he accosted Owings and asked the question, but asserts that he did so out of curiosity and without any intention of violating the instruction of the court. He declares that he is unacquainted with any official of the bank and has never spoken to Owings except on that one occasion.

Jones asserts that his vote was controlled solely by the evidence as he understood it, and points out that his jury service cost him $2 a day in wages, but that he did not ask to be excused. He, like Owings, declares he has the greatest respect for the court.

Nine Hurt in Ceremony As Fascists, Reds Clash

Berlin, July 2 (A.P.).—Nine persons were injured today when several thousand Fascists and Communists engaged in a violent windup of evacuation festivities in Berlin and several Rhineland towns. More than 100 arrests occurred during the disturbances. Police used their sticks freely.

The capital was the scene of noisy demonstrations at dawn shouting "Germany, wake up." Large numbers of Fascists roamed the streets and gave battle to Communists wherever they met and recognized them.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH CORNER STONE LAID

Dr. Curran Leads Services Before Large Crowd at Silver Spring.

MAN FOILS AUTO THEFT

Embellished with the solemn ritual of the Episcopal Church, the corner stone of the new Church of the Ascension, the first permanent church building in Silver Spring, was laid last night. The Rev. D. Wellington Curran, D. D., executive secretary of the Diocese of Washington, spread the mortar for the corner stone in the presence of a large gathering which braved the sprinkling rain to participate in the services.

Assisting Dr. Curran in the service was the Rev. Ronalds Taylor, rector of the Episcopal Church at College Park. The Rev. Alfred Cheetham, rector of the new church, presided, and introduced the representatives of various civic and business as well as religious groups who had attended the service to wish the work Godspeed.

Among those who expressed their well wishes were: Charles Florence, representing the Masonic Order; Capt. Frank L. Hewitt, president of the Lions Club; Mrs. Mary Etta Wallace, who organized and was the first matron of the Silver Spring Eastern Star branch; the Rev. Ralph D Smith, pastor of the Woodside M. E. Church; the Rev. J. Wesley Loftis, pastor of the Silver Spring Baptist Church; former Senator Blair Lee, who long has been prominent in Episcopal Church work; the Rev. William Mayo, rector of Holy Comforter Church, Washington, who was associated with the Rev. J. Henning Nelms, who first organized the Silver Spring Mission which has developed into the new church project; Mrs. Archibald Small, prominent Episcopal worker of Woodside, and Fire Chief Charles Deffinbaugh, representing the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department.

The mission was founded by Dr. Nelms, who was rector of Grace Church, Woodside, more than eight years ago. Services were held Sunday evenings until about a year ago in the old National Guard Armory In 1925 a Sunday school was formed. The Rev. Clyde Brown succeeded Dr. Nelms and continued the mission. In May, 1925, the Diocesan Board of Missions sent the Rev. Alfred Cheetham, the present rector, to take charge of the mission independently of the mother church. Maj. E. Brooke Lee and his brother, Blair Lee, jr., donated three lots on Sligo avenue for a church and three other lots in back of these were purchased by the diocesan board. In June, 1929, a temporary church was built and the department of missions gave $20,000 toward a permanent edifice. The last diocesan convention extended permission to borrow $15,000 more and the church is being built at a cost of approximately $40,000.

Maj. Howard W. Cutler, of Silver Spring, is the architect. The church is expected to be ready for occupancy within the year.

Suit for absolute divorce was filed yesterday by Mrs. Margaret McCann in circuit court at Rockville. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, the wife charges that Lawrence J. McCann, of Washington, deserted her and their two children. The couple was married January 10, 1920, at Rockville.

Definite steps toward the hook-up of the Rockville water system with the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission mains were taken yesterday by Mayor J. Roger Spates in a letter to the commission formally asking that such a move be made. The letter was sent following the request of the commission that some formal request be sent the commission for action.

Approximately one-half mile of concrete sidewalks have been approved by the mayor and the town council, as follows: North Washington street, North Van Buren street and South Adams street. The work is to be done by day labor, using town equipment, under the direction of John McDonald, who has been retained as city engineer for the summer season.

Hearing a noise in the yard of his establishment, Roger Farquhar, jr., proprietor of Brooke Manor, on the Colesville pike near Ashton, early yesterday, peered from his window in time to see several men pushing his automobile away. They had pushed the car about 100 yards and were hooking a cable to the car to tow it away when Mr. Farquhar slipped back into the building and brought out his shotgun.

Creeping out on the roof of a first story section, he opened fire on the would be robbers, who fled in their car. County Policeman Robert Darby is investigating.

Robbers entered the Piggly Wiggly store at Kensington early yesterday by breaking a large plate glass window in the rear and stole a canned chicken, a large cooked ham and 8 pounds of cheese. Nothing else was missing as far as the store employes could ascertain. County Policeman E. R. Jones is investigating the robbery. An automobile tire iron believed to have been used to break the window is being held by police in the hope of finding fingerprints.

SCOTLAND PUTS BAN ON VIRGINIA APPLES

British Ministry Refuses to Revoke Embargo or Change Dates.

MODIFICATION HOPED FOR

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 2.—Another blow was dealt the apple export trade today, when a cable from Edinburgh announced the Scotish ministry had adopted the British Board of Trade ruling against importation of American apples of the commercial grade between July 7 and November 15, due ostensibly to alleged prevalence of fly larvae in fruit from this side. The British prohibition had included only England and Wales.

British brokers' agents also were advised from Liverpool that a federation deputation visited the ministry in London today, only to be told the ministry would refuse absolutely to consider cancellation of the embargo. Changing the dates was also rejected. Officials said fly larvae was prevalent until October 28 last season, and three weeks were required as a safety margin.

British dealers were endeavoring to induce the ministry not to exclude commercial or combination grades. Local members of the international Apple Shippers Association said the organization regretted the State Department did not supply information concerning the apple embargo until the eve of its becoming effective. They said it had developed the Washington government was informed last January by the British ministry of its intentions, but shippers were wholly ignorant of the restrictions until the bomb shell exploded last week.

They heard today diplomatic representations were being made in a hope of having the order modified.

MRS. LANIER TO PRESIDE

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 2.—Guests and officials of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation began to arrive here today for ceremonies July 4 at the old home of the Lees at Stratford Hall, when special honor will be paid to the five sons of the builder, Thomas Lee, each of whom did important work before and during the Revolution and two of whom signed the Declaration of Independence.

Richard Henry Lee, in particular, who introduced into Congress almost a month before the Fourth of July the first resolution declaring that "These colonies are, and of a right ought to be, free and independent," which was the first real declaration of independence, will be given credit for his work for the Republic. His resolution was adopted before the declaration written by Jefferson, and the committee which favored the declaration was created on his motion.

Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, president of the Lee Memorial Foundation, will preside. The statement of Miss Helen Knox, of New York, national chairman of finance, will be presented and the public will be given for the first time full information as to what has been paid on Stratford and what has been collected and pledged.

The Rev. Giles B. Palmer, of Richmond, will deliver the invocation, and the Rev. Giles B. Cooke, last survivor of Gen. Lee's staff and chaplain of the foundation, will recite a poem by former Representative William D. Upshur, of Georgia, "Lee, Oh Lee!"

Miss Ethel Armes, national executive secretary, will read messages from State directors; State Senator R. O. Norris, of Lancaster County, will deliver a short address on the origin of the Declaration of Independence; Mayor Jere M. H. Willis, of Fredericksburg, will explain and read the Westmoreland resolutions and Thomas Lomax Hunter, writer and poet, will explain and read the Leedstown resolutions, passed ten years before the Declaration of Independence by an assembly of planters and written by Richard Henry Lee.

Several donations, among them a jardiniere given to George Washington by Richard Henry Lee, the fencing foil of "Lighthorse Harry" Lee, and a wine decanter marked "H. Lee," all of which left Stratford Hall between 100 and 150 years ago, will be received by Mrs. Breckenridge Long, of Laurel, Md., chairman of the committee on relics. Paul Kester, author of the play "When Knighthood Was in Flower" and a dozen other plays and novels, will present the decanter for Mrs. Thomas Bruce Murphy, the donor. Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

"SO you think I'm a heliophobe," said Luella, somewhat haughtily.

It seems terrible, of course; but all I had to go on was a medical man's statement: "A heliophobe," said he, "is one whose skin is morbidly sensitive to the effects of the sun's rays, whose skin reddens, blisters and burns, but never tans."

There was a freckle on Luella's nose, as I read the statement. "You get what he means?" I asked.

* * * *

SHE smiled: "I got what he means—sunburn."

It certainly was a beautiful, brilliant job the sun did on Luella. She was not to be comforted: "A heliophobe," she mumbled. "What a terrible name."

"How would you like heliotrope?" I asked.

"That's the name of a flower——"

The poetic urge swept over me: "You are a flower," I began, but never finished.

"Yes," said Luella, "a sun flower."

THERE she hit it. When Luella gets sunburnt it's nobody's business, as they say in the classics. She lights up, radiates. Coming in the house, after a day in the open, Luella's face looks like the sun itself—well, like a sunset, to be exact. She is beautiful, but burnt.

"Whattum I gonna do?" she asked, disconsolate. "Once a heliophobe always a heliophobe, I guess."

* * * *

SHE felt so badly about it, I went over and put my arms around her—the poor kid: "What you ought-a do," I suggested, "is get yourself a sunbonnet."

A strange look came into her eyes. "That's the trouble with you men," she said, "you have no sense of style. Sunbonnets went out years ago——"

That probably is the trouble with us men. We think only of the ultimate end. Sunbonnets went out, but heliophobes are still getting freckled.

ARLINGTON PLANS AID ON PARKWAYS

Col. Grant Asks That County Join in Coordination Scheme.

MEETING IS CALLED

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509 Clarendon, Va.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier has made public a letter which he received from Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, in which he asks the cooperation of the County Board of Supervisors in the preparation of a coordination plan of regional highway development for the National Capital area.

Kinnier stated that the letter will be presented to the board at its meeting Tuesday, July 15, at which time it is expected that a representative from the county will be appointed on the commission to which Col. Grant refers in his letter.

Col. Grant points out that under authority granted the planning commission by Congress that body is charged with the duty of preparing, developing and maintaining a comprehensive and coordinated plan for the National Capital and environs which plans shall include recommendations to the proper executive authorities as to traffic, highways and parks.

It is understood that a like letter has been sent to the Board of Supervisors of Fairfax County, and the city manager of the City of Alexandria.

Under the provisions of the resolution adopted in regard to the duties of the committee to be appointed, the location of future principal highways, park developments and policies as to rights of way should be studied.

A preliminary meeting of the committee will be held in the Navy Building the afternoon of Tuesday, July 22, at 2 o'clock.

According to an announcement given out yesterday by Chairman Edward Duncan, of the county board of supervisors, appointments of members to the board of tax equalization will be made by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy on July 8, or soon thereafter. He stated further that recommendations by the board will be considered by the judge prior to any appointments.

Leroy Bates, charged with throwing firecrackers into a passing automobile on the county highway, was fined $5 and costs by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas yesterday. The fine was suspended, but costs amounting to $4.25 were ordered paid by the court.

The committee in charge of the carnival being given tomorrow under the auspices of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department in the park grounds opposite the firehouse promises there will be something doing of interest to all.

The program for the day includes a baseball game, outdoor games and a number of athletic events. Picnic dinner and refreshments will be one of the day's features. There will be fireworks in the evening.

The condition of Mrs. H. Bruce Green, who underwent an operation at Sibley Hospital, Washington, Tuesday afternoon, was reported as much improved last night.

Discussing the resolution offered at the meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation Tuesday night regarding persons operating automobiles with District of Columbia tags and giving the impression that the number is increasing, J. V. Turner, in charge of the distribution of Virginia license plates for this section, declared yesterday that he is issuing tags every day and that in his opinion the number of Virginians operating automobiles today with District of Columbia tags is decreasing and is less now than it has been in the past.

With the appointment of a committee composed of George Ricker, Chairman; B. M. Hedrick and Stewart Thompson, the Arlington Post, No 139, American Legion, has started a movement for the erection of a suitable memorial to the men of Arlington County who lost their lives in the World War.

Such a movement was started more than eight years ago at a homecoming celebration held on the courthouse grounds when a committee started out to raise funds and at that time it is understood that more than $200 was raised. That fund is now in hand and the committee proposes to start an active campaign to raise funds for the cause.

It has been suggested that no better place could be selected than in the triangle at the intersection of Clarendon avenue and Wilson boulevard.

Chairman Ricker announces that he will be glad to receive contributions from individuals or organizations wishing to contribute to the project.

The newly elected officers of the ladies' auxiliary to the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will be installed at its meeting to be held Wednesday night in the new firehouse.

Those who will be installed are Mrs. Margaret Tapp, president; Mrs. Elinor Scheffel, vice president; Mrs. J. E. Bamforth, secretary; Mrs. Rufus Trice, treasurer, and Mrs. Elinor Bell, corresponding secretary.

The officers will be installed by a special committee composed of Mrs. Herbert L. Wilson, Mrs. Marie Scheffel and Mrs. Emma Blackmer.

Col. J. G. Pepper, of Barcroft, a resident of Arlington County for more than 30 years, was taken to Sibley Hospital, Washington, yesterday.

It was learned from his home last night that it is expected that an operation will be necessary.

Thomas E. Sebrell, jr., secretary-treasurer of the Clarendon Trust Co., has been appointed a member of the executive committee of the Virginia State Bankers Association.

Meeting last night at the home of Robert N. Anderson in Lyon Village, comprising Clarendon Precinct, No. 2, supporters of State Senator Frank L. Ball, one of five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eighth Congressional District, organized the "Ball for Congress Club," with the election of Mr. Anderson as president. President Anderson will select his own committees and workers.

This is the fifth club to be organized in the county in the past ten days and it is understood that clubs of like nature will be organized in the six remaining precincts.

This company bid $229,000 for brick and wood construction, and $231,000 for brick, wood and stone construction, their price being several thousand dollars lower than the next bidder, the Brothers Construction Co., of St. Louis. School-Children Census Gains 484 in Loudoun

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., July 2.—The quinquennial school census for Loudoun County has been compiled and sent to the State Department of Education at Richmond. This census lists a total of 4,735 white and 1,517 colored children of the ages 7 to 19, inclusive This compares with 4,309 white and 1,459 colored in the 1925 census, and shows an aggregate gain of 484 children over the 1925 census.

The census was taken by regular appointed census agents and a check census was taken by the school teachers and compared with the official census in the office of the superintendent of schools. The gain in number of children is probably due to the greater accuracy of the census rather than to any increase in the number of children.

285 YOUTHS REPORT TO CAVALRY COURSE

UNIFORMS ARE ISSUED

Officers at the fort were gratified at the large number of applicants appearing yesterday. Three hundred applications had been received, they explained, but not more than 285 boys had been expected to report.

While cavalry instruction proceeds at Fort Meyer, several hundred young men will receive training in military engineering and infantry work at Fort Humphreys, Va., and Fort Meade, Md.

MAN ADMITS ATTACK ON THREE IN VIRGINIA

Hope Held for Recovery of Farmer and Daughters, Shot and Burned.

COUNTY OFFICIALS MEET

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., July 2.—After a severe grilling last night lasting several hours Elwood Payne, colored, held in the shooting of Allie Corbin and his two daughters, broke down and confessed. Payne first denied all connection with the crime, but after Sheriff Woolf had confronted him with evidence that he and his fellow officers had secured in the last 24 hours he admitted all of the crimes, including the attempted burning of the car in which his three victims were.

Corbin and his two daughters are holding their own in the local hospital. Corbin's life was at first despaired of by attending physicians. There is now hope of his recovery and both women are considered on the road to recovery. Pending the outcome of their conditions Commonwealth Attorney Carter will not have any hearing.

The shootings were committed on the border line between the counties of Fauquier and Loudoun. Commonwealth Attorney John Galleher, of Loudoun, was here yesterday in conference with the local Commonwealth attorney and both were present at the questioning of Payne.

In the event of Corbin's death it is not unlikely that Judge J. R. H. Alexander, who presides over both counties, will be asked to summon special grand juries in both Loudoun and Fauquier. Payne is lodged in the Fauquier County Jail.
